PREFACE

At the beginning of this book I want to thank the various people who have contributed over the years to its coming into being. These are in the first place those who helped with my research in Egypt — the many women I was privileged to associate with for shorter and longer periods of time and who were willing to answer my many questions. I am particularly grateful to umm Mustafa, Hanan who accepted me so hospitably into her house, the zar leader Zahra, the tambura player Hassan, and sheikh Fathi. I was always able to drop by any of them and ask for clarification about what I had seen and heard. I am also grateful to the Koran healers who allowed me to be present during their work, and the many other people in Egypt who helped me, directly or indirectly, with this project. In the second place I would like to thank my thesis supervisor Prof. Dr. W.M.J. van Binsbergen, who led me through the various stages of the writing of a doctoral thesis and continued to support and encourage me to find my way through my material.

I received creative and intellectual support from Nellie Duursma, Eelkje Verelst, Thera Rasing and Berend van der Woude, who were willing to read my work and comment on it. I thank Ben van den Camp for his help with the preparation of the published edition of this dissertation, and David Orton for the beautiful translation of the Dutch text. Klaas I would like to thank because he always believes in me and Carol Anne in Cairo because I was often allowed to “come round” at her home. Many friends not separately mentioned by name here are also thanked for listening again and again throughout the years to my “demon stories”.
