ABOUT THE AUTHORS

MIEKE G. BAL (1946), a cultural theorist and critic, was Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences Professor. Her interests range from biblical and classical antiquity to seventeenth-century and contemporary art and modern literature, feminism, and migratory culture. When writing on art, she favours dialogue over the application of theory, and anachronism as a magnifying glass over historical reconstruction. Her many books include Of What One Cannot Speak: Doris Salcedo's Political Art (2011), Loving Yusuf (2008), A Mieke Bal Reader (2006), Travelling Concepts in the Humanities (2002) and Narratology (3d edition 2009). She is also a video-artist, making experimental documentaries on migration. Her first fiction feature, A Long History of Madness, with Michelle Williams Gamaker, was shown publicly in 2011. Occasionally she acts as an independent curator.

<http://www.miekebal.org/>

Mieke.G.Bal@gmail.com

<http://www.crazymothermovie.com>

MAAIKE A. BLEEKER is Professor of Theatre Studies at Utrecht University. She also worked as a dramaturge for various theatre directors, choreographers and visual artists. She performed in several lecture performances, ran her own theatre company (Het Oranjehotel) and translated five plays that were performed by major Dutch theatre companies. She is also President of Performance Studies International.

http://www.theatrestudies.nl/s_bleeker.html

m.a.bleeker@uu.nl

JAN BLOEMENDAL (1961) is Senior Researcher at the Huygens Institute for the History of the Netherlands, of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences in the Hague and Professor of Neo-Latin Studies at the University of Amsterdam. His fields of interest include Dutch early modern drama, reception studies, literature and society, poetry, and Erasmus as a humanist and theologian.

<http://home.medewerker.uva.nl/j.bloemendal/>

jan.bloemendal@huygens.knaw.nl

WIEP VAN BUNGE (1960) is Professor of the History of Philosophy and Dean of the Faculty of Philosophy at Erasmus University Rotterdam. He is mainly interested in the history of philosophy in the Dutch Republic and in the rise of the Enlightenment.

<http://www.eur.nl/fw/contact/medewerkers/vanbunge/>
vanbunge@fwb.eur.nl

BENNETT CARPENTER received a master's in Literature at Leiden University. His recent research has focussed on the concept of natural history in the work of Theodor Adorno and Walter Benjamin. Other areas of interest include literature and politics, philosophical aesthetics, Italian autonomist theory and, following Adorno and Benjamin, the recovery of a philosophy of spiritual (geistige) experience.

<http://bennettabroad.wordpress.com/>

JAN FRANS VAN DIJKHUIZEN is Lecturer in English Literature at Leiden University. He is the author of Devil Theatre: Demonic Possession and Exorcism in English Renaissance Drama, 1558-1642 (Cambridge: D.S. Brewer, 2007) and has co-edited The Reformation Unsettled: British Literature and the Question of Religious Identity, 1560-1660 (Turnhout: Brepols, 2008) and The Sense of Suffering: Constructions of Physical Pain in Early Modern Culture (Leiden: Brill, 2009). He has recently completed a monograph on the meanings of physical pain in early modern English literature and culture.

<http://www.hum.leiden.edu/icd/organisation/members/dijkhuizen-jfvan.html>
j.f.van.dijkhuizen@hum.leidenuniv.nl

PETER G.F. EVERSMAAN (1955) is Associate Professor at the Department of Theatre Studies of the University of Amsterdam and Editor-in-Chief of the FIRT/IFTR series Themes in Theatre - Collective Approaches to Theatre and Performance. His research topics include theatrical space, theatrical events and empirical audience and reception research.

<http://home.medewerker.uva.nl/p.g.f.eversmann/>
p.g.f.eversmann@uva.nl

JEANNE GAAKEER (1956) is Professor of Legal Theory specializing in literary jurisprudence, i.e. the bond between law, language and literature, at the Erasmus School of Law (Erasmus University Rotterdam) and she serves as a justice in the criminal law section of the Appellate Court of The Hague. She holds degrees in English Literature, Dutch Law and Philosophy. The focus of her writing is on interdisciplinary movements in law, and on legal methodology. She is co-founder of the European Network for Law and Literature.

http:// www.eurnll.org

<http://esl.sin-online.nl/staff/index.html?lia=492>

gaakeer@law.eur.nl

NINA GEERDINK (1983) is Lecturer in Early Modern Dutch Literature at Radboud University Nijmegen and is currently finishing her dissertation at VU University. Her research concerns the authorship of Jan Vos (1610–1667) as represented in his social poetry. Other fields of interest include early modern drama, literature and politics, reading culture, women writers and visual culture.

http://www.ru.nl/nederlands/wie_wat_waar/medewerkers/nina-geerdink/

n.geerdink@let.ru.nl

GUILLAUME VAN GEMERT (1948) is Professor of German Literature at Radboud University Nijmegen. He has published on Early Modern German literature in a European context, on German-Dutch cultural exchange, on national and cultural identity, on the interrelations of Latin and vernacular as well as on contemporary German literature.

g.v.gemert@let.ru.nl

LOUIS PETER GRIJP (1954) is head of the Documentation and Research Centre of Dutch Songs at the Meertens Institute, Amsterdam, and Professor of Dutch songs in past and present at Utrecht University. He is artistic director and lutanist of Camerata Trajectina, an ensemble for early Dutch music.

<http://www.meertens.knaw.nl/cms/nl/medewerkers/142464-louisg>

louis.grijp@meertens.knaw.nl

EDDY K. GROOTES (1936) is Emeritus Professor of Dutch Historical Literature at the University of Amsterdam. He published books and articles on Dutch 17th-century poetry, drama and prose, and editions of, e.g. Bredero and Hooft. A recent publication, together with Riet Schenkeveld-van der Dussen, is: 'The Dutch Revolt and the Golden Age', Theo Hermans (ed.), A Literary History of the Low Countries (Rochester, New York: Boydell & Brewer Ltd, 2009)

HELMER HELMERS (1977) is Lecturer in Early Modern Dutch Literature at the University of Groningen and is currently finishing his dissertation, The Royalist Republic, at the University of Leiden. He has published on Anglo-Dutch relations and cultural exchange, including articles on Dutch seventeenth-century adaptations of Shakespeare and Kyd, the Dutch Gift of 1660, and Anglo-Dutch political discourse.
h.j.helmers@rug.nl

YASCO HORSMAN (1970) is Lecturer in Literary Studies at Leiden University and author of Theaters of Justice: Judging, Staging and Working Through in Arendt, Brecht and Delbo (Stanford University Press, 2010). His research interests include: literature and psychoanalysis, law and literature, deconstruction, gender studies, literary theory, theatre studies.
<http://www.hum.leiden.edu/icd/organisation/members/horsmany.html>
y.horsman@hum.leidenuniv.nl

MADELEINE KASTEN (1956), who took her PhD in 2001 at the University of Amsterdam, is affiliated with Leiden University, where she has lectured in the Literary Studies Department since 2004. Her publications include a study of medieval allegory entitled In Search of 'Kynde Knowynge' (2007), articles on allegory ancient and modern, on Shakespeare, and on the theory and practice of literary translation.
<http://www.hum.leiden.edu/icd/organisation/members/kastenmja.html>
m.j.a.kasten@hum.leidenuniv.nl

FRANS-WILLEM KORSTEN (1959) is Professor of Literature and Society at the Erasmus School of History, Culture and Communication and at the Leiden University Institute for Cultural Disciplines. His research focuses on the relation in European history between literature, political theory, economics and law, with special interests in the role of theatricality in these domains and the baroque nature of the seventeenth-century Dutch Republic.
<http://www.eshcc.eur.nl/korsten/>
f.w.a.korsten@hum.leidenuniv.nl

STEFAN VAN DER LECQ (1983) was a Ph.D. candidate in Literary Studies at Leiden University. Both his master's thesis and his Ph.D. research focussed on the construction and deconstruction of sovereignty on the early modern stage, particularly in the plays of Christopher Marlowe.

svdleccq@gmail.com

BETTINA NOAK (1968) is Scientific Project Researcher at the Free University of Berlin and member of the research group Topics and Tradition (DFG – German Research Foundation). Her special interests are the Dutch and German structures of knowledge between 1600 and 1700. Her recent publications include Jan Konst, Inger Leemans, Bettina Noak (eds.), Niederländisch-Deutsche Kulturbeziehungen 1600–1830 (Göttingen: V&R unipress, 2009).

<http://www.geisteswissenschaften.fu-berlin.de/we04/Mitarbeiter/bnoak/index.html>

bnoak@zedat.fu-berlin.de

JAMES A. PARENTE, Jr. is Professor of German, Scandinavian and Dutch, and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts at the University of Minnesota. He is specialized in medieval, Renaissance and baroque literature. In 1987, he published Religious Drama and the Humanist Tradition.

<https://apps.cla.umn.edu/directory/profiles/paren001>

paren001@umn.edu

JÜRGEN PIETERS (1969) is Professor of Literary Theory at Ghent University. His fields of interest are the history of poetics and aesthetics, theoretical issues surrounding the discipline of literary history and Dutch seventeenth-century literature and culture. His most recent book is entitled Historische letterkunde vandaag en morgen (Amsterdam: AUP, 2011). He is currently preparing, together with Lise Gosseye, a Dutch introduction to the theory and the reading practice of New Historicism.

<http://www.nederlandseliteratuur.ugent.be/personeel/pieters>

jurgen.pieters@ugent.be

JUDITH POLLMANN (1964) is Professor of the History and Culture of the Dutch Republic at Leiden University. She has published widely on the religious and cultural history of the early modern Low Countries. She is currently directing the NWO-VICI research project Tales of the Revolt.

Memory, Oblivion and Identity in the Low Countries, 1566–1700 (www.earlymodernmemory.org).

<http://www.hum.leiden.edu/history/staff/pollmann.html>
j.pollmann@hum.leidenuniv.nl

MARCO PRANDONI (1978) teaches Dutch Language and Literature at the University of Padua and Dutch Language at the University of Naples. His fields of interest include Dutch theatre of the Golden Age, humanistic culture and contemporary Dutch literature. He is co-editor of a new Literary History of the Low Countries in Italian.

marco.prandoni@unipd.it

MARIA A. SCHENKEVELD-VAN DER DUSSEN (1937) is Emeritus Professor of Dutch Literature of the 16th-19th Centuries at Utrecht University. She has published books, articles and editions on (theatrical) poetics, poetry and literary history. Recent publications: together with E.K. Grootes, 'The Dutch Revolt and the Golden Age', Theo Hermans (ed.), A Literary History of the Low Countries (Rochester, New York: Boydell & Brewer Ltd, 2009). Co-editor of Women's Writing From the Low Countries 1200-1875 (Amsterdam: Amsterdam University Press, 2010).

m.a.schenkeveld@uu.nl

MIEKE B. SMITS-VELDT (1936) was Assistant Professor at the department of Historical Dutch Literature of the University of Amsterdam. She published several studies and articles on the history of literature and drama of the Dutch Renaissance. Among these publications is the fourth part of the Geschiedenis van de Nederlandse literatuur 1560–1700 (Een nieuw vaderland voor de muzen) (2008), together with Karel Porteman.

smitsmb@xs4all.nl

MARIJKE SPIES (1934) is Emeritus Professor of Dutch Literature at the VU University Amsterdam and of the History of Rhetoric at the University of Amsterdam. Her main fields of interest are late 16th-century and 17th-century Dutch literature and the reception of classical rhetoric in these periods.

mspies@xs4all.nl

KRISTINE STEENBERGH (1976) is Lecturer in English Literature at the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam. Her research project Moving Scenes: Theatre, Passion and the Public Sphere in Early Modern England, 1580–1642 is funded by the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research (NWO). The project explores the role of the theatre in thinking about the effect of emotions on an audience, in the context of the emerging public sphere in early modern England.

http://www.let.vu.nl/nl/organisatie-van-de-faculteit/wetenschap peilijk-personeel/medewerkers-alfabetisch/medewerkers-l-s/dr-k-steenbergh/index.asp
k.steenbergh@let.vu.nl