For Eli, my fabulous φυτόν

If you can look into the seeds of time
And say which grain will grow and which will not,
Speak, then, to me, who neither beg nor fear
Your favors nor your hate.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, Macbeth, Act I, Scene 3.

Acknowledgements

An early, short version of the text at the core of chapter 2 was published as “The Weirdness of Being in Time: Aristotle, Hegel, and Plants” in Philosophy and Rhetoric, 54(4), 2021, pp. 333–347. Chapter 3, “Cosmic [Tree] Time,” appeared as a contribution to the book, Notes on Ex-Futures, edited by Johanna Gustafsson Fürst and Asier Mendizabal (Stockholm: Praun & Guermouche, 2023). This book has been financially supported by GAIT, the Basque Government research group on “Social change, emerging forms of subjectivity, and identity in contemporary societies” (IT1469-22) to which I belong. I thank Erika Mandarino and Helena Schöb of Brill for their unwavering support for this project and the book series as a whole. With this, I hand Time Is a Plant back to time and to plants, by publishing the work, by making it publically visible—a visibility that nevertheless remains ensconced in the obscurity of everything that made it possible.
