ALPHABETICAL LIST OF DUTCH ZOOLOGICAL CABINETS AND MENAGERIES

BY

H. ENGEL

Curator of the Zoological Museum of Amsterdam

If during one's work one comes across certain names again and again, names of old collectors, of one's colleagues in earlier days, who with their private museums laid the foundation of our scientific institutions, one naturally becomes keen on knowing more about them. The results of this curiosity, collected by and by in spare time and sometimes too in time stolen from other more serious occupations, are given here to the public in the hope that they may meet their interest. As to me I thought it a pleasure and certainly worth the trouble. I first collected all that I could find in a casual way and at last I hunted for them more systematically, until the time came that circumstances put an end to it.

Incomplete though this list may be, I now send it to the press, hoping that it may give many facts and many sources unknown till now either to historians or to zoologists. When I prepared my biography of Albert Seba I met so many names of old collectors that roused my curiosity that at last I decided to make a list of them, trying to find out what sort of people they were and recording what is known about their collections. It was not easy to put a limit of time to the list, so that finally I included all Dutch collectors I could find up to the present day. If I have omitted some I hope I shall be forgiven, and that readers will provide me with the names of those omitted, that they may serve for a supplement.

First of all I collected all I could find in the rich Library of our Zoological Gardens "Natura Artis Magistra". Miss Joh. SCHEFFER, Librarian, did all she could to provide me with the continuous stream of sale-catalogues, works on shells, insects, birds etc. etc. which I wanted. Of great help was the advice of Mr H. VAN DER BIJLL, scientific assistant and of Mr H. J. WIJNMAN at the University Library of Amsterdam, where, thanks to the kind help of Mr OOSTERBAAN and his colleagues, it was possible to look through all the books of travellers who according to JACOBSEN JENSEN visited Amsterdam and the other Dutch cities. In the Library of the "Vereeniging ter Bevoordering van de Belangen des Boekhandels" at Amsterdam I obtained the very effective help of Miss E. DRONCKERS, profiting by the beautifully arranged collection of Sale Catalogues in which I found many names. It was a great surprise to me to come across the M. S. Catalogue of sale catalogues of VOSMAER 1790, of which I knew the existence, but not the place where it was kept.

I had proceeded with the checking of collections up to 1800 when the beautiful Repertorium of LUGT appeared. Although I had found some catalogues not mentioned in this work I decided to rely on it for information about the sale of collections after 1800. It would have taken more time than I could spend to consult the ever increasing number of catalogues from 1800 up to now. Moreover it was certain that the hunting for natural history collections would be less and less succesful, as the interest for such private collections decreases rapidly in the 19-th century. To Mr LUGT my thanks and compliments are due for his publication.

In the Amsterdam Archives, alas the only Archives which I could consult, I met with much kind help and information as usual. Mr. VOORTHUIJSEN acquainted me with a discovery in the "Notarieele Archieven" and with the sale catalogues preserved therein.

I had hoped by reading the older descriptions of the different towns to find out some more private collections or "Cabinets". Interesting though the stuff was, the harvest mostly proved to be nihil. He who is acquainted with this vast literature will understand why time obliged me to stop.

The special attention Dr. MACGILLAVRY gave to my subject, provided me with many new sources. I also had the experienced help of Mr. CORPORAAL; and my colleague KRUSEMAN did all he could to complete my list. Prof. SWAEN, Miss BEIJDALS, Miss MENDELS, Dr. EIJKMAN, my colleagues VAN SETERS, VAN DEINSE, BARENDRECHT they all assisted me in every way.

My colleague, Miss VAN BENTHEM JUTTING, who studied the history of the Mollusc-collections of our Museum for this Centenary-number used this list, though in statu nascendi. She kindly corrected the proofs during my absence. We could help each other with many an item.

It is thanks to the untiring interest of Professor DE BEAUFORT, Director of the Zoological Museum, that I could bring this publication to an end!

Last but not least some colleagues from abroad were so kind as to read up some books that were not attainable in Holland, viz. Prof. ARNDT in Berlin, Dr MORTENSEN in Copenhagen, Mr WINCKWORTH in London and Mr F. G. RENDALL in the British Museum.

In the list of literature given at the end I included only such publications as were often quoted, others were given in the text. Mostly the works of the persons mentioned are not included, if they do not describe the cabinet. They may easily be found in such works as BOEHMER, COBRES, DRYANDER, ENGELMANN, GRONOVIVS, or in the biographical papers. If any person had no real zoological collection (e.g. Leeuwenhoek) or did not live in Holland (e.g. Bleeker) I omitted his name.

The prefixes VAN, VAN DER, TER, DE, do not count in Dutch, so VAN DER MEULEN, must be sought under MEULEN etc. Double names have been put under the first name, though mostly the first was only later acquired. I have put the Dutch ij after i, but y after x.

- 17 AMESHOFF, Arnoldus. Amsterdam. Had menagerie on his country residence: „Amstellust", Temminck 1808—'9 (m); Temminck & Laugier 1838 I pl. 426 (m); Witkamp 1864 p. 8, 1872 p. X, 1888 p. 315 (m). He also possessed a cabinet of shells (Argenville 1780 p. 356 m).
- 18 AMSTERDAM. Early after the encircling of the town by stonewalls lions were held by the municipality (Loisel I p. 156 seq.). Swans also were kept (Witkamp 1872 p. V). The East Indian Cy had stables for the animals that the ships brought from East and West (Witkamp 1872 p. IX, 1875 p. 152). The captains of ships also often showed curious animals to the public in some tavern e. g. De Witte Olyfant, Botermarkt (announcements of the time, about 1700, in Velten: manis, tapirus; Blankaart, Collectanea Medico-Physica 1680 p. 68, elephants 1678 and 1679; Jacobaeus 1910 p. 27, stuffed rhinoceros, lynx, raccoon, civet-cat, ice-bear 1672; Witkamp 1872 p. IX, rhinoceros; id. 1875 p. 152 elephant, tiger). Many merchants kept a menagerie in their country residence. See also Blauw Jan, and Loisel 1912 II p. 50 seq., 300, 323, III p. 34. Here he mentions the menagerie of King Louis Napoleon, which under Reinwardt and G. Vrolik shortly thrived in the Hortus Botanicus, spring 1809—July 17th 1810, see also Huber 1811 p. 190—193 (v 1809). (On the Hortus Botanicus in general see Gedenkboek 1932 p. 56, 264, 393). It was not the first time this garden saw animals within its walls: Haller 1883 p. 102 (v 1726). Like in Leiden a cabinet was preserved here: Sander 1783 p. 562 (v 1777); Veryard 1701 p. 8 (v 1682) Willebrandt 1761 p. 91 (v ± 1757); Haupt 1814 I p. 294, II p. 99—101 (v 1810); Terwen 1855 p. 55; and especially Wagenaar 1765 p. 387. Animals in liquor, shells etc. were kept in the Offices of the East and West Indian Cies (Seba 1734—'65 I p. 175, II p. 135; Kanold 1727 p. 22; Mundy 1925, p. 72, v 1640 an elephant's skull in the West India house; p. 71 shell over the door of the warehouse in the E. India House; Fuchs 1916 p. 4, 10). See also Moes 1899 p. 5, 8, who mentions the collections of the "Factor von Leipzig" and a house "darinnen allerhandt schöne coquilles" which prof. Barlaeus 1646 showed to the visitor. Perhaps this last is the same collection as that mentioned by Pacichelli 1685 p. 639 (v 1674), Kanold 1727 p. 22 and Argenville 1742 p. 215—6, which later on was kept in the "Trippenhuys" as Cabinet du Roi later 's Lands Kabinet van Nat. Hist. (Gedenkboek 1932 p. 275; Muntendam 1938 p. 489, under Reinwardt and when he went to East India under Temminck and van Marum, 1815—1820) and in 1820 went to the Leiden Museum (G p. 30 a.o.).

Of course the Collegium Medicum (UBA, M. S. I H 37, II n° 1429; Gedenkboek 1932 p. 184, 250) and the Collegium Chirurgicum (UBA, M. S. II n° 1430, 1431, I C 33; Arch; Gedenkboek 1932 p. 165, 166; Nuyens 1928; see also Gedenkboek 1932 p. 284) possessed in their Anatomy-hall (Gedenkboek 1932 p. 178, 407; d'Ailly in Amstelodamum XIII 1926 p. 25; Wagenaar 1765 II p. 383, 384; Veder in Eigen Haard 1911 p. 218, 270, 292, 358, 461, 565, 764; Amstelodamum X p. VIII—IX 1912) a cabinet of anatomy and of all sorts of natural curiosities. See: Kanold 1727 p. 22; Valentinus 1714 Appendix XV, p. 52; Fuchs 1916 p. 2, 7—10; Murray 1904 I p. 145; Jaarboek Amstelodamum X 1912 p. VIII—IX; Olivier 1838 p. 101; van der Vijver 1848 II p. 9; Calixtus 1782 p. 315 (v 1651); Brown 1682 p. 22 (v 1668); Uffenbach 1754 p. 545—548 (v 1710); Thunberg 1792—'4 I p. 63 (v 1770); Grimm 1775 p. 331 (v 1774); Titius 1783 p. 190 (v 1777); Desjobert 1910 p. 206 (v 1778); Schaeffer 1794 p. 130 (v 1788); Rudolphi 1804 p. 105—'7 (v 1802); Haupt 1814 I p. 190, II p. 101 (v 1810); Hills 1816 p. 141 (v 1815); Carter 1819 p. 231 (v 1818); Anonymus 1819 p. 132 (v 1819); Otto 1825 p. 463 (v 1822); Goethe und Zelter 1913 II p. 234 (v 1823); Jaeck 1826 II p. 234 (v 1824); Duchesne 1834 p. 263 (v 1834); Horn 1831 I p. 367 (v 1830); Mac Gregor 1835 I p. 253 (v 1833 m); Gunn 1834 p. 51 (v 1834); Clausade 1835 p. 229 (v 1834); Czermak 1879 I p. 171 (v 1850): the present anatomical collections are founded on the collection of G. and W. Vrolik (Dusseau 1865).

A rarity shop is mentioned by Uffenbach 1754 II p. 417; bird shops may be found in Nierop 1932 p. 180 (Cleunenbourg); p. 191 (van der Hoff); p. 204 (Rooseboom). Likewise the yearly fair was an occasion to see curious animals living and dead (A. Fokke, De Amsterdamsche kermis. 1801 Amsterdam, p. 32; Lax 1838 p. 103, 122) and from a travelling menagerie the Amsterdam Zoological Gardens "Natura Artis Magistra", founded 1838, derived its animals, as will be described more detailed elsewhere in this number. The first zoological collection of the garden, even the first beginning of it at all, consisted in a collection of stuffed animals, especially birds, formed by R. Draak on the garret of the Municipal Orphanage, Kalverstraat, exhibited 1837 in the New Town Inn in the Plantage (Dethmar 1838—41 III p. 76), later 1838 Oct. 15 in the garden of the Zoological Society of which Draak became the first Director until 28. II. 1840, he disappeared with his collections, disagreeing with the managers. Then G. F. Westerman (1807—1890) became director and at once a new collection was started. In the guides of the Garden, in the Archives of the Garden, in the Jaarboekjes published 1852—1875, in the paper on our shell-collections by Miss van Benthem Jutting in this number, in Witkamp 1872 p. XIII, p. XIX, 1864 p. 24; Maitland 1863 p. XLIX, 1888; Leeskabinet 1845 III p. 196, IV p. 1; Kerbert 1898 p. 18 seq., and especially in Kerbert 1926 and Gedenkboek 1932 p. 509, 513 seq. much information will be found. The present status of the Museum, since 1892 combined with the Zoological Museum of the Amsterdam University will be found in Musea 1938 p. 78 n° 33. Some literature on Garden, Aquarium and Museum may be given yet: Amsterdamsch Jaarboekje 1889 p. 41; Guislain 1842 p. 92 (v 1841); van der Vijver 1848 III p. 134; Terwen 1855 p. 39, 54; Kalff 1875 I p. 152—166; Czermak 1879 p. 171 (v 1850); Horn und Kahle 1935—'37 p. 187, 314; Loisel 1907 p. 98, 1912 III p. 202, 209, 358; Kerbert 1888, 1905, 1906 etc. etc. (see elsewhere in this number).

The anatomo-zoological collections of the University were begun 1877 by W. Berlin (1825—1902), who since 1864 was Prof. Anat., but 1877, when the Athenaeum became University, Prof. Zool. (Gedenkboek 1932 p. 273—281). At once the connections with the Zoological Gardens started. Under Max Weber (1852—1937) the separation of anatomical and taxonomical collections was effected. In 1923 the first got a new building in the Zoological Gardens, the second remained in the Aquarium but their building was renewed (Gedenkboek 1932 p. 509—517).

Other collections containing zoology can be found in Musea 1938: Koloniaal Instituut p. 42, n° 16 (see also Gedenkboek 1932 p. 519); de Pinksterblom p. 49, n° 22; de Tonijn p. 73 n° 29. Moreover the zoological possessions of the Dutch Central Institute for Brain Research (Gedenkboek 1932 p. 523; C. U. Ariens Kappers, in: Methods and Problems of Medical Education 10th series, Rockefeller Foundation 1928) may be mentioned.

- 71 BLAUW JAN. Under this name was known during the 18th century (till about 1784) a tavern on the Kloveniersburgwal Amsterdam (now Gebouw v. d. Werkende Stand), where (under different owners) all sorts of living animals from foreign countries could be admired, likewise misformed men and other curiosities. The Library A contains a MS by Velten ± 1700 with pictures of the animals shown there and elsewhere. He mentions as the first owner Jan Westerhof (Westehoft) or Jan Blauw or Blauw Jan. Later on the owner was Bergmeyer (Bergmeier). An old engraving of the menagerie by Fritzsche in 1751 exists in two different editions and is often reproduced (Witkamp 1875, 1888, Loisel 1912, Kerbert 1916) another etching by Moucheron is mentioned by Meyer 1889. Animals were ordered here for the menageries at Versailles and Schönbrunn. Van der Vijver 1848 II p. 443; Witkamp 1864 p. 7, 1872 p. X, 1875, p. 151, 1888 p. 313; Meyer 1889 p. 41; Kalff 1875 p. 152; Loisel 1912 II p. 52; Kerbert 1916; Leeskabinet for 1845, vol. III p. 197 seq.

- 309 's GRAVENHAGE. Witkamp 1872 p. IV mentions old menageries of the Counts of Henegouwen in the Hague (lions 1351, falcons, boars 1344, '45), see also Loisel 1912 I p. 156, II 29. Storks were kept by the town 1586 (Moll in Die Haghe 1937). The anatomical theatre was "annesso alla chiesa cattedrale" in 1669 (Hoogewerff 1919 p. 309). Terwen 1855 p. 271 tells us it was then in the Juffr. Idastraat. Hegenitius 1630 p. 139 (▼ before 1627) saw 2 casuaries and other animals in the stables of the Stadhouder in Rijswijk near the Hague. Murray 1904 I p. 147 quotes from Granger, Hist. of England III p. 402, London 1779 and Lister Journey to Paris. London 1823 p. 82: "The States of Holland presented a collection to Charles II". Thunberg 1792—'94 I p. 19 visits 1770 the Hortus medicus. Two travellers mention sirens and satyrs in the museum (Arlincourt 1842 I p. 300, ▼ 1837, Clausade 1835 p. 173 ▼ 1834). In the Hague were the Cabinets of the Stadhouder (see Oranje, Vosmaer) and near it the menageries of the Prince (Honsholredijk, Loo). The zoological gardens (Koninklijk Zoölogisch-Botanisch Genootschap van Acclimatisatie te 's Gravenhage) was founded 1862, Dir. Dr. L. H. Verwey later R. T. Maitland, Dr A. C. Oudemans, Dr J. - 493 LEIDEN. Of course wild animals were shown on the fair (Loisel 1912 II p. 50). On the "Burcht" Jacobaeus (1910 p. 10) saw in 1650 all sorts of animals (see also Ferrner 1910 p. 462, who mentions a menagerie in 1759). Living animals were also kept during a certain time in the Botanical Gardens (Jacobaeus 1910 p. 10, v 1650; Ogier 1910 p. 266, v 1636; Brereton 1844 p. 42, v 1634; Neill 1823 p. 161, v 1817; Anonymus 1819 p. 98, v 1819). The history of the zoological teaching has been written 1926 by Van der Klaauw. It seems unnecessary to repeat here all the catalogues of the two celebrated collections of Natural History, that in the Theatrum anatomicum and that in the gallery of the Botanical Gardens. I may refer to Van der Klaauw 1926 p. 39 note 3, p. 43 note 7; Murray 1904 I p. 29, 190, 208, 287, II p. 326; Dryander 1798—1800 I p. 222—3; Boehmer 1785 I p. 380; in UBA there are many editions. Adding to the literature of the subject I may give the travellers mentioning the collections, (cf. Van der Klaauw p. 40 note 4, p. 44 note 8). The Museum in the gallery of the Hortus Botanicus (often called Museum Indicum) is mentioned by Sincerus 1649 p. 237 (m 1619); Hegenitius 1630 p. 103 (v $\pm$ 1627) Brereton 1844 p. 92 (v 1634); Ogier 1910 p. 266 (v 1636); Evelyn 1879 p. 30 (v 1641); Joly 1672 p. 131 (v 1646); Jacobaeus 1910 p. 10 (v 1650); Birken 1668 p. 198 (m 1661); Ray 1738 I p. 31 (v 1663); Monconys 1666 p. 151 (v 1663); Lucae 1854 p. 78 (m $\pm$ 1665); Hoogewerff 1919 p. - 497 LENNEP, VAN. This large family (Nederlands Adelsboek 1921 etc. etc.) had many members interested in natural history. It was not always possible to find out which member was meant by some short note in literature. Vosmaer 1790 mentions the sale of a cabinet David v. L. Amsterdam 1771 (1771 died Mr. David van Lennep "Commissaris, raad, schepen, weesmeester", Haarlem, 3. X. 1721—20. V. 1771). Argenville 1780 p. 357 speaks of an important collection of birds of a Van Lennep in Haarlem and in 1776 the Hollandsche Maatschappij in Haarlem got a collection of birds and stuffed mammals from her deceased Director the above mentioned David van Lennep (Muntendam 1938 p. 470). Cramer 1779—'82 I p. 86, 94, 146, II 3, 11, 16, 18, 21, speaks of Jacob Cornelis Sylvius van Lennep, probably a son of David mentioned above who married a Miss Sylvius, though I could not trace him in the genealogy. Cramer says he was a brother of the following Cornelis (son of David) and after his death his cabinet of insects went to that brother.

- 498 LENNEP, Mr Cornelis VAN. Haarlem 22. II. 1751—Amsterdam 1. II. 1813. "Commissaris der Stad Amsterdam" etc. (Nederl. Adelsboek 1921 p. 75). He collected insects, got the collection of his brother (preceding) and also possessed a cabinet of shells and zoophytes. - 630 ORANJE. The Princes of Oranje, Stadhouders of Holland (Maurits 1567—1625, Frederik Hendrik 1584—1647, Willem II 1626—'50, Willem III 1650—1702, Willem IV 1711—'51, Willem V 1748—1806) were all more or less interested in animals. They possessed a menagerie or a cabinet and the Officers of the East and West Indian Companies offered them the curious animals the ships brought to Holland. In 1795 the French brought everything of importance to Paris. In 1813, after the restoration of the Kingdom, King William I received back an adequate collection, which Brugmans selected in Paris, gave his collections to the Leiden University where they formed the beginning of the Rijksmuseum van Natuurlijke Historie (see also G p. 10, 23—28). The Amsterdam zoological gardens have enjoyed the interest and protection of our Kings William I, II, III and of Queen Wilhelmina. There is still a collection in the possession of the House of Oranje and much about the old ones can yet be found in the Huisarchief. While I have dealt with the menageries s. v. Honselaersdijk, Loo, Soestdijk, I here only mention the cabinet of shells of Prince Maurits (Brom 1915 p. 126 v 1677—78) and the "Kabinet des Stadhouders". It was founded 1756 (Argenville 1780 p. 338) by the Widow of Willem IV, "Mevrouw de Gouvernante", who bought Vosmaer's cabinet and made him director of it, later on the cabinet Lassara and others were bought. The Cabinet was situated since Sept. 1766 in the N. E. edge of the Buitenhof, opposite the Palace of the Stadhouders. (Die Haghe 1933 p. 54 seq., 122; Oud Holland X 1892 note 1 p. 224). Vosmaer 1800 p. 34 n°. 153 mentions a catalogue, perhaps M. S., made 1778 for the Princess. As is well known he described many animals in Vosmaer 1766—1804 of which many passed from the menagerie in the cabinet. He probably had a clerk at his disposition named G. C. Blanken, who figures as subscriber in a book of the time. Pallas often studied in menagerie and cabinet; Pallas 1766₁ p. - 722 ROTTERDAM. Here again the fair is the place where many wild animals were shown (Brown 1682 p. 4, v 1668, lions, leopards; Witkamp 1872 p. VIII repeats this; Evelyn 1879 p. 27 v 1641: elephant; Dethmar 1838—'41 p. 127). The last mentions a piece of wood with shipworms in the "Beurs" (Exchange).

The anatomy-hall of course contained anatomical collections (see: de Bils, Aan alle ware liefhebbers der anatomie, Rotterdam 1659 in UBA, inciting to the foundation of an anat. cabinet) and other things (hair of Mary Stuart, Haupt 1814 p. 282; Uffenbach 1754 p. 309 (v 1710); Honoré 1779 p. 28 (v 1776); Björnsthål 1782 p. 363 (v 1775); Schaeffer 1794 p. 108 (v 1788); Haupt 1814 p. 282 (v 1810); Meiszner 1819 p. 83 (v 1817 "comical anatom-theatre"); Horn 1831 p. 344 (v 1830); Mac Gregor 1835 p. 141, 264 (v 1833). In 1740 a catalogue was issued (UBA), mentioned by Vosmaer under A. Later on Rotterdam had a complete medical school like other towns (Terwen 1855 p. 268).

The druggist-guild also possessed all sorts of natural curiosities (Cohen, in: Pharmac. Weekbl. n° 5 1930 p. 94).

Of course we must mention the "Bataafsch Genootschap voor de Proef-ondervindelijke Wijsbegeerte", founded 1771 by Steven Hoogendijk. It issued "Verhandelingen" since 1774. (Vrolik in Versl. K. Akad. Wet. Amsterdam V p. 36). It is mentioned by Honoré 1779 p. 286 (v 1776); Sander 1783 p. 469, 477 (v 1177); Björnsthål 1782 V p. 360 (v 1775); Haupt 1814 p. 286 (v 1810); Meiszner 1819 p. 9 (v 1817); Fliedner 1831 p. 393 (v 1823—'24); Mac Gregor 1835 p. 138 (v 1833); Dethmar 1838—'41 p. 109 (v 1835); Beets 1932—'33 p. 80; Nyegaard 1929 p. 146 (v 1836). It seems however that this Society was not specially interested in natural curiosities. The Zoo: "Rotterdamsche Diergaarde" was begun in 1855. Jaarbericht 1868—'69, tevens bevattende de korte Geschiedenis, p. 163; Jaarbericht II 1869—'71; also in Der Zoolog. Since 1927 Rotterdam possesses a beautiful Natuurhistorisch Museum "Wethouder Hoffmann" (Musea 1938 p. 249, n° 190; Lempke 1936 p. 245).

The cabinet of the Erasmiaansch Gymnasium is worth mentioning.

According to Argenville 1742 his collections came via Schijnvoet and Vincent Posthumus to the town of Amsterdam but 1780 he corrects this. It was Schijnvoet who took care that the book was published as is clear from the text. It is certain that Rumphius sold shells in 1682 to Cosimo III de Medici of Toscane. Le collezioni di Giorgio Ev. - 780 SEBA, Albertus. 2. V. 1665. Etzel—Amsterdam 2. V. 1736. Apothecary in Amsterdam. Author of the well-known Thesaurus (Seba 1734—'65), in which he described his cabinets. The first he sold 1717 to Czar Peter of Russia, the second was sold long after his death on 14. IV. 1752 seq. in Amsterdam. In Svenska Linné—Sällskapetets Årsskrift, XX, 1937 p. 75—100 I have collected all I know about him, so may refer to that paper and add here some omissions: Kort verslag Wetensch. Werkz.heden verr. d. Leden v. d. Commissie v. Bijdr. t. d. Dierk., Verg. 21. III and IV of the Thesaurus; In the Family-Archives Vosmaer, where I was kindly admitted there are many important letters on the edition of the Thesaurus: Pallas and Houttuijn assisted Vosmaer, Houttuijn made the Dutch Index, the French translation was made by Dr. Ducloux under the supervision of Allamand, after Massuet in Amsterdam had begun the work. It follows from these Archives without doubt that Vosmaer edited about half the third and the whole fourth part of the Thesaurus; Pallas 1766 p. 219 (Boddaert 1768 p. 274); Argenville 1742 p. 216; 1757 p. 147; 1780 p. 349; Lesser 1744 p. 55—56, 1756 p. 73—75, a poem he had destined for Seba's III vol., but which reached him after his death, so that it was not used; Valentijn 1754 p. 27, 45, 48, 49, 51, 52, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67; Houttuijn 1761—'73, 4 p. 326; Björnsthål 1782 V p. 416 (v 1775); Sander 1783 I p. 522 (v 1776); *Dict. - 845 SWAMMERDAM, Jan. Amsterdam, 12 II. 1637—17. II. 1680, son of preceding. Dr. med. (1667). His constitution was weak so that he never practised as a physician. Devoted himself wholly to scientific investigations, especially on insects. Lived with his father, but had a cabinet of his own. The Grand-duke of Toscane offered f 1200 for it, if he himself followed thither, but Swammerdam refused (1668). When later on (1675—76) he hoped to live in silence he tried in vain to sell it. He had taken the resolution to sell the cabinet in May 1680 when he died in February. Boerhaave in his Preface (b) to the Biblia Naturae of Swammerdam (1737—'38, 2 vol.) says nothing about the cabinet. Thevenot got the manuscripts and heiress was Margarita Volckers, wife of Dr. med. Daniel de Hoest. Whether she got the cabinet? His relation to her is not clear; Collot 1844 VII p. 187, 190, 192, 194, 198, 401; Van der Aa 1852—'78 X (b); Molhuysen 1911—'37 IX p. 1021 (b); Harting in: Album der Natuur 1876 p. 1 (b); Lidth de Jeude. Oratio... 21. Thanks to the activity of Lidth de Jeude Utrecht had a zoological garden (later "Tivoli"). Terwen 1855 p. 128—9; Witkamp 1864 II p. 27; Dethmar 1838—'41 p. 60—61 (v 1835—'37); Guislain 1842 p. 93 (v 1841). The zoological institute was and is housed in the ancient "Statenkamer", Janskerkhof and of course a zoological collection was made here. It was visited 1850 by Czermak (1879 p. 164) and 1879 by Blasius (1880 p. 26). See also Terwen 1855 p. 128 etc.

Of course the Veterinary school had and has cabinets of its own. Horn 1831 p. 381 (v 1830); Dethmar 1838—'41 IV p. 73 (v 1835—'37) and Guislain 1842 p. 90 (v 1841) mention them.

- 932 VOET, Joan Eugenius. Dordrecht 24. I. 1706—'28. IX. 1778. Son of Carel Burchart preceding. Physician. Dordrecht. He also possessed a cabinet, especially shells and insects, about which he edited his Catalogus systematicus coleopterorum 2 vol. (Latin, French, Dutch 1766, with new title page 1806). He mentions his own cabinet in I p. 27. When Valentijn left Dordrecht Voet took his place in the Dordrecht Malacological Society (Liefhebbers van Neptunus Cabinet), see Valentijn 1726 III p. 563; He is mentioned also by Valentijn 1754 p. 47. His shells were sold 1779 in the Hague. (Vosmaer 1790); Molhuysen 1911—'37 X Kol. 1127 (b).
- 933 VOET, Dr. Carel Burchart, son of Joan Eugenius preceding. Physician. 's Gravenhage. He also had a cabinet especially insects, as his father mentions it: Voet 1806 I p. 8, 11, 16, 17, 20, 22, 23, 26, 31, 32, 46. See also: Houttuyn 1761—'73 I 13, p. 175—6; Argenville 1780 p. 337 (elle embrasse les productions des trois règnes, mais les insectes s'y distinguent principalement), 346; Anonymus 1767 p. 328; Cramer 1779—'82 I p. 5 Introd.; Pallas 1767—'77 VI p. 3, IX p. 83; Schaeffer 1794 who visited the Hague 1787—'88 mentions a cabinet of minerals of Voet; G p. 30.

- 941 VOSMAER, Aernout, Rotterdam 23. X. 1720—'s Gravenhage 15. I. 1799. He was Director of the menageries and of the "Natuur- en Kunstcabinetten des Stadhouders" which were founded by the Widow of Prince Willem IV in 1756 after she had bought Vosmaer's own cabinet (see s. v. Oranje). It was continued under Willem V, who was much interested in it and made Vosmaer "Raad" between 1778 and 1783. Vosmaer described many of the animals under his care in his work: Natuurkundige Beschrijving eener uitmuntende Verzameling etc. Amsterdam 1766—1804 (also French edition). They were mostly founded on animals that had lived in the menageries (see s. v. Loo) especially on "het Kleine Loo" near 's Gravenhage. The honours gradually bestowed on the author show how his scientific importance increased. There can be found much more about Vosmaer in the Koninklijk Huisarchief and in the Archives of the family Vosmaer in Leiden, as I know from kind informations of Mr. C. J. J. G. Vosmaer. Van der Aa 1852—'78 XI (b); Collot 1844 VII p. 246—'52; Konst- en Letterbode 25. I. 1799, n° 265 p. 25; De Navorscher 1857 p. 159 (vr. 208, 308), 1858 n° 18/19. Of course he was often visited, referring to: Oranje, I may add here: Ferrner 1910 p. 354, 495 (▼ 1759); Garampi 1889 p. 204 (▼ 1761 '63); Beckmann 1912 p. 344 (▼ 1762, much important information!); Björnståhl 1782 p. 367, 416 (▼ 1774); Grimm 1775 p. 290 (▼ 1774); Honoré 1779 p. 59 (▼ 1776); Sander 1783 I p. 486, 489, 491 (▼ 1777); refers to Catal. Library of Crevenna, Italian Merchant in Amsterdam 1775; Titius 1783 p. 204—'13 (▼ 1777); Forster 1843 p. 88—9 (▼ 1778). He is also mentioned by Strick 1818 p. 197; Francq 1769—1811 III p. 180; Argenville

- 1780 p. 338, 341; Pallas 1766, p. XV, 158, 193 (Boddaert 1768 p. XXXVI, 198, 240); 1766₂ p. X, 5—6, 118 (Boddaert 1770 I p. VIII, IV p. 9); Houttuijn 1761—'73 4 p. 326, 18 p. XI; Van der Aa 1852—'78 s.v. Jan van Lier; Loisel 1912 II p. 32, 34, 53, 303. Vosmaer often helped Meuschen in editing his catalogues (see n° 3 Oudaan 1766, which contains a Systema testaceorum of his hand p. 52, see also p. 53—57); he edited part III and IV of Seba's Thesaurus (1734—'65) as is certain through letters in the family archives between V. and Van Homrigh; the work of Renard, Hist. Nat. d. plus rares curiosités de la mer des Indes 1754 was edited through his care. Pallas 1767—'77 VI p. 11 quotes: A. Vosmaer, Geslagten der Vogelen Amsterdam 1758 in 8 vol.
- The M. S. catalogue which Vosmaer made of the sales of Cabinets in his time is now in B (see also p. 248 of this paper). The sale catalogue of his books (in A, also Lugt 1938 n° 6039) sold 17. III—I. IV. 1800 in his house (Hooge Nieuwstraat), shows us the richness of his library. We especially refer to p. 86 n° 367, 368 (earlier sales? 1764 and 1765), p. 88 n° 388, p. 426, 427 (his cabinets).
