Foreword

I would like to address words of appreciation and thanks to the guest editors and all authors of Issues 16:2 and 17:1 dealing with the study of international migrations in Southeast Asia. Readers will discover in this issue the second part and conclusions of their substantial contributions under this theme.

In addition, readers will also be able to consult two very interesting miscellaneous contributions dealing respectively with pollution issues in China, and with Japan and free trade agreements in the Asia-Pacific region.
