BRILL

ERASMUS STUDIES 41 (2021) 1

ERASMUS STUDIES

brill.com/eras

Editor's Preface

Well, if you're reading this, you're still alive, and that's a triumph. 2020 was a year of no Erasmus lectures, and that's the least of its defects. We do have a nice selection of articles and book reviews to offer you in this first number of volume 41 of our journal, on a range of literary, hermeneutic, and ideological issues. I especially recommend to your attention Bill Regier's piece on the missing adages, where he invites our feedback. Here's mine: how about non fulget gemma in sterquilino, quod in anulo (ep. 126 Allen line 246)? Anyone else have any suggestions? Barring some further catastrophes, we will reconvene for RSA virtual. We'll be running the same Erasmus lineup as was scheduled for Philadelphia. See you there.

Eric MacPhail

Professor of French, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN, USA