The editors of Lithuanian Historical Studies welcome the submission of works on any aspects related to the history of Lithuania previously not published in English and not submitted for publication in that language elsewhere.

The manuscripts should be prepared in the form accepted in LHS or any major historical journal. Articles (not exceeding 10,000 words) should be preceded by an abstract (of ca 300 words) and followed by a short biographical statement (ca 100 words), containing the names and affiliation of the author(s), their education, degrees obtained, authorship (of monographs and articles), fields of scholarly interest/research, office address (including e-mail), to which a complimentary copy of this journal could be sent. Book reviews should not normally exceed 1,000 words in length.

Authors are asked to send a copy of their contribution in electronic form (preferably in Microsoft Word, rich text format). Submitted articles are reviewed by two experts.

The Editorial Board would be glad to receive any comments and criticisms contributors and readers might have concerning this publication.
