Publisher's Note

Brill would like to inform the readers of Mnemosyne that after more than six years of excellent editorial work, Christoph Pieper has stepped down as the executive editor of the journal Mnemosyne and the book series Mnemosyne Supplements. After the retirement of Gerard Boter, Christoph Pieper succeeded in continuing in the same excellent manner as his predecessor. He played an important role in maintaining the high standards of the journal and developing the journal as a forum for innovative research in classical literature. Under his guidance, the journal changed the way in which important books in the field are reviewed: the book review section, with its somewhat haphazard selection and short reviews, was abandoned and the journal moved towards extensive review articles of key publications in the field. Furthermore, in the six years of his editorship, Christoph Pieper has been highly praised for the kind and at the same time meticulous way in which he responded to authors and maintained the quality of the journal’s content. We are very happy that he will remain a member of the editorial board.

We are very pleased to announce that Jacqueline Klooster (University of Groningen) has been appointed as his successor and has taken up this role very expeditiously already. We warmly welcome her as the new executive editor of Mnemosyne and wish her all the best in this new position.

Additionally, we would like to seize the opportunity to inform our readers that as of 2023, Mnemosyne will be published in seven issues per year instead of six. This is testament to the flourishing state of the journal and its role as a platform for innovative research in the field of Classical Literature.
