

Call for Proposals

On (De)Coloniality: Curriculum Within and Beyond the West

Series Editor:

João M. Paraskeva, School of Education,
University of Massachusetts Dartmouth, USA

About the series:

This series aims to present the latest research across the field of education and curriculum theory, policy, and reform. It is a space, as Santos would put it, for ‘alternative ways to think and to do education and curriculum alternatively’, as it attempts to bring to the fore critical transformative analysis blending critical and post critical Eurocentric approaches and non-Western/non-Eurocentric epistemological frameworks within and beyond the field of education; it seeks to provide a just coverage of theories responsive to the world’s epistemological diversity. We welcome ‘just itinerant conversations’ that excavate new intellectual rivers and non-aligned approaches and, in so doing, introducing a new language that helps to open up the dominant Eurocentric matrix of educational and curriculum reasoning.

Both monographs and edited volumes between 50.000 and 100.000 words are welcome.

Please send book proposals or inquires to the series editors, João M. Paraskeva or the Publisher, Evelien van der Veer. More details on the series: brill.com/cwbw.