

Instruction document 3: Complex searches in Brill's Jacoby Online

In this manual, we will show more advanced combinations of searches that can be made in the Jacoby online.

In the second document, we showed that adding ~1 after a word allowed for a one letter deviation. This search option can also be used for a whole phrase. For example, adding ~1 after the phrase "Perikles of Athens" signifies that there may be a one word deviation:

This will return the earlier search result but also another, with two additional words : “Perikles’ optimistic assessment of Athens...”

An asterisk can be combined with other search options. For example, we might search for all instances of a form of the verb λέγω or εἶπον, by searching λέγ* | εἶπ*. This will, of course, return a very large number of results:
