River-Sand Mining:

An Ethnography of Resource Conflict in China

Qian Zhu,
Sun Yat-sen University

Anyone who cares about the environment cannot ignore the overmining of river-sand. This book explores how river sand in Zhuang villages in China has been overexploited with disastrous environmental (or social and environmental) consequences, despite official state ownership of the sand, national and local laws regulating mining, and peasant resistance.

READERSHIP: The primary readership is anthropology and sinology and environmental humanities students, researchers in the same fields of study, Chinese policymakers and government officials.

NEW AND FORTHCOMING PUBLICATIONS

Scholars and Their Marginalia in Late Imperial China

Yinzong Wei, Wuhan University

The first book on the “marginalia culture” of late Imperial China, this study introduces the features of marginalia, examines scholars’ reading practices and scholarly style centred on marginalia and explores how this “marginalia culture” shaped Chinese texts and scholars’ thought.

READERSHIP: Scholars and students of Asian studies, and those who interested in Chinese intellectual history.

The Chinese Gazette in European Sources

Joining the Global Public in the Early and Mid-Qing Dynasty

Nicolas Standaert

By looking at China from the periphery, this study shows how European sources offer a unique way of expanding the knowledge about the gazette of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Its interconnected history illustrates how the Chinese gazette, as translated by European missionaries, became a major source for reflections on state and society by Enlightenment thinkers.

READERSHIP: Historians interested in China and the spread of its history to Europe; intercultural history; book and publication history, history of newspapers; Qing historians; historians of the European Enlightenment and early modern European intellectual history.

European Expansion and Indigenous Response, 37

Hans Holbein’s Triumphs (1532–1534), commissioned for the headquarters of the Hanseatic League in London and Kano Naizen’s The Portuguese namban (‘foreigners’) painted in 1543 in Japan are representations of worlds of trade, where wealth, speculation, exploitation, poverty, curiosity, encounters and the exotic relate effortlessly. These worlds multiplied in Africa, the Americas, Asia and Europe as mercantile cultures met in a globalizing world.

READERSHIP: This book will be appropriate to academic readers, at undergraduate and graduate level, as well as students and knowledgeable readers. Some of the chapters will be particularly interesting for a general non-academic readership.

European Expansion and Indigenous Response, 36

The Bourbon monarchs who ascended the Spanish throne in 1700 attempted to reform the colonial system they had inherited, and, in particular, to make administration more efficient and cost-effective. This book analyses one aspect of the Bourbon reforms, which was the efforts to transform frontier missions, to make the missions more cost-effective, and to accelerate the integration of indigenous peoples in northern Mexico to European cultural norms. In some instances, the Crown had funded missions for more than a century, but with minimal results.

READERSHIP: This study will be of interest to specialists in historical demography, colonial Latin American history, the history of the indigenous peoples of the Americas, and Borderlands history.
READERSHIP: Students and scholars of medieval European social and religious history; those interested in dissent from the Catholic Church in the West before the Reformation.

This volume brings to English-language readers, for the first time, the most recent European scholarship, based on primary research, in the medieval movements of religious dissent known as “Waldensian”. It charts the movement across Europe from the 12th – 16th centuries.

Hague Yearbook of International Law / Annuaire de La Haye de Droit International
Volume 32 (2019)
Edited by Jure Vidmar, Maastricht University, and Ruth Bonnevalle-Kok, University of Aruba

With the entrance of the European Union into the field of International Investment Law and Arbitration, a new specialist field of law, namely ‘European Investment Law and Arbitration’ is in the making. This new field of law draws on EU Law, Public International Law, International Investment Law, International Arbitration Law and Practice and International Economic Law, while other fields of law such as Energy Law are also relevant.

The European Yearbook promotes the scientific study of nineteen European supranational organisations and the OECD. Each volume contains a detailed survey of the history, structure and yearly activities of each organisation and an up-to-date chart providing a clear overview of the member states of each organisation.

The aim of the Hague Yearbook of International Law is to offer a platform for review of new developments in the field of international law. In addition, it devotes attention to developments in the international law institutions based in the international City of Peace and Justice, The Hague.

Private International Law
Idealism, Pragmatism, Eclecticism

Symeon C. Symeonides, Willamette University College of Law

This book compares the two golden ages of private international law (PIL): the first is the era of Story and Savigny in the nineteenth century, while the second comprises the last fifty years. The period between 1970 and 2020 has been one of rapid changes and dense legislative responses, exemplified by the adoption of over one hundred national PIL codifications and almost as many international or regional conventions and regulations. These instruments provide a rich source for this book’s incisive and instructive comparisons and a fertile ground for a reliable assessment of the progress of PIL as a discipline.

Vol 2: Geographical Index — A Country Directory of Secretariats and Memberships
Vol 3: Global Action Networks — A Subject Directory and Index
Vol 4: International Organization Bibliography and Resources
Vol 5: Statistics, Visualizations and Patterns
Vol 6: Global Civil Society and the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals
Geopolitics and International Relations

Grounding World Politics Anew

Edited by David Criekemans, University of Antwerp

Although we live in a globalised world, territorially embedded factors are highly relevant in such domains as security, economy, energy, environment, politics & diplomacy. Today’s analysts of world affairs are often loosely referring to ‘geopolitics’, but do not always clearly define it. This book therefore offers a necessary framework: an introduction into the main components of geopolitical analysis, an overview of the main geopolitical schools of thought, as well as reflections on how technology and geopolitics affect each other in economy, energy and security.

READERSHIP: Academics, students, and practitioners of geopolitics and international relations, in addition to people coming from other relevant fields, such as historians, geographers, economists, political scientists, psychologists, specialists in international law, etc.

Ministries of Foreign Affairs in the World

Actors of State Diplomacy

Christian Lequesne, Sciences Po Paris

Ministries of foreign affairs are prominent institutions at the heart of state diplomacy. Although they have lost their monopoly on the making of national foreign policies, they still are the operators of key practices associated with diplomacy: communication, representation and negotiation. Often studied in a monographic way, ministries of foreign affairs are undergoing an adaptation of their practices that require a global approach. This book fills a gap in the literature by approaching ministries of foreign affairs in a comparative and comprehensive way.

READERSHIP: All interested in the organization of diplomacy and foreign policymaking. The target group includes academics and think tankers, but also diplomats and NGOs.
Aramaic Bowl Spells
Jewish Babylonian Aramaic Bowls Volume Two
Edited by Shaul Shaked, James Nathan Ford, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, and Siam Bhayro, University of Exeter

This volume presents editions of fifty-five Jewish Babylonian Aramaic magic bowls from the Schøyen Collection, with accompanying introductions, translations, philological notes, photographs and indices. The themes covered are magical seals and signet-rings.

READERSHIP: All interested in Aramaic and Semitics, as well as those interested in the history and religion of the Near East in Late Antiquity and magic in general.

Land and Spirituality in Rabbinic Literature

A Memorial Volume for Yaakov Elman

Edited by Shana Strauch Schick, Shalem College

This volume is devoted to the texts, traditions, and practices of the Land of Israel from the end of the Second Temple period through late antiquity. Based upon a conference organized by the Yeshiva University Center for Israel Studies, this collection uses a range of critical methodologies and sources, including the Palestinian and Babylonian Talmudim, archaeology, and Samaritan and Jewish liturgical poetry. It presents a vibrant, complex, and multi-layered series of snapshots of rabbinic culture, written by leading contemporary scholars.

READERSHIP: This book will be of interest to academics in the fields of rabbinic literature, critical textual readings of the development of rabbinic texts, aggada and midrash, and philology.

Ten Lectures on a Diachronic Constructionalist Approach to Discourse Structuring Markers

Elizabeth Closs Traugott, Stanford University

To date little work has been done on pragmatics within cognitive linguistics, especially from a historical perspective. The lectures presented in this volume give the first systematic account of how pragmatics can be incorporated into cognitive linguistics using a Diachronic Construction Grammar perspective. The author combines detailed study of the historical development of Discourse Structuring Markers like all the same, after all and by the way and propose ways in which to model them.

READERSHIP: Advanced undergraduates and graduate students. Cognitive linguists and historical linguists.

The Religion and Rituals of the Nomads of Pre-Islamic Arabia

A Reconstruction Based on the Safaitic Inscriptions

Ahmad Al-Jallad, The Ohio State University and University of Groningen

This book approaches the religion and rituals of the pre-Islamic Arabian nomads using the Safaitic inscriptions. Unlike Islamic-period literary sources, this material was produced by practitioners of traditional Arabian religion; the inscriptions are eyewitnesses to the religious life of Arabian nomads prior to the spread of Judaism and Christianity across Arabia. The author attempts to reconstruct this world using the original words of its inhabitants, interpreted through comparative philology, pre-Islamic and Islamic-period literary sources, and the archaeological context.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in the religion and culture of pre-Islamic Arabia and the ancient Near East.

Arabic Oration:
_Art and Function_
_Tahera Qutbuddin_

In _Arabic Oration: Art and Function_, Tahera Qutbuddin presents a comprehensive theory of this foundational prose genre, analysing its oral aesthetics and its political, military, and religious functions in early Islamic civilization, tracing its echoes in Muslim public address today.

READERSHIP: The book is aimed at a wide readership: all interested in classical Arabic literature, also Islamic history, Qur’an, government, preaching, Shi’ism, virtue ethics, gender studies, orality, and the contemporary Middle East.

Muqarnas 38
Edited by Gülru Necipoğlu and Maria J. Metzler

Muqarnas 38 begins by considering a curious Kufic-inscribed block in the eleventh-century church of Wuqro Cherqos in Ethiopia. The next articles focus on a monument and manuscript in India, gardens in Kabul, Ottoman Tunisia, and twentieth-century photography. In the Notes and Sources section, new data for reconstructing the luster tilework decoration of the tomb chamber of ‘Abd al-Samad’s shrine in central Iran is presented. The final essay is an exhaustive study of the five muqarnas capitals in the Alhambra.

In the period following the 2nd World War, Saudi Arabia – a curious fusion of medieval theocracy, unruly dictatorship and extrovert wealth - has been called a country of ‘superlatives.’ The modernisation of the Kingdom’s oil industry has been a smooth process: its oilfields are highly sophisticated. However, social modernisation has not kept pace. ‘Reform’, long a preoccupation among the Peninsula’s leaders does not necessarily go hand in hand with religion.

With its focus on wartime sexual violence, this book examines the traumatic memories of wartime rape in context of contemporary theories of war. The translated testimonials of the raped women of the Bangladesh war emphasize the importance of critical discussion on gendered violence, war trauma, and the restructuring of policies regarding recovery and rehabilitation of the war victims, especially in the global South.

READERSHIP: The CAIW series is relevant reading for all interested in the recent history of the Arabian Gulf. The politics, and the economics that have developed so rapidly. Graduate and post-graduate students, libraries, research institutes, government departments, diplomats and NGOs will all find it a valuable resource.

Mill’s Principle of Utility
Origins, Proof, and Implications
Revised and Enlarged Edition
Necip Fikri Aican

The aim of this book is to analyze the problem of the intensity of forms in the late Middle Ages and to show how this debate eventually gave rise to a new metaphysical project in the 14th century: the project of quantifying the different types of perfections existing in the universe – that is the project of “measuring being”.

READERSHIP: The audience comprises philosophers and other scholars in the humanities, primarily professors and graduate students. The book can serve both as course material and as a supplementary reference.

La mesure de l’être
Le problème de la quantification des formes au Moyen Âge (ca. 1250–1370)
Sylvain Roudaut,
Stockholm University

This volume of essays on the philosopher John Sallis assesses his wide ranging and genuinely original contribution to philosophy. Along with the response to the essays by Sallis, these essays indicate directions for the future of philosophy.

READERSHIP: This book would be of interest to graduate students and researchers in the area of contemporary Continental philosophy.

Philosophy, Art, and the Imagination
Essays on the Work of John Sallis

Understanding the Evolving Meaning of Reason in David Novak’s Natural Law Theory
Jonathan L. Milevsky, Tanenbaum Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto

How can one Jewish thinker’s natural law theory explain morality, divine commandments, and human ordinances; and how do we assess the consistency of that theory when it is mentioned in connection with such diverse areas? The answer lies in the changing meaning of reason in Novak’s writings.

READERSHIP: My book will be relevant to academics, including graduate students and post-graduates interested in modern Jewish thought. In addition, this book would be of interest to members of Jewish-Christian dialogue groups and motivated readers intrigued by the philosophy of Judaism.

Today’s analysts of world affairs are often loosely referring to ‘geopolitics’, but do not always clearly define it. This book therefore offers a necessary introduction into the main components of geopolitical analysis, an overview of the main geopolitical schools of thought, as well as reflections on technology and geopolitics. In addition, empirical studies showcase innovative approaches.

Hebrews
R. Hollis Gause

This commentary, written from a distinctively Pentecostal perspective, is primarily for pastors, lay persons and Bible students. It is based upon the best scholarship, written in popular language, and communicates the meaning of the text with minimal technical distractions. The authors offer a running exposition on the text and extended comments on matters of special significance for Pentecostals. They acknowledge and interact with alternative interpretations of individual passages. This commentary also provides periodic opportunities for reflection upon and personal response to the biblical text.
