Of Worlds and Artworks
A Relational View on Artistic Practices from Africa and the Diaspora
Edited by Ute Fendler, Marie-Anne Kohl, Gilbert Shang Ndi, Christopher Joseph Odhiambo, and Clarissa Vierke

This book brings together 13 contributions which reflect upon the relation between worlds and arts from Africa, the Black Atlantic and the Indian Ocean. How do alternative worlds emerge in configurations of literature, visual arts, performance, art curation and film?
In Prophet, Intermediary, King: The Dynamics of Mediation in the Biblical World and Old Babylonian Mari, Julie B. Deluty investigates the mediation of prophecy for kings in biblical narratives and the Old Babylonian corpus from Mari. In many cases, the prophet's message is delivered through a third party—sometimes a royal official or family member—who may exercise a degree of autonomy in the transmission of the words. Drawing on social network theory, the book highlights the importance of third-party intermediaries in the process of communication that lies at the core of biblical and ancient Near Eastern prophecy. Recognition of the place of non-prophetic intermediaries in a monarchical system offers a new dimension to the study of prophecy in antiquity.

READERSHIP: Biblical scholars, Assyriologists, theologians, historians, and all persons interested in the social phenomenon of prophecy in the Hebrew Bible and the ancient Near East.

Wetland. Shaping Environments in Netherlandish Art

Edited by Joost Keizer, Ann-Sophie Lehmann, Stephanie Porras

What aspects of their environment do artists decide to depict? Are they critical of the way in which others treat the environments that surround them? This NKJ volume finds an answer to these questions by focusing on the Dutch environment between the fifteenth century and now, a wetland that humans constantly tried to shape and reshape according to their needs. Gathering essays by scholars of early modern and modern and contemporary art, Wetland discovers the past of future landscapes in art.

The Meaning and Uses of Βασιλεία in the Gospel of Matthew

Semantic Monosemy and Pragmatic Modulation

Edited by Margaret M. Mitchell and David P. Moessner
Assistant Editor: Matthew Calhoun

Contrary to the prevailing view that βασιλεία is a verbal noun signifying God's rule, this study demonstrates how the term's pragmatic range in Matthew's Gospel covers both five distinct types of use and their integration into a coherent concept. The study, which is the first to examine all occurrences of βασιλεία in the First Gospel from the perspective of semantic monosemy, extends and enhances our appreciation of the Matthean Zentralbegriff, and engenders a more accurate apprehension of the nature and aims of the Matthean narrative and the theological views it conveys.

New Paradigm for the Conquest of Land by Vertebrates That Includes Exaptations

Mauro Luis Triques, Federal University of Minas Gerais, Brazil, and Martin Lindsey Christoffersen, Federal University of Paraíba, Brazil

A new vision for studying and understanding biological evolution emerges when the concepts of phylogenetic systematics and exaptation are combined, and also a new definition of macroevolution is created. Preadaptation is shown to be null and its comparison with exaptation is shown to be inappropriate.

READERSHIP: Biologists with an interest in evolution, such as zoologists, paleontologists, and perhaps botanists. Philosophers of science. Professionals from other areas interested in new theories on evolution.

The Geometrid Moths of Europe, 2
SEG LXVIII covers newly published Greek inscriptions and studies on previously known documents from the year 2018, with occasional additions from previous years that have been missed in earlier volumes and from studies published after 2017 but pertaining to material from 2018.

Didymus of Alexandria (also known as Chalcenterus, ‘bronze-guts’, for his outstanding ability to ‘digest’ and rework the scholarship of his predecessors) played a pivotal role in the understanding and reception of many classical Greek authors, both in antiquity and in modern times. His commentaries on the comic playwrights influenced ancient and modern scholarship alike and constitute to this day an invaluable repository of information for the study of ancient Greek comedy, the history of Hellenistic philology, and more.

Readership: The book would be of interest to specialists of (as well as to under- and post-graduate students interested in) the history of Classical scholarship, ancient Greek comedy, Greek lexicography and scholiography, and related topics (and should thus be acquired by the academic institutions and libraries they frequent).

Plutarch and his Contemporaries
Sharing the Roman Empire
Edited by Katarzyna Jaźdżewska, Aarhus University, and Filip Doroszewski, Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński University

The first collection of academic articles on Publius Nigidius Figulus, the mysterious senator, scholar, and alleged “Pythagorean and magus” of the late Roman Republic, offering perspectives on his politics, philosophy, mythography, biology, religious studies, linguistic thought, divinatory activities, and reception.

READERSHIP: Classical scholars, Latinists, philosophers, historians of philosophy, ancient historians, historians of science, Etruscologists, historical linguists, intellectual historians.

Plato’s political thought continues to be of enduring interest among classicists, philosophers, political theorists, and intellectual historians. The present volume introduces readers to the topic through a survey of important recent trends in the scholarly literature.

READERSHIP: Academic libraries; advanced undergraduates; post-graduate students; political theory; classical studies; ancient philosophy.

The volume puts into the spotlight overlaps between Plutarch and other imperial writers. By examining the Plutarchan corpus within the context of contemporary literary production, it contributes to our understanding of the empire’s culture in general, and Plutarch in particular.

READERSHIP: Scholars and post-graduate students working in the fields of ancient literature and philosophy. Academic libraries.

A Companion to the Environmental History of Byzantium
Adam Izdebski, Max Planck Institute of Geoanthropology, and Johannes Preiser-Kapeller, The Institute for Medieval Research of the Austrian Academy of Sciences

How did humans and the environment impact each other in the medieval Eastern Mediterranean? How did global climatic fluctuations affect the Byzantine Empire over the course of a millennium? And how did the transmission of pathogens across long distances affect humans and animals during this period?

This book tackles these and other questions about the intersection of human and natural history in a systematic way. Bringing together analyses of historical, archaeological, and natural scientific evidence, specialists from across these fields have contributed to this volume to outline the new discipline of Byzantine environmental history.

READERSHIP: This book will be of interest to specialists and students of Byzantine, medieval, and Islamic history, environmental studies, and climatology.

Max Planck Yearbook of UN Law

Volume 26 (2022)

Edited by Erika de Wet, Kathrin Maria Scherr and Sai Sathyanarayanan Venkatesh

The Max Planck Yearbook of United Nations Law (UNYB), founded in 1997, appears under the auspices of the Max Planck Foundation for International Peace and the Rule of Law. Volume 26 of the UNYB features a special thematic forum on 'The International Court of Justice at 75: an Assessment'. In light of the recently concluded 75th anniversary of the Court’s inaugural sitting, this edition of the UNYB features a curation of contributions that critically engage with and examine the work of the ICJ throughout these years. Additionally, a few select articles related to the general editorial scope of the UNYB ('The Law and Practice of the United Nations' or 'Legal Issues Related to the Goals of the United Nations') have been featured herein. By concentrating on issues connected with the UN and its initiatives, the UNYB aims to facilitate an understanding of the changes the UN has been undergoing since its foundation. It also provides a forum in which the potential of international organizations to affect the future course of international law and relations can be examined and assessed. The UNYB addresses both scholars and practitioners, giving them insights into the workings, challenges and evolution of the UN.

Yearbook of International Organizations, 1-6
From Europe and America to the Middle East, North Africa and other non-European Jewish settlement areas, the Encyclopedia of Jewish History and Culture covers the recent history of the Jewish people from 1750 through the 1950s. Originally published in German as the Enzyklopädie jüdischer Geschichte und Kultur by J.B. Metzler Verlag (Stuttgart/Weimar) in 2011 the work includes approximately 800 entries that present the state of international research and reveal a complex portrait of Jewish life - illuminated by many maps and illustrations. Central themes convey information on topics such as autonomy, exile, emancipation, literature, liturgy, music, and science of Judaism.

READERSHIP: All academics and other readers interested in gaining understanding of Judaism and modernity. This encyclopedia covers such topics as autonomy, exile, emancipation, literature, liturgy, music, and science of Judaism.

“Unheil,” curse, disaster: Anders Gerdmar takes a fresh look at the dangers of the politicization of biblical scholarship and the ways in which unrecognized interpretive filters led to a Jewish apocalypse in Nazi Germany.
Handbook of Formosan Languages
The Indigenous Languages of Taiwan

The Handbook of Formosan Languages provides a systematic and comprehensive coverage of the aboriginal languages of Taiwan and of the many ways in which they have been studied. It contains reference articles as well as grammar sketches of a number of Formosan languages, including a few extinct languages, written by leading scholars in the field.

The handbook includes up-to-date bibliographical references and indices and is illustrated with tables, maps, and other useful figures. An invaluable reference to Formosanists, Austronesianists, and typologists, it will be of interest to linguists more broadly as well.

READERSHIP: This book will be of interest to specialists and students of Byzantine, medieval, and Islamic history, environmental studies, and climatology.
The Puzzle of Vehicle Selection in Conceptual Metonymies
Hubert Kowalewski, Maria Curie-Skłodowska University

In-Between: Transversal Values in Contemporary Social Discourses and Culture
Joanna Senderska, Jan Kochanowski University, and Anna Wileczek, Jan Kochanowski University

This study investigates the main factors influencing the selection of vehicle concepts in conceptual metonymies.

The title concept ‘in-between’ (metaxu) refers to identity that remains in perpetual disjunction, dispersion and crisis. This book proves that ‘in-between’ is not an empty space, but a productive mode of creating new qualities, experiences, ideas and representations.

READERSHIP: The book is intended for specialists and postgraduate students in cognitive linguistics, metonymy researchers, sign language researchers, linguists interested in methodology of linguistics, and academic libraries.

Beyond Karbala

New Approaches to Shi‘i Materiality and Material Religion

Edited by Fouad Gehad Marei, Lund University, Yafa Shanneik, Lund University, and Christian Funke, Independent scholar

Examining manifestations and transformations of multi-sensorial expressions and experiences of Shi‘i Islam, Beyond Karbala demonstrates how material ‘things’ and less thing-like materialities make the praesentia and potentia of the sacred tangible, cultivate intimate relations between human and more-than-human beings, and act as tangible links and gateways to the Elsewhere and Otherworldly.

Arabic Textual Sources for the Crusades
Alexander Mallett,
Waseda University, Faculty of International Research and Education

This work contains three manuscript fragments attributed to the Asadiyya by the catalog of the Raqqada Library in Kairouan. However, it appears that they do not belong to the Asadiyya, but rather contain scholarly transmissions of Asad b. al-Furât from Muḥammad b. al-Ḥasan al-Shaybānī. Hence they concern Ḥanafī jurisprudence, not Malikī.

Readership: All those interested in early Islamic civilization and Islamic jurisprudence, specialized researchers, students or Ḥanafī jurists, especially that the Ḥanafī school occupies today the first place in terms of spread in the Islamic world.

A History of Hegelianism in Golden Age Denmark, Tome I

_The Heiberg Period: 1824-1836, 2nd Revised and Augmented Edition_

Jon Stewart, Slovak Academy of Sciences

This initial tome covers the period from the beginning of the Hegel reception in the Danish Kingdom in the 1820s until the end of 1836. The dominant figure from this period is the poet and critic Johan Ludvig Heiberg, who attended Hegel's lectures in Berlin in 1824 and then launched a campaign to popularize Hegel's philosophy among his fellow countrymen. Using his journal _Kjøbenhavns flyvende Post_ as a platform, Heiberg published numerous articles containing ideas that he had borrowed from Hegel.

READERSHIP: This work will be relevant to students and scholars interested in Continental philosophy, Hegel Studies, Kierkegaard Studies, Scandinavian Studies, Danish history, and religion in the 19th century. It is suitable for classroom use in courses on philosophy in the nineteenth century.

Doing Multidisciplinary Research on Religion

Methodological, Conceptual and Theoretical Challenges

Edited by Martha Middlemiss Lé Mon, Uppsala University, and Anna-Sara Lind, Uppsala University

Religion is increasingly visible in the contemporary world as a complex phenomenon – requiring multidisciplinary research to do justice to the complexity. Multidisciplinary research is however, though lauded by many, notoriously difficult to bring to fruition. This volume takes on the challenge to bridge the gap. Contributions formulate the challenges many have faced, but few yet analysed and put into the hands of researchers concrete tools with which to set about designing and executing multidisciplinary research on religions, beliefs and religious behaviour.

READERSHIP: The book is aimed primarily at researchers and postgraduate students within an international scholarly readership as well as academic libraries catering to researchers. It should be of interest to scholars from a wide variety of disciplines who in their work touch on religion, theology and worldviews studies.
Caste, Marginalisation, and Resistance

The Politics of Identity of the Naths (Yogis) of Bengal and Assam

Kunal Debnath, Rabindra Bharati University

In the socio-political context of Bengal and Assam, this book is specifically written to persuasively emphasise the key issues pertaining to the marginalised householder Nath-Yogis. The key areas of concentration revolve around their complex marginalisation processes, resistance, and their distinct identity assertion.

READERSHIP: This book would be of immediate interest of research scholars, post-graduate students, academic libraries, and institutions. Social sciences in general and caste studies, studies in the politics of marginalisation, and historical studies.
