A Village and Its NGOs
Co-constructing NGO Presence in Rural Malawi
Thomas McNamara, La Trobe University

This book explores NGO presence through detailing relationships, personhoods and meaning making in a collection of Northern Malawian fishing villages. Its key claim is that NGOs’ projects and resources have less impact on villagers’ lives than the symbols they emit and the ways they encourage re-imaging development and renegotiating intra-community obligations.

READERSHIP: This book’s primary audiences are academics and senior students in anthropology, development and African studies. It is particularly applicable for those interested in NGOs and donor-driven development.

The Rhetorical Use of Numbers in the Deuteronomistic History
“Saul Has Killed His Thousands, David His Tens of Thousands”
Denise C. Flanders, Taylor University

This volume demonstrates that troop and casualty numbers in Joshua–2 Kings often work in surprising ways—to qualify an ostensibly successful victory, to undermine the glory of a leader, to connect two seemingly disparate narratives, to anticipate a ruler’s downfall.

READERSHIP: This book will be of interest to undergraduate and graduate students and their institutions, seminars, academic libraries, and specialists and practitioners in biblical studies.

The Rhetorical Design of Isaiah 40-48/55
Zion’s Incomparable Saviour and His Servants
Pieter van der Lugt

This book analyzes the ‘strophic’ structure of the poems in Isaiah 40-48 and discusses the consequence of this approach for their interpretation. Among other things, the author takes a critical stand as to the ‘redaktionsgeschichtliche’ approach of the poems concerned.

READERSHIP: Theologians and Biblical scholars interested in the exegesis an interpretation of the TeNaCh.

READERSHIP: This work is written for a scholarly audience whose interests lie in the linguistic analysis of the New Testament as well as the critical study of the book of Acts.

By applying a linguistic stylistic analysis, this study argues that Luke’s construal of the Jerusalem Council in Acts 15 and its related passages attempt to subvert a tradition within Second Temple Jewish literature that threatened the unity of multi-ethnic churches.

New papyrological sources from Egypt shed light on where and how Manichaeism mattered to ancient individuals in their everyday life, thereby opening up new perspectives on religious change in late antiquity.

This volume explores conversion experience in the ancient Mediterranean with attention to early Judaism, early Christianity, and philosophy in the Roman empire from an interdisciplinary perspective.

READERSHIP: Scholars interested in Manichaean Studies, the History of religion, religious change in Late Antiquity, the art and archaeology of fourth-century Egypt, and the application of social-scientific theories to the ancient world.

READERSHIP: Scholars and teachers of biblical studies, classics, ancient philosophy and hermeneutics. Academic libraries, especially those connected with schools of theology/divinity and classics.
Written for Us
Paul's Interpretation of Scripture and the History of Midrash
Yael Fisch,
Hebrew University of Jerusalem

This volume is a study in ancient scriptural hermeneutics, that promotes new ways to think about Paul’s interpretation of scripture and rabbinic midrash together and for the benefit of both. It analyses exegetical techniques that both Paul and the Tannaim use and opens new perspectives on how they conceive of scripture and its ideal readers.

An Illustrated Speculum Humanae Salvationis

Why Jephthah’s Daughter Weeps
A Child-Oriented Interpretation
Margaret Murray Talbot,
Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary

Why does Jephthah’s daughter weep? This new child-oriented reading reveals that a complex mix of emotional, familial, socio-cultural, and sexual consequences of menarche and menstruation lies behind her tears. There’s more blood flowing in this Judges story than you’ve likely imagined!

READERSHIP: Academic (seminary and university) libraries; biblical scholars (Hebrew Bible); faculty, graduate, and advanced undergraduate students in biblical studies and religion.
The Textual History of the Bible from the Dead Sea Scrolls to the Biblical Manuscripts of the Vienna Papyrus Collection

Proceedings of the Fifteenth International Symposium of the Orion Center for the Study of the Dead Sea Scrolls and Associated Literature, Cosponsored by the University of Vienna Institute for Jewish Studies and the Schechter Institute of Jewish Studies

Edited by Ruth A. Clements, Orion Center for the Study of the Dead Sea Scrolls and Associated Literature, Russell E. Fuller, University of San Diego, Armin Lange, University of Vienna, Paul Mandel, Schechter Institute of Jewish Studies in Jerusalem

Biblical manuscripts from the Dead Sea and the Cairo Genizah have added immeasurably to our knowledge of the textual history of the Hebrew Bible. The papers collected in this volume compare the evidence of the biblical DSS with manuscripts from the Vienna Papyrus Collection, connected with the Cairo Genizah, as well as late ancient evidence from diverse contexts. The resulting picture is one of a dialectic between textual plurality and fixity: the eventual dominance of the consonantal Masoretic Text over the textual plurality of the Second Temple period, and the secondary diversification of that standardized text through scribal activity.

READERSHIP: All scholars of the Dead Sea Scrolls, of biblical textual criticism (Hebrew Bible, Septuagint, Vulgate), of medieval biblical manuscripts, of the history of biblical interpretation.

Plutarch’s Unexpected Silences
Suppression and Selection in the Lives and Moralia

Edited by Jeffrey Beneker, Craig Cooper, Noreen Humble, and Frances B. Titchener

This book examines passages in Plutarch’s works that foil expectations and whose silence invites closer examination. The contributors question omissions of authors, works, people, and places, and they examine Plutarch’s reticence to comment where he usually would.

READERSHIP: University libraries, classicists, ancient historians, specialists in Plutarch, specialists in life-writing, including postgraduates in all these fields.

Historiography of Rome and Its Empire, 14
The VaKE Handbook

Theory and Practice of Values and Knowledge Education

Sieglinde Weyringer, AVaKE Association for Values and Knowledge Education, Jean-Luc Patry, Paris-Lodron University of Salzburg; AVaKE Association for Values and Knowledge Education, Dimitris Pnevmatikos, University of Western Macedonia, and Frédérique Brossard Børhaug, VID Specialized University

“Values without knowledge are blind, while knowledge without values is irresponsible.” This principle underlines the motivation to write this book. It presents VaKE, Values and Knowledge Education, a theoretical model based on constructivist learning theories, and many examples for its practical implementation in diverse educational fields. Thanks to its extensive theoretical foundation, the model opens up almost unlimited possibilities to tailor the course to the needs of the participants and to the dynamics of a process.

READERSHIP: All interested and involved in education and training - for theoretical discussion, research projects and practical implementation and / or for guidance.

The justification of ethical values is attributed a general importance for the development of personality as well as for the thriving and flourishing living with each other in a society. School education aims at providing respective knowledge. However, this knowledge is separated from the subject matters, whereas for its application in daily life both – knowledge on facts as well as on values – are necessary and indispensable for evaluation, assessment and decision making.
Counter-narratives of Muslim American Women

Creating Space for MusCrit

Ali Noor, Northeastern University

This book is a poignant exploration of the lived realities of an often misrepresented group. It makes real for its readers the burden of racialized demonization carried by the innocent.

READERSHIP: Scholars and professionals from CRT, Education, Curriculum Theory & Practice, Social Justice, DEI with interest in acculturation, marginalization, transformative education, intersectionality, microaggressions.

Doing Rebellious Research

In and beyond the Academy

Pamela Burnard, Elizabeth Mackinlay, David Rousell, and Tatjana Dragovic

Bringing together an extraordinary range of international scholars and practitioners that include contemporary visual artists, poets, choreographers, activists, film-makers, theatre-makers, magicians, and circus artists, the contributors situate their rebellious practices of knowledge production and upheaval in the academy and in society.

READERSHIP: This book embraces a zeitgeist of discontent with traditional discourses on how research is understood, and how it is communicated and therefore offers new, experimental and creative ways to do research.

School Leaders’ Sensemaking and Sensegiving

Judith M. Norris, Australian Catholic University

In this book, Judith Norris presents a theoretical model that demonstrates a new approach to understanding how school leaders respond to conflicting expectations and demands.

READERSHIP: Those interested in the theoretical and application of educational leadership in various international contexts.
Students Learning in Communities

Ideas and Practices from the U.S.A., India, Russia, and China

Eija Kimonen, University of Jyväskylä, and Raimo Nevalainen, University of Jyväskylä

This book offers a comprehensive picture of community-based learning in education and demonstrates how teachers can make learning more functional and holistic so that students can work in new situations within their complex worlds. School-specific descriptions reveal how teachers and students implemented community-based projects at different times.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in the theory and practice of community-based learning, and those concerned with the changes in school–community relationships in the U.S.A., India, Russia, and China at different times.

Comparative Education

A Field in Discussion

David A. Turner, University of South Wales

Comparative Education: A Field in Discussion is a personal reflection on the field of comparative education from the perspective of one scholar who has been active in the field since the 1980s.

READERSHIP: Postgraduate students and researchers in the field of comparative and international education.

Teacher Acculturation

Stories of Pathways to Teaching

Edward R. Howe, Thompson Rivers University

Teacher Acculturation provides rich description of lived experiences of novice teachers from the 1950s through present day. The thought-provoking stories provide a springboard for critical discussions about gender/sexuality, culture/race/ethnicity, Indigenous perspectives, SES/class/religion, and the challenges facing teachers in different contexts.

READERSHIP: Teacher Acculturation will be of interest to self-study researchers, teacher educators, teacher candidates, graduate students, classroom teachers and to anyone interested in the fascinating lives of teachers.
Higher Education in Ethiopia
Themes and Issues from an African Perspective
Wondwosen Tamrat, St. Mary’s University

This book examines the Ethiopian higher education sector through an exploration of its various dimensions, challenges and prospects. Albeit one of the largest systems in the continent, the sector has received little research attention in the past. The book bridges this gap by marshalling a variety of current themes and issues with their wider implications for continental and global higher education.

READERSHIP: While the book can attract general readers, it is of significant interest to researchers, academics and post-graduate students of higher education in Africa and beyond.

Global Perspectives on Higher Education, 52

Higher Education in the Face of a Global Pandemic
Emnet Tadesse Woldegiorgis, Ali Mazrui Centre for Higher Education Studies at the University of Johannesburg, Petronella Jonck, North-West University

The book reflects on the extent to which the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic influenced the education system in Africa, notably South Africa. The advent of the pandemic has brought a new context to the challenges of access, deepening the precarious position of African higher education systems. The book discusses the challenges created or further entrenched by COVID-19 and how the typology of inequality across the differentiated institutions impacted the management of education delivery during COVID-19.

READERSHIP: This volume is interesting for academics working in Higher Educational Institutions and Research Centres in Africa and beyond as well as for post-graduate students interested in e-learning and the impact of COVID on student’s learning perceptions.

Festivities, Ceremonies, and Rituals in the Lands of the Bohemian Crown in the Late Middle Ages
František Šmahel, Martin Nodl, Václav Žůrek, Centre for Medieval Studies, Institute of Philosophy, Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic

This book deals with various examples and aspects of rituals and ceremonies in the late medieval Bohemian lands. The individual contributions explore particular rituals (coronation, wedding, funeral) or environments (cities, nobility, court, church).

READERSHIP: All interested in the medieval history of the Central Europe, especially Bohemian Lands and anyone concerned medieval history and rituals in general; research libraries, academics and students.

The Chronicle of Halych-Volhynia and Historical Collections in Medieval Rus’
Adrian Jusupović, Tadeusz Manteuffel Institute of History, Polish Academy of Sciences

This book investigates the chronological and narrative structure at work in the Chronicle of Halych-Volhynia, in order to answer a broader question: was the Chronicle part of a curated historical collection to create a new historiographical entity in medieval Rus’?

READERSHIP: The book will contribute to a deeper knowledge of textual criticism, cultural studies, diplomacy, the chronology of Rus’ian sources, literary culture, and philology, along with several other aspects of cultural history.

Women in the Piast Dynasty
Festivities, Ceremonies, and Rituals in the Lands of the Bohemian Crown in the Late Middle Ages
Grzegorz Pac, University of Warsaw

This is the first comprehensive study of the role of women in the Polish Piast dynasty from 965 until c.1144, comparing them with female members of other contemporary medieval dynasties.

READERSHIP: This volume targets a readership of medieval historians, gender studies scholars, and students of those areas.
Work Point System in Rural China
Yingwei Huang

The Chinese work point system was a series of labor organization rules and regulations used for the calculation of the amount and quality of labor and for determining the form of labor organization. The history of the work point system is thus the history of China's agricultural collectivization. In this book we analyse how these work points were allotted, how they provided, or impaired, labor incentives, and if they leave open the possibility for income mobility.

READERSHIP: This volume is of interest to sinologists, historians, and sociologists.

READERSHIP: This book will appeal to economic historians, especially those interested in the history of commerce and its institutions, and more specifically to maritime historians.

READERSHIP: The book is intended for scholars and postgraduate students in Reception Studies, Comparative literature, Renaissance Studies, Literature History, and Poetry.

READERSHIP: Academic libraries, institutes, specialist historians, graduate and undergraduate students, history of medicine, history of science, history of universities, physicians with an interest in the history of medicine.

Making Physicians displays the pedagogical practices that formed students into physicians, debunking longstanding myths by showing how much anatomy, sense experience, and materials mattered to Galenic medicine. Humanist book learning combined with hands-on training with medicines and exploring bodies, both living and dead.

Based on the analysis of Hamburg’s marine insurance premiums for more than 120 years, this book shows that the premiums’ long-term decline has been a consequence of both the restoration of security on the high seas after 1815 and the elimination of piracy around 1830.

Edited by Andrew Colin Gow

Offering 400 years of early modern history in one work, experts from all over the world have joined in a presentation of the scholarship on the great era between the mid-15th to the mid-19th centuries. The perspective is European. That does not mean, however, that the view on the rest of the world is blocked. On the contrary: the multifaceted interrelatedness of European and other cultures is scrutinized extensively.

This book places under scrutiny for the first time, whether, and how, the United Nations Human Rights Council actually contributes to the protection of human rights in the face of pervasive gross violations world-wide. It finds that the Council does little of preventive protection, some mitigatory protection, and little remedial or compensatory protection. The Council’s response to situations of gross violations depends on the political alignments within its membership for each situation.

Duality of Responsibility in International Law
The Individual, the State, and International Crimes
Thomas Weatherall

For decades, Professor Michael Freeman has without doubt been one of the world’s most influential scholars in international children’s rights. His scholarship has been at the forefront of the field and has helped shape many of the developments within it. This collection offers the reader a thought-provoking snapshot of some of his most seminal essays, written and/or published over the past 30 years. Together they highlight above all the interdisciplinary nature of the issues he discusses. Legal doctrinal questions that make the case for recognising that children have rights are of course discussed.
Based on the identification of the ‘participatory’, ‘competence’ and ‘geographical’ gaps in the international legal regime relating to marine protected areas (MPAs) in areas beyond national jurisdiction (ABNJ), The International Legal Regime Relating to Marine Protected Areas in Areas beyond National Jurisdiction provides insight into how to address the gaps.

European Climate Diplomacy in the USA and China

Embassy Narratives and Coalitions

Katrin Buchmann

Buchmann analyses the work of UK, German, Danish and Swedish embassies in the USA and China on climate change in the late 2000s and early 2010s. She relates which coalitions and narratives embassies sought to develop to convince China and the United States that a more progressive climate policy was possible, to achieve gains supporting an agreement under the UNFCCC. This book shows that a key interpretation of climate diplomacy was selling/trade: Europe selling technology “solutions” to solve climate change. In this narrative, Europe has already done what needs to be done and outsourcing of production to China e.g. is ignored. In the USA, embassies entered coalitions with states, faith groups and the military, arguing that a more progressive climate policy was mandated by either God or security concerns. State politicians, including Democrats, often actually didn’t implement any climate policies. Any gains were reversed through climate denial lobbying funded by corporations. Embassies did not address this.

READERSHIP: All interested in diplomacy, embassies, climate diplomacy, economic diplomacy, public diplomacy, climate policy, renewal energy policy, and the UN climate negotiations.

The Art of Language
Edited by Anne Storch,
University of Cologne, Germany,
and R.M. W. Dixon, Central Queensland University, Australia

This volume explores different ideas of what language does and what is done with language, considering different ways in which hospitality and humanity are expressed, knowledge is constructed, and asking about more integrative ways in keeping languages relevant.

READERSHIP: Because of its wide-ranging ambit, this volume will appeal to senior students, teachers, and researchers across many subfields of linguistics.

Songs of the Royal Zhōu and the Royal Shào
Shī詩 of the Ānhui University Manuscripts
Dirk Meyer, University of Oxford, and Adam Craig Schwartz, Hong Kong Baptist University

Working with the Ānhui University manuscripts, the authors embark on a fascinating thought experiment: how were the Songs of the Royal Zhōu (“Zhōu Nán” 周南) and of the Royal Shào (“Shào Nán” 召南) experienced by people in the Warring States period (453–221 BC)?

READERSHIP: All interested in the poetic traditions of Early China, anyone interested in the textual history of the Shijing (Classic of Songs), manuscript cultures, and meaning production in Early China.

Types of Kinship Terminological Systems and How to Analyze Them
New Insights from the Application of Sidney H. Gould’s Analytic System
David B. Kronenfeld, University of California at Riverside, USA

The power of Gould’s analytic system reveals new insights into the Fanti kin terminology. It demonstrates the effectiveness of collective cognitive constraints vs. repeated individual constraints, and the role of distinctive features in dividing relative-product-based super-class structures into actual kinterms.

READERSHIP: Anthropologists (advanced students and professionals) interested in kinship terminologies, and in formal analytic systems. Anthropologists and linguists interested in semantic systems and in distributed collective knowledge systems.

Tagore and Yeats

* A Postcolonial Re-envisioning

Edited by Amrita Ghosh, Linnaeus University Sweden, and Elizabeth Brewer Redwine, Emory University, USA

The Yeats–Tagore friendship and the eventual curious fallout between the two remain a mystery; the focus of this volume is a postcolonial reading of the two writers’ friendship, the critical reception of Tagore in 1912 England, and Tagore’s erasure from Western literary discourse. The essays in this volume take a decolonial turn to critically analyze the two writers in the discourse of power that is a part of their larger story.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in postcolonial studies, area studies including South Asia, Irish studies, gender and performance studies, the aesthetics of representation and translation would benefit from this book.

Sufi Women of South Asia

Veiled Friends of God

Tahera Aftab, University of Karachi, Pakistan (Emerita)

In Sufi Women of South Asia. Veiled Friends of God, the first biographical compendium of hundred and forty-one women, from the eleventh to the twentieth century, Tahera Aftab fills a serious gap in the existing scholarship regarding the historical presence of women in Islam and brings women to the centre of the expanding literature on Sufism. The book’s translated excerpts from the original Farsi and Urdu sources that were never put together create a much-needed English-language source base on Sufism and Muslim women. The book questions the spurious religious and cultural traditions that patronise gender inequalities in Muslim societies and convincingly proves that these pious women were exemplars of Islamic piety who as true spiritual masters avoided its public display.

READERSHIP: All interested in Sufi women’s lives, Islam in South Asia and Muslim women. It is extremely valuable for researchers, scholars, and students. An extremely useful addition for all academic libraries and research institutes.
Non-Marxian Historical Materialism: Reconstructions and Comparisons
Edited by Krzysztof Brzechczyn, Adam Mickiewicz University

The authors of this book reconstruct the philosophical, methodological and theoretical assumptions of non-Marxian historical materialism, a theory of historical process authored by Leszek Nowak (1943-2009), a co-founder of the Poznań School of Methodology. This book compares this theory with the concepts of Robert Michels, Vilfredo Pareto and Karl August Wittfogel.

READERSHIP: The volume will be of interest to graduate and undergraduate students, as well as specialists who deal with the philosophy of history and the philosophy and methodology of social sciences and political theory.

The contributors to Somaesthetics and Sport explore our embodied experiences of watching and playing sport, including sport’s beauty; the place of exercise in our sense of living a good life; and how we cope with pain and suffering.

Shusterman’s Somaesthetics is a wide-ranging collection of penetrating essays by twelve scholars examining in rich detail the many dimensions of philosopher Richard Shusterman’s pragmatism and somaesthetics, complemented by his own chapter of responses to these scholars.

Thirteen original essays explore the qualities and challenges of urban life (in Europe, Asia, and the Americas) from a variety of disciplinary perspectives that illustrate the aesthetic, cultural, and political roles of bodies in the city streets.

READERSHIP: Undergraduate and graduate students, and academics with interests in the philosophy of sport, sport science, and philosophical aesthetics, and Richard Shusterman’s project of somaesthetics.

READERSHIP: This volume will be of interest to undergraduates, graduate students, professors, working in American philosophy, aesthetics (including popular art), and embodiment.

READERSHIP: All scholars, students, critics, and artists interested in the study of city life and somatic approaches to philosophy, aesthetics, politics, gender studies, and the arts.

READERSHIP: The book is intended for a readership including those interested in ancient philosophy, theology, and literature.

Written between 386 and 390 during the excitement of his discovery of Neoplatonism, Augustine's correspondence with Nebridius bears witness, well before the Confessions, to the philosophical and spiritual questions that fascinated Augustine at the time of his conversion to philosophy and Christianity.

Concept Formation is the final part of the trilogy Forms of Representation in the Aristotelian Tradition. It investigates some of the most perplexing and provocative discussions on conceptual thinking in the Greek, Latin, and Arabic reception of Aristotle's psychology.

Dreaming is the second part of the trilogy Forms of Representation in the Aristotelian Tradition. It investigates some of the most fascinating and enduring discussions on dreams in the Greek, Latin, and Arabic reception of Aristotle's psychology.

READERSHIP: Scholars and advanced students with a particular interest in the history of philosophy, the history of science, and the reception of Aristotle's psychology.
Forms of Representation in the Aristotelian Tradition

Volume One: Sense Perception

Edited by Juhana Toivanen, University of Jyväskylä

Evil Women

Representations within Literature, Culture and Film

Robyn Muir, University of Nottingham, Beatrice Frasl, University of Vienna, Christie Lauder, Louisiana State University, Elizabeth Schreiber-Byers, University of North Carolina

Often side-lined or simplified, evil women challenge societal norms of womanhood. This volume explores how evil women have been constructed, punished, and erased within literature, culture, and film and how this contributes to our understanding of womanhood.

READERSHIP: For anyone interested in the politics of gender representation in culture, history of literature and gender and cultural phenomena.

Das Maß des Menschen

Platon’s Antwort an Protagoras im ‘Theaitetos’ und im ‘Protagoras’

Edwin J. de Sterke, fhnw

Protagoras claims to be able to educate the young. Why not? If «Man is Measure of Everything», anybody can make everybody ‘better’... To Plato, this doesn’t add up. What’s lacking? What is the measure of Man, if Man be measure?

READERSHIP: Students and specialists in Ancient Philosophy and the history of pedagogical and political thought. Due to the fundamental questions it poses, the book is also relevant for modern discussions in these fields.

_Brill’s Plato Studies Series_, 7
During the nineteenth century, the history of philosophy established itself in France as a central discipline within the academic institutions. This process, which rested on the intellectual and political influence of Victor Cousin (1792-1867), coincided with the development of an interpretative scheme that gave the Renaissance as philosophical epoch a controversial status characterized by conceptual inferiority. This volume sheds light on the ideological implications of the debates on the Renaissance in nineteenth-century France. It offers a comprehensive approach to the scholarly reconstructions and polemical uses of the Renaissance by developing a political and transnational rereading of the nineteenth-century French practices of the history of philosophy.

READERSHIP: The book is addressed, on the one hand, to specialists in Renaissance thought and its modern reception and, on the other hand, to historians of nineteenth-century French philosophy and historiography.
The Relational Horse
How Frameworks of Communication, Care, Politics and Power Reveal and Conceal Equine Selves
Edited by Gala Argent and Jeannette Vaught

The Relational Horse explores the possibilities of including the horse’s perspective into the study of human-horse relationships. Case studies from across a range of time periods, activities, and disciplines provide fresh ways to understand horses, themselves, in relationships with humans.

READERSHIP: The The Relational Horse’s introductory yet theoretically grounded approach will appeal to researchers and students of human-animal and critical animal studies, equine behavior and ethology.

Plotinus on Beauty

Beauty as Illuminated Unity in Multiplicity

Ota Gál, Charles University (Prague)

The open access publication of this book has been published with the support of the Swiss National Science Foundation. In this book, Ota Gál presents a new analysis of Plotinus’ conception of beauty, beginning from a close reading of treatises I.6 and V.8, which link beauty with the unified multiplicity of Intellect. This account is subsequently placed in a hierarchical and structural context in VI.2 and VI.6 and connected to illumination in VI.7, enabling us to determine the meaning of the predicate “beauty” at different ontological levels. For Plotinus, beauty is ultimately the illuminated unity in multiplicity of Intellect, which, as the manifestation of the Good, simultaneously enables the soul’s ascent and threatens to bind the soul to itself.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in Greek philosophy and aesthetics, in the history of the concept of beauty and, above all, in Plotinus.

Language, Culture and Cognition from Descartes to Lewes

Timo Kaitaro, University of Helsinki

The monograph tells a different story on the history of modern philosophy: the narrative is no longer centred on the question whether knowledge results from experience or reason, but whether experience and reason are in fact possible without language.

READERSHIP: Specialists and students of the history of philosophy and psychology. Cognitive scientists, psychologists and students of these subjects.

Dynamics in the History of Religions, 12

Buddhism in Central Asia II—Practice and Rituals, Visual and Materials Transfer deals with the dynamics of cultural encounter and religious transfer among both trans-regional (Chinese, Indian, Tibetan) and local (Khotanese, Uyghur, Tangut) Buddhist traditions.

Drawing on examples from judicial processes, media discourses, and scholarly debates related to Wiccans, Druids, and Jedi knights, among others, this book examines how social actors negotiate what counts as “religion” and argues for the relevance of the discursive study of religion.

The first-ever comparative ethnographic study of its kind, this monograph analyzes the syncretistic phenomenon of Messianic Judaism in Gabon and Madagascar, focusing on the motivations, geneses, settings, and contexts of one of global Christianity’s most overlooked iterations.

Lesser Heard Voices in Studies of Religion

Edited by Ralph W. Hood, Jr., University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, and Sariya Cheruvallil-Contractor, Coventry University

The present volume brings together scholars from all over the world in an open section and three special sections that explore how lesser-heard and unheard voices may be studied. Special section 1, Religion in Higher Education interrogates lived experiences of religion in higher education contexts and how certain voices are marginalised and minoritised. Special section 2, Cultural Blindness in Psychology, explores how culture as a lived experience, especially in its religious dimension, is rendered invisible in psychological science. Finally, special section 3 entitled Religious Authority in Practice in Contemporary Evangelical, Charismatic, and Pentecostal Christianity outlines “evangelicalism” and introduces “authority” as a sociological concept from various theoretical perspectives.

READERSHIP: Psychology of religion, indigenous psychology, cultural psychology, cross-cultural psychology, critical theory, sociology, anthropology sociology of religion, anthropology of religion, religious studies. Suitable for clinicians, researchers and graduate and post-graduate studies.

Deconstructing Postmodernist Nietzscheanism

Deleuze and Foucault

Jan Rehmann, Union Theological Seminary, and the Free University of Berlin
Translated by Kolja Swingle and Larry Swingle

Rehmann’s book investigates how Deleuze and Foucault read Nietzsche and apply a hermeneutics of innocence to his philosophy that erases its elitist, anti-democratic, and anti-socialist dimensions. This also affects their own theory and impairs postmodernism’s claim to develop a radical critique.

Maritime Spaces and Society
Edited by Agnieszka Kołodziej-Durnaś, Frank Sowa, and Marie C. Grasmeier

Maritime spaces are socially constructed by humans and refer to seas and islands, coasts, port cities and villages, as well as ships and other human-made marine structures. Social interaction with marine environments and living beings, e.g. in a symbolic, cultural or economic manner, has led to the emergence of spatial structures which affect the knowledge, beliefs, meanings and obstinately patterns. Those structures shape mutual expectations of human beings and form the perception, imagination, or memory of inhabitants of maritime spaces.

Cofradías Afrohispánicas
Celebración, resistencia furtiva y transformación cultural
Manuel Apodaca Valdez, University of Southern Indiana

In Cofradías Afrohispánicas Afro-Hispanic Confraternities, Manuel Apodaca Valdez offers an account of forty-two confraternities of African descendants of the colonial period, along with six contemporary confraternities still alive in four geographical regions: Spain, Perú, México, and the Dominican Republic. This historical and comparative trans-Atlantic study analyzes data gathered from archives and field work research. The work shows evidence of the social, political, cultural, and spiritual conditions of the peoples of African descent integrated in confraternities during the colonial time. Their legacy traced a path historically marked by hybridism and transformation laying the foundation for contemporary Afro-confraternities, a phenomenon interpreted by the author as furtive resistance and celebration of cultural identity.

The Spirit as Gift in Acts

_The Spirit’s Empowerment of the Early Jesus Community_

John D. Griffiths,
Alphacrucis College

The Holy Spirit, being given as a gift in the opening chapters of Acts, initiates and sustains the early Jesus community, empowering their teaching, unity, meals, sharing of possessions and worship.

Thinking Theologically about the Divine Ideas

_Reexamining the Summa of Thomas Aquinas_

Benjamin R. DeSpain, Australian Catholic University

_Thinking Theologically_ contains new insights into the place of the divine ideas in the pedagogical design of Aquinas’s _Summa Theologiae_. It subsequently challenges the false dichotomy between philosophy and theology in the interpretation of Aquinas’s engagement with the doctrine.

READERSHIP: All readers working in the areas of Catholic, philosophical, moral, and historical theology. Specialists working on Aquinas, Medieval theology, divine ideas, and Platonism.

Unorganized Religion: Pentecostalism and Secularization in Denmark, 1907-1924

Nikolaj Christensen, Independent Scholar

The Pentecostal movement has turned the world of religion upside down in the last century but had only sporadic impact on Europe, the traditional centre of Christendom. This book uses Denmark as its case study to work out why.

READERSHIP: Scholars of early Pentecostalism; scholars and practitioners of Nordic Pentecostal and Charismatic movements; libraries/specialists focusing on Scandinavian church history, modern Scandinavian history.
