Sciences et confréries soufies au Sénégal
Approches nouvelles de la violence et de la démocratie

El Hadji Samba Amadou Diallo, Washington University, Saint Louis

West African Islam has several Sufi orders, particularly in Northern Nigeria, Niger and Senegal, countries where the Tijāniyya occupies an important place in the public sphere. In the first part of this book, through a comparative perspective therefore using the concepts of democracy, secularism, domination and violence, the author depicts how these categories are exercised at the local level, especially in the political field.

In the second part, he engages in deciphering the complex relations between religion and politics in the so-called alternance regimes between 2000 and 2020, using a Bourdieusian approach to domination. Many marabouts intervene to stop the projects of personalization of the central power. The author concludes that there is a new form of community democracy that Sufi guides use to politically stabilize Senegal.

READERSHIP: Academia, major libraries, postgraduate students, political authorities, researchers, social scientists, violence theorists, Sufi leaders, international organizations, decision-makers, readers interested in religion and politics in Senegal.
European Perspectives on the United States

This peer-reviewed series provides a broad reflection of the state of American Studies in Europe. Disciplinary Rituals in Dunhuang Buddhism
Ru Zhan
Translated by Matthew Orsborn, Gina Yang & Michael Cavayero
Edited by Jinhua Chen

Dreams, Nature, and Practices as Signs of the Future in the Middle Ages
Edited by Klaus Herbers and Hans-Christian Lehner

The Origin and Early Development of the Zhou Changes
Edward L. Shaughnessy

Combining meticulous analysis with macroscopic interpretation, this book pioneers in studying the Sinicizing process of Buddhist disciplinary rituals as they spread from India to China in the medieval period.

Seeking for signs of the future was a basic component of the pre-modern European mindset. The great variety of signs that are reviewed in the set of articles present commentaries on the time of their creation, whereas signs of the future display an ambiguous character.

The Zhou Changes, better known in the West as I Ching, is one of the masterpieces of world literature. This book demonstrates its origins in the divinations of Zhou China and how it transformed into the first of the Chinese classics.

READERSHIP: Scholars of Asian studies, East Asian Studies, Sinology, Japanology, Buddhology, Art History, Cultural and Religious transmission and interaction, and World History.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of the interpretation of signs in the European Middle Ages.

READERSHIP: Readers interested in all periods of Chinese intellectual history, especially ancient China; also the many people throughout the world for whom the book is a constant source of inspiration.

Japanizing Japanese Families

Regional Diversity and the Emergence of a National Family Model through the Eyes of Historical Demography

OCHIAI Emiko, Kyoto University, and HIRAI Shoko, Kobe University

This book draws on historical demography to elucidate the regional diversity of the Japanese family and its convergence toward an integrated national family model that heralded the modern era, providing a new image of the family in pre-industrial Japan. The volume challenges the idea of early modern (1600-1870) Japan as a monolithic nation based on the ie, the stem-family household so often mentioned as the fundamental form of Japanese social organization and enshrined in the Meiji Civil Code – which, in fact, came into being at various locales, at various speeds in the latter half of the 18th and the earlier half of the 19th centuries. In addition, there are several chapters which examine the role of women, either centrally or tangentially.

READERSHIP: Scholars and graduate students in Japanese and Asian studies, family sociology, gender studies, historical demography, and history of the family and in related fields of historical sociology, historiography, economic history, and anthropology.
Emerging Sectarianism in the Dead Sea Scrolls
Continuity, Separation, and Conflict
Edited by John J. Collins, Yale University, and Ananda Geyser-Fouché, University of Pretoria

Studies in the Language of Targum Canticles

With Annotated Transcription of Geniza Fragments

Paul R. Moore, University College London

Targum Canticles, composed in the dialectally eclectic idiom of Late Jewish Literary Aramaic (LJLA), had immense historic popularity among Jewish communities worldwide. In this work, Paul R. Moore thoroughly analyses several of the Targum’s grammatical peculiarities, overlooked by previous studies. Through this prism, he considers its literary influences, composition, and LJLA as a precursor of the highly eccentric Aramaic of the 13th century Spanish cabalistic masterpiece, The Zohar. The study includes transcriptions and analysis of the previously unpublished of fragments of the Targum from the Cairo Geniza, and what is possibly its earliest, known translation into Judaeo-Arabic.

READERSHIP: Institutes of Biblical and Jewish studies; academic libraries, specialist researchers, graduate and post-graduate students.

Animal Encounters in Valerius Flaccus’ Argonautica
Anne Tuttle Mackay

Kypriŏn Politeia, the Political and Administrative Systems of the Classical Cypriot City-Kingdoms
Beatrice Pestarino, University of Haifa and University of Harvard

SGG 6 represents the first critical edition accompanied by an extensive commentary of the grammatical fragments of Zoilus of Amphipolis (4th century BCE), known since antiquity as the Homeromastix (“the Scourge of Homer”) for his criticism of Homeric poetry.

We reveal Latin epic poet Valerius’ empathetic portrayal of animals, and his challenge to assumptions about human dominion. The analysis ranges from animal experience and subjectivity, to the role of animals in Valerius’ poetics, to “what makes a monster”.

What kind of society would you face if you travelled to Cyprus in the 5th-4th cent. BC? This is the first book which analyses in detail the politico-administrative system of Classical Cyprus through the study of inscriptions written in different languages.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars in the field of classics, who are interested in ancient, particularly Greek, learned culture and scholarship as well as in the written transmission and reception of ancient Greek literature.

READERSHIP: This book would be of most interest to university libraries for students and instructors in Classics and/or Literature. The book is accessible to graduate students and upper level undergraduates.

READERSHIP: All interested and specialised in Ancient Greek and Near-Eastern History, Greek epigraphy, Phoenician epigraphy, Greek archaeology, Ancient Near-East archaeology, Greek and Phoenician philology and linguistics, Aegean studies.

Reconfiguring the Imperial Past

Narrative Patterns and Historical Interpretation in Herodian’s History of the Empire

Chrysanthos S. Chrysanthou, University of Heidelberg

This book argues that Herodian uses an orderly and coherent historiographical form to reconfigure and explicate a most chaotic period of Roman history. Through patterning he offers a distinctive interpretative framework in which successive reigns and individual emperors need to be read in a dovetailed way.

READERSHIP: Undergraduate and post-graduate scholars of ancient Greek and Roman historiography, society and politics, Greek and Roman literature and culture, and narrative theory, Academic librarians.

A New Paradigm for Translators of Literary and Non-Literary Texts
Michela Canepari, University of Parma

What does it mean to be Black in America? In this book, Pierre W. Orelus uses his poetry to unpack this question, unmasking racism, sexism, and oppression in America. The 59 poems in this collection deal with a wide range of topics, from immigration to xenophobia, from Black pride to Black rage, from parenting to female empowerment.

READERSHIP: This book will be of interest to critical storytellers, scholars in the field of education and social justice.

This collection of critical stories emerges as a timely confession from marginalized imagined communities at the physical and metaphorical Mexican-American border.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of the border, Lantinx studies, Ethnic Studies, queer studies, Spanish, Latin American, Borderland studies, feminist studies, American studies, global studies, autoethnography, poetry, writing and rhetoric studies.

A guide for translators, translation trainees and students working with different (written, graphic and audiovisual) text typologies, presenting critical and systematic analyses of several examples and case studies.

READERSHIP: The book is mainly targeted at academics and university students of English, translation studies and communication studies. However, considering the materials under scrutiny, it might also appeal to a wider readership.
(Re)Mapping Migration and Education
Centering Methods and Methodologies
Cathryn Magno, University of Fribourg, Jamie Lew, Rutgers University, and Sophia Rodriguez, University of Maryland

This book focuses on methodological lenses to study how migration intersects with education. It squarely centers methodological inquiries by questioning disciplinary divisions, challenging dominant positivist approaches, and engaging with issues of ethics, legitimacy and positionality in studying migration and education.

READERSHIP: Undergraduate and graduate students across social sciences, including comparative education, sociology, and geography.

Education and Emergency in Italy
How the Education System Reacted to the First Wave of Covid-19
Maddalena Colombo, Marco Romito, Martina Visentin, and Massimiliano Vaira

This book explores how the Italian education system responded to distance learning during the first wave of the pandemic. The impact of the hard lockdown on both teaching and learning revealed the inherent weaknesses of a system in which digital technology had only recently been introduced and highlighted the relevant inequalities in their access and use.

READERSHIP: This book will be of interest to postgraduate students, academic researchers, and practitioners.

The Role of Imagination in STEM Concept Formation
A Cultural-Historical Journey into Researching Play-Based Settings
Marilyn Fleer, Monash University

Why has early childhood science education taken so long to become established as a field of research inquiry? Why do we continue to blame early childhood and primary teachers for their lack of confidence and competence in science education? This book tackles these questions and more.

READERSHIP: This book will be of interest to academics in science education.

Transylvania has some of the most valuable monuments of medieval architecture in Europe: the easternmost churches built in Romanesque style, Cistercian monasteries, Gothic buildings, and fortified churches. This book explores archaeological sources to bring to light the hidden past of these monuments.

READERSHIP: Scholars and students interested in the medieval religious heritage of Transylvania and east-central Europe more widely, and in church archaeology and the history of ecclesiastical building.
Christianization in Early Medieval Transylvania
A Church Discovered in Alba Iulia and its Interpretations
Daniela Marcu Istrate, Dan Ioan Mureșan, and Gabriel Tiberiu Rustoiu

This book takes a multidisciplinary approach to the issue of the Christianization of Transylvania, starting from the recent archaeological discovery of a 10th-century, Byzantine-style church in Alba Iulia.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in the spread of Christianity in east-central Europe and beyond, in early church buildings, and particularly in the dichotomy between the eastern and western Christian traditions.

Dutch Military Thought, 1919-1939
A Small Neutral State’s Visions of Modern War
Wim Klinkert, Netherlands Defence Academy and University of Amsterdam

In the interwar period potential future military conflict seemed particularly devastating for military and civilian society alike, thanks to developments in chemical, air and armoured warfare. This study analyses how a small state, the Netherlands, approached this conundrum and aimed to survive a future war.

READERSHIP: Military historians and researchers of international relations, civil-military relations and cultural history; students, specialists, and officer education.

Contest for Egypt
The Collapse of the Fatimid Caliphate, the Ebb of Crusader Influence, and the Rise of Saladin
Michael S. Fulton, University of Western Ontario

In the late twelfth century, Catholic crusaders, Sunni Turks and Kurds, and the eclectic armies of Fatimid Egypt repeatedly clashed along the Nile. The result of this conflict would fundamentally alter the balance of power in the Middle East.

READERSHIP: Contest for Egypt will be of interest to academics whose research relates to the crusades and the history of the medieval Levant, as well as students and informed members of the public.
William Touris OFM,
The Contemplacioun of Synnaris
Late-medieval Advice to a Prince
Edited by Alasdair A. MacDonald
and J. Craig McDonald

The Contemplacioun of Synnaris, by the Observant Franciscan William Touris, written c.1494 and evidently intended for King James IV of Scotland, is a significant and much copied work of Older Scots, although the earliest surviving witness is the English print by Wynkyn de Worde (1499). The Contemplacioun was the very first work of Older Scots literature to be translated and to be printed. The work retained sufficient interest to re-emerge in separate versions in both Scotland (1568) and England (1578), drastically revised for Protestant readers.

READERSHIP: All interested in: the older literature of Scotland and England; advice to princes literature; Franciscan influences on literature and culture; early printing; historical dialectology, devotional literature, Church Fathers.

Trust in the Catholic Reformation
Genoa 1594-1664
Thérèse Peeters, Leiden University

In Trust in the Catholic Reformation Thérèse Peeters shows how trust and distrust affected reform attempts in the post-Tridentine Church, while offering a multifaceted account of day-to-day religiosity in seventeenth-century Genoa, a city that has been generally overlooked in Anglophone scholarship. The book addresses diverse aspects of early modern Catholicism among lay people and members of the clergy.

READERSHIP: All interested in early modern Catholicism, Church reforms, urban history, seventeenth-century Genoa, and the role of trust in early modern societies. The book is suited for specialists and post-graduate students.

Sforza Pallavicino
A Jesuit Life in Baroque Rome
Edited by Maarten Delbeke

As a key figure in baroque Rome, Sforza Pallavicino embodies many of the apparent contradictions of his era. This examination of his life and work, covering his activities as a scholar, author and Jesuit, challenges current historical periodisations and disciplinary boundaries.

The Dialectic of the Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius of Loyola
Gaston Fessard S.J.,
Translated and edited by James Colbert and Oliva Blanchette

Gaston Fessard employs Hegel’s dialectical logic to clarify how St. Ignatius’s Spiritual Exercises envisage and prepare the decisions and choices between contrasting options or major turning points in spiritual life, in moments of what Ignatius would call Election.
A new assessment of baron d’Holbach (1723-1789), his works, his circle and his legacy, gathering together generations of d’Holbach scholars to analyse multiple aspects of his diverse intellectual commitment from fresh perspectives.

The book presents a critical edition and translation of a newly discovered early Irish legal text on lost and stolen property, Aidbred, and also includes editions of two other texts concerning property found on land, Heptad 64, and at sea, Muirbretha.

This volume provides deep insights into the dynamics and processes of knowledge creation and transfer in the Middle Ages by analysing the manuscript Sankt Gallen, Stiftsbibliothek, 673 – an important textual witness for the creation of the Decretum Gratiani.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of medieval Ireland and medieval law, and anyone concerned with medieval Irish language and social history.

READERSHIP: Anyone working on the history of legal sources in the twelfth century, especially historians and legal historians, and those seeking to learn more about medieval canon law.

The Chronographia of George the Synkellos and Theophanes

The Ends of Time in Ninth-Century Constantinople

Jesse W. Torgerson, Wesleyan University

Why the ninth-century Chronographia of George and Theophanes so dominated the writing of history in Greek has long puzzled scholars. This revisionist study frames the work as an early medieval society’s re-thinking of the relationship between past and present in order to navigate its imminent political crises.

READERSHIP: Scholars and students of Byzantium and the Eastern Mediterranean, and anyone with interests in early medieval historical texts and Greek historiography.

Mobile artisans, male and female, were responsible for many innovations and new consumer products. This book asks why, and shows the importance of collective traditions of migration, of the experience of mobility, and of the encounter with new places.

Through the careful examination of cases, statutes and terminology preserved in both excavated and transmitted materials, this book argues that a civil law with distinctive Chinese characteristics emerged during the Qin and Han dynasties (221 B.C.-A.D. 220).

The idea has become popular that industrialisation in East Asia, in particular Japan, was fundamentally differently from Western industrialization because it would have been much more labour-intensive. This book shows that this claim is unfounded.

READERSHIP: Graduate students and scholars in the fields of Chinese history, legal history, and Asian studies, in addition to East Asian Studies’ libraries and Law school libraries.

READERSHIP: Academics and postgraduates interested in the social history of artisans, labour history, migration history, urban history.

READERSHIP: Scholars and students in the fields of global (economic) history, economic history, (development) economics, East Asian studies, political economy, plus the institutions that are supposed to provide them with books.

The Disputed Białowieża Forest

Legal Remedies for the Protection of Cross-border Properties

Maciej Perkowski, University of Białystok, Wojciech Ząń, University of Białystok, and Przemysław Saganek, Polish Academy of Sciences, Warsaw

The Białowieża Forest is probably the best known forest in Central and Eastern Europe, owing its fame to not only to its natural value, but also to the disputes which have arisen in recent years concerning approaches to its protection.

READERSHIP: Legal European libraries and scholars specialised in the international and European law; scientists from disciplines such as law, forestry, sociology, international relations.
With little warning, COVID-19 quickly escalated into a generational crisis, creating sustained havoc seen perhaps only in past cases of war, attack, and natural disasters. In the bedlam of the early months, health, science, political, and economic communities were hit with sudden force, required to quickly shift and rearrange the normal order of work. In arbitration, leaders took imperfect information to make dramatic decisions. In process and procedure, arbitral institutions, arbitrators, legal counsel, and clients were swept into this turmoil. In some cases, bold initiatives, still in design and testing, were quickly put into service, upsetting norms and traditions and the very notions of traditional process.

READERSHIP: The Impact of COVID on International Disputes includes contributions from legal practitioners and academics, takes a fresh look at issues addressed in international arbitration during the COVID-19 pandemic, gathering best practices, additional perspective and predictions based on current practices that will help parties, legal counsel and arbitrators in the future.
The Geoeconomic Diplomacy of European Sanctions

Networked Practices and Sanctions Implementation

Kim B. Olsen, German Council on Foreign Relations

When policy-makers opt for sanctions or other economic power instruments in response to geostrategic challenges, the stage is set for geoeconomic diplomacy. Challenging traditional conceptions about the interplay between governments and markets, this book sheds a new light on the diplomatic actors and processes that shape successful geoeconomic foreign and security policy-making.

Unpacking the ‘networked practices’ through which diplomats advanced the early implementation of the European Union's far-reaching sanctions regimes against Russia and Syria, the book demonstrates how geoeconomic diplomats depend on their abilities to navigate in complex actor-networks in the interfaces between the public, private, and non-governmental realm.

READERSHIP: The book targets scholars and practitioners of sanctions, geoeconomics, and economic statecraft as well as those focusing on the intersection of diplomacy studies, international practice theory, and foreign policy implementation.

Demography of a Shtetl
The Case of Piotrków Trybunalski
Tomasz M. Jankowski, Friedrich-Christian-Lesser-Stiftung

This quantitative study of Piotrków Trybunalski traces the evolution of the population in the typical early modern semi-agrarian town in which the majority of activity was concentrated in the Jewish suburbs into a provincial capital in Congress Poland. Through the use of longitudinal aggregations and family reconstruction it explores fertility, mortality, and marriage patterns from the early nineteenth century, when civil records were introduced, until the Holocaust, revealing key differences as well as striking similarities between local Jews and non-Jews. The example of Piotrków set in a broader European context highlights variations in the pre-transitional demography of Ashkenazi Jewry and lack of universal model describing the “traditional” or “eastern European” Jewish family.

An Introduction to the Japonic Languages

Grammatical Sketches of Japanese Dialects and Ryukyuan Languages

Edited by Michinori Shimoji, Kyushu University

Japanese is definitely one of the best-known languages in typological literature. For example, typologists often assume that Japanese is a nominative-accusative language. However, it is often overlooked that Japanese, or more precisely, Tokyo Japanese, is just one of various local varieties of the Japonic language family (Japanese and Ryukyuan). In fact, the Japonic languages exhibit a surprising typological diversity. For example, some varieties display a split-intransitive as opposed to nominative-accusative system. The present volume is thus a unique attempt to explore the typological diversity of Japonic by providing a collection of grammatical sketches of various local varieties, four from Japanese dialects and five from Ryukyuan.

The disappearance of the French simple past has been hotly debated since the early 20th century. This volume offers an overview of its fortunes since French emerged as a language, provides a description of its distinctive features, and discusses the potential impact of its supposed demise on the whole French verb system. These assumptions are tested against a large corpus of contemporary texts.

READERSHIP: Scholars and students of the verbal system, and those interested in the intertwining of language and society evolution.

The Linguistic Landscape of the Indian Himalayas
Languages in Kinnaur
Anju Saxena, Uppsala University

This monograph is a contribution to the documentation of the linguistic situation of the Kinnaur district in Himachal Pradesh (Indian Himalayas) which has been so far almost undescribed. The Sino-Tibetan languages Kinnauri and Navakat and the Indo-Aryan language Kinnauri Pahari, all spoken in Kinnaur, are described both individually and as parts of a multifaceted linguistic ecology that extends into the surrounding wider Himalayan region.

READERSHIP: Scholars, students and others interested in: language typology, language documentation, language contact, language change and shift, Tibeto-Burman languages, Sino-Tibetan languages, Indo-Aryan languages, languages of the Himalayas, South Asian linguistics.
‘Make It Old’: Retro Forms and Styles in Literature and Music
Edited by Walter Bernhart, University of Graz, and Werner Wolf, University of Graz

A Cultural History of the Avant-Garde in the Nordic Countries Since 1975
Benedikt Hjartarson, Camilla Skovbjerg Paldam, Laura Luise Schultz, and Tania Ørum

Literary Invention and the Cartographic Imagination
Early Modern to Late Modern
Edited by Monika Szuba, University of Gdánsk, and Julian Wolfreys

‘Retro’ is not only a pervading phenomenon in today’s Western culture but has informed cultural history for some centuries and thus gives momentousness to the subject of the present volume, namely literary texts and musical compositions which, for various reasons and with multiple functions, ‘make it old’.

The Cultural History of the Avant-Garde in the Nordic Countries Since 1975 brings the series of cultural histories of the avant-garde in the Nordic countries up to the present. It discusses revisions and continuations of historical practices since 1975.

A wide-ranging, inter- and trans-disciplinary approach grounded in the twin rigors of theory and history, which, through close readings assesses and analyses the significance of maps to literary texts, and which examines the ways in which the literary maps imaginary and real worlds.

READERSHIP: All interested in avant-garde movements in all the arts in the 20th century, particularly in the Nordic countries.

READERSHIP: Readership includes advanced-level undergraduates, MA and doctoral students, and professional academics working in the humanities.
A Poetic History of the Oceans
Literature and Maritime Modernity
Søren Frank

In Search of Singularity
Poetry in Poland and China Since 1989
Joanna Krenz,
Adam Mickiewicz University

Marriage in James Hogg’s Work
Plotting for Gender, Class, and Ethnic Equality
Barbara Leonardi

A Poetic History of the Oceans provides the reader with a stunning overview of how writers, sailors, painters, scientists, historians, and philosophers from across time and space have poetically envisioned the oceans and depicted human entanglements with the sea.

In Search of Singularity offers a new methodological approach to literary comparison in tracing the intertwined political, discursive, artistic, and conceptual trajectories of Polish and Chinese poetry since 1989.

A controversial self-taught shepherd who violated the rules of literary decorum to reveal the dark side of the Scottish margins. Through a strategic use of nineteenth-century stereotypes of femininity and masculinity he lays bare the intersection with class and ethnicity in Scotland.

READERSHIP: Academic libraries, specialists, students and postgraduate students, research institutes in Blue Humanities and Environmental Humanities.

READERSHIP: All who recognize that all spheres of human intellectual, artistic, and existential activity jointly pursue answers to Big Questions, and who wish to partake in this pursuit equipped in good (Polish and Chinese) poetry.

READERSHIP: Scholars working on Hogg studies, Scottish Romanticism, the marriage plot, military and sentimental masculinities in the long 19th century; the ballads of infanticide, (im)politeness theory and pragmatics linguistics for literature.

The Western Reinvention of Chinese Literature, 1910-2010

From Ezra Pound to Maxine Hong Kingston

During much of China’s tumultuous 20th century, May 4th and Maoist iconoclasts regarded their classical literary heritage as a burden to be dislodged in the quest for modernization. This volume demonstrates how the traditions that had deeply impressed earlier generations of Western writers like Goethe and Voltaire did not lose their lustre; to the contrary, a fascination with these past riches sprouted with renewed vigour among Euro-American poets, novelists, and other cultural figures after the fall of imperial China in 1911.

Baghdād
From Its Beginnings to the 14th Century
Edited by Jens Scheiner and Isabel Toral

Baghdād: From its Beginnings to the 14th Century offers an exhaustive handbook that covers all possible themes connected to the history of this urban complex in Iraq, from its origins rooted in late antique Mesopotamia up to the aftermath of the Mongol invasion in 1258.

Against the common perception of a city founded 762 in a vacuum, which, after experiencing a heyday in a mythical “golden age” under the early ʿAbbāsids, entered since 900 a long period of decline that ended with a complete collapse by savage people from the East in 1258, the volume emphasizes the continuity of Baghdād’s urban life, and shows how it was marked by its destiny as caliphal seat and cultural hub.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of Baghdad, Iraq and generally Islamic history before 1400, and anyone concerned with urban, intellectual and social history in the Middle East.
Arab Traders in Their Own Words

Merchant Letters from the Eastern Mediterranean Around 1800

Edited by Alexander N. Chumakov, Alyssa DeBlasio, and Ilya V. Ilyin

Philosophical Aspects of Globalization is a collection of essays by leading contemporary Russian philosophers and scholars concerned with addressing pressing questions of globalization and its impact from a philosophical point of view.

READERSHIP: English-language readers interested in Global Studies and/or contemporary trends in Russian philosophy and Global Studies.
L’Intrigue dénouée. Mythe, littérature et communauté dans la pensée de Jean-Luc Nancy

Aukje van Rooeden, l’Université d’Amsterdam

This is the first book to provide a systematic investigation of the relation between community and literature in the work of Jean-Luc Nancy. The author develops the original claim that this relation has to be understood as a rethinking of myth.

READERSHIP: This book appeals directly to everyone interested in Jean-Luc Nancy’s work, and to those interested in the issues of community and literature in continental philosophy and literary theory.

Phénoménologie de l’action

Perspectives contemporaines sur l’agentivité et le sujet

Edited by Federico Boccaccini, University of Brasilia

This groundbreaking book in contemporary phenomenology offers the cutting-edge of research on both history and philosophy of action from the first-person point of view. An essential study for anyone working in this area.

READERSHIP: Professors, scholars, students (graduate and postgraduate) working on theory of action and agency, contemporary phenomenology, history of phenomenology, mind and action.

Hasdai Crescas on Codification, Cosmology and Creation

The Infinite God and the Expanding Torah

Ari Ackerman, Schechter Institute in Jerusalem

This work focuses on the conception of God of the medieval Jewish philosopher and legal scholar, Hasdai Crescas (1340-1410/11). It demonstrates that Crescas’ God is infinitely creative and good and explores the parallel that Crescas implicitly draws between God as creator and legislator.

READERSHIP: The primary readership would be specialists in and students of Jewish philosophy and law.

Meister Eckharts Rezeption im Nationalsozialismus
Studien zur ideologischen Ambivalenz der ›deutschen‹ Mystik
Edited by Maxime Mauriège, Universität zu Köln, and Martina Roesner, Universität Wien

This volume analyses the various forms of ideological instrumentalization Meister Eckhart’s mysticism has been subject to during the era of National Socialism. Furthermore, the volume includes hitherto unpublished source material concerning the institutional background of Eckhart’s reception in the Third Reich.

READERSHIP: Specialists and researchers about Meister Eckhart and his reception as well as about National Socialism.

Pre-Liberal Political Philosophy
Rawls and Plato, Aristotle, Augustine, Aquinas
Daniel A. Dombrowski, Seattle University

John Rawls is the most influential 20th century political philosopher, but critics have complained about the ahistorical character of his approach. The purpose of this book is to argue that these critics are, at best, only half correct.

READERSHIP: Scholars and graduate students in the following areas should be interested in this book: political philosophy, political thought, ancient philosophy, medieval philosophy, political theology.

Women and the Female in Neoplatonism
Edited by Jana Schultz, Humboldt University Berlin, and James Wilberding, Humboldt University Berlin

This book explores the various ways, ranging over psychology, political philosophy and metaphysics, that both historical women and various conceptualizations of the female help shape Neoplatonism, one of the most influential philosophical schools of late antiquity, at various levels.

READERSHIP: This book is of special interest for researchers and students in the fields of classics or philosophy who are interested in Platonic and Neoplatonic philosophy, feministic philosophy and late antiquity.
Corona Phenomenon

Philosophical and Political Questions

Edited by Pegah Mossleh, Institute for Humanities and Cultural Studies (IHCS) in Tehran (Iran)

This book is the outcome of one of the most extensive international academic projects on the COVID-19 pandemic in the field of humanities and social sciences. It includes the reflections of scholars from 25 universities, in Europe, Asia, Canada, Australia, the US, and the UK, on 60 important philosophical and political questions.

This paradigmatic volume is unique in the history of the humanities and social sciences in dealing with pandemics and should be considered as a starting point for more coherent and synergistic academic cooperation in preparation for similar future phenomena.

READERSHIP: The main audiences of this book are academics, including professors and students in all fields, especially in philosophy and political science. However, the book may also be insightful for readers outside of academia.
Shakespeare and religio mentis: A Study of Christian Hermetism in Four Plays

JANE EVERINGHAM NELSON, University of Adelaide

This landmark interdisciplinary study shines the light of religious Hermetism on Love’s Labour’s Lost, King Lear, Othello and The Tempest and reveals the ‘religion of the mind’ found in the Corpus Hermeticum to be a source of Shakespeare’s understanding of human psychology.

READERSHIP: Of interest to students and to academics in: history of thought; history of Hermetic thought; Renaissance in Italy and France; early modern drama; Shakespeare; Reformation.

Using the Bible and Qur’an in Swahili Tracts

John A. Chesworth, University of Birmingham

The present volume sets Swahili religious tracts available in Kenya and Tanzania in their context. The book starts with an overview of tracts in Swahili from the 19th century to the present day, an examination of Swahili as a religious language, and an introduction to Swahili versions of the Bible and Qur’an. Chesworth then introduces the range of tracts currently available, examining eight in detail. In particular he considers how they present scripture in order to promote their own faith, Islam or Christianity, whilst denigrating the ‘other’.

READERSHIP: Specialists in Christian-Muslim relations and religion in Africa, Islamicists, linguists, missiologists and theologians.

Thomas Vaughan and the Rosicrucian Revival in Britain

1648–1666

Thomas Willard, University of Arizona

In the first book-length study of Thomas Vaughan (1621-1666), Thomas Willard builds on recent scholarship in Western esotericism to show that his curious books offer much more than the lively quotations extracted from them. Treating more than alchemy and the Hermetic tradition, they develop themes from the synthesis of alchemy, magic, and Christian cabala, associated with the Rosicrucian movement that Vaughan introduced to English readers.

READERSHIP: Scholars and students of early modern religion, philosophy, science, and culture as seen by an intelligent and eloquent outsider. This book will help readers to understand the writings of Thomas Vaughan and his brother Henry Vaughan, and to see how Thomas introduced Rosicrucian ideas to readers of English.
With this analysis of Sol images, Steven E. Hijmans paints a new picture of the solar cult in ancient Rome. The paucity of literary evidence led Hijmans to prioritize visual sources, and he opens this study with a thorough discussion of the theoretical and methodological issues involved. Emphasizing the danger of facile equivalencies between visual and verbal meanings, his primary focus is Roman praxis, manifest in, for instance, the strict patterning of Sol imagery. These patterns encode core concepts that Sol imagery evoked when deployed, and in those concepts we recognize the bedrock of Rome’s understandings of the sun and his cult. Case studies illustrate these concepts in action and the final chapter analyzes the historical context in which previous, now discredited views on Sol could arise.

READERSHIP: All interested in the Roman god Sol, Roman religion, ancient solar cults, or the (religious) policies of Aurelian and Constantine; anyone interested in using visual material as sources for Roman religion.

The Curious Trajectory of Caste in West Bengal Politics

_Chronicling Continuity and Change_

Ayan Guha, Jamia Hamdard (Deemed University), New Delhi, India

Matteo Battistini offers a critical deconstruction of the fetish of the middle class. Social sciences strive to transform an image of labour and capital as opposing forces into a consensual order wherein capitalism and democracy could coexist without tension.

The editors of this volume have crafted a coherent volume that addresses key issues of labor migration and provides in-depth critical discussions of the concept of “global labor markets”. It, thus, enriches our understanding of both globalization and labor markets.

READERSHIP: Students, scholars and anyone interested in caste, Dalit politics, identity politics, Indian politics and society in general and West Bengal.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of the middle classes and of US social sciences, and anyone concerned with intellectual and political history of the United States.

READERSHIP: Scholars and students from different disciplines, e.g. Economics, Sociology, History, Political Science, Social Policy, Industrial Relations, Management Studies and Migration Studies.

Essays in Ecumenical Theology 2
Conversations with Orthodoxy

Ivana Noble, Charles University, Prague

In this volume Ivana Noble engages in conversations with Orthodox theologians and spiritual writers on diverse themes. These include the discovery of the human heart, the relationship between prayer and attitudes and acts of social solidarity, the problematic nature of sacrificial thinking as the way to express redemption through Christ, the ecological dimension of theological anthropology, the need for freedom to coexist with love for others and why institutions need to turn not only to their own traditions but also to the Spirit that blows where it wills.

READERSHIP: All interested in Christian theology and spirituality, both Orthodox and Western, in ecumenism, and in the search for shared human values.
