Yearbook on the African Union

Volume 3 (2022)

Edited by Ulf Engel, Leipzig University

This is the third edition of the Yearbook on the African Union (YBAU). The YBAU is first and foremost an academic project that provides an in-depth evaluation and analysis of the institution, its processes, and its engagements. Despite the increased agency in recent years of the African Union in general, and the AU Commission in particular, little is known – outside expert policy or niche academic circles – about the Union’s activities. This is the gap the Yearbook on the African Union wants to systematically address. It seeks to be a reference point for in-depth research, evidence-based policy-making and decision-making.

READERSHIP: The book appeals to post-graduate students, scholars and researchers in policy-oriented research circles, so-called practitioners and experts, journalists as well as international organisations’ and non-governmental organisations’ staff, diplomats and policymakers.

Disability and Aid
An Ethnography of Logics and Practices of Distribution in a Ugandan Refugee Camp
Maria-Theres Schuler, University of Zürich

At a time when rights are increasingly placed on the humanitarian agenda, this unique ethnographic account of refugees with disabilities shows how they navigate categories of entitlement and concrete benefits, exposing power dynamics and redefining dependency in a thought-provoking way.

READERSHIP: The book addresses scholars of anthropology and African Studies, especially in the fields of disability, aid and development. As an accessibly written ethnography it is important for students and aid practitioners.

Europeans Are Lovin ‘It? Coca-Cola, McDonald’s and Responses to American Global Businesses in Italy and France, 1886–2015

Giulia Crisanti, Sapienza Università di Roma

From the French origin of Coca-Cola to McDonald’s sponsorship of the 2015 Milan Expo, the book presents the first comparative history of these multinational corporations in two Western European countries, addressing some compelling questions: to what extent our increasingly globalized world is persistently shaped by forms of American hegemony, and what are some of the forces that have been most effective at challenging the relationship between Americanization and globalization? Through the local history of global companies, the book tells a new story about not only the influence of American businesses in Europe but also the influence of European governments and societies on those American businesses and their adaptability.

READERSHIP: Scholars of Americanization and Euro-American relations; American cultural institutions in France and Italy; scholars of food studies; graduate and undergraduate students (late modern history, American studies, food studies, history of globalization).

Variability in the Earlier Egyptian Mortuary Texts

Carlos Gracia Zamacona, Universidad de Alcalá

This volume presents fourteen studies on variability in the Pyramid and Coffin Texts and related materials, divided into three sections: study cases illustrative of uniqueness, group cases within or without the main tradition, and tracers that gauge disparity processes.

READERSHIP: Scholars of the Middle East, Afroasiatic and Semitic languages, ancient Near East, ancient Egypt, history and culture of the Mediterranean, literature, and religion.

READERSHIP: The book primarily targets academic institutions, specialised libraries and individuals interested in archaeological, philological, linguistic, social history, religious, graphemic and interdisciplinary studies on ancient Egypt.
Nation and Empire as Two Trends of Political Organization in the Iron Age Levant

MEI Hualong, Peking University

Collective Violence and Memory in the Ancient Mediterranean

Sonja Ammann, Helge Bezold, Stephen Germany and Julia Rhyder

Excavations at Tel Kabri III

The 2013 to 2019 Seasons

Edited by Eric H. Cline, Alexandra Ratzlaff and Assaf Yasur-Landau

In Nation and Empire as Two Trends of Political Organization in the Iron Age Levant MEI Hualong offers a terminological and textual analysis of national and imperial ideologies in the Iron Age Levant and the interaction between them.

This book reveals how violent pasts were constructed by ancient Mediterranean societies, the ideologies they served, and the socio-political processes and institutions they facilitated.

Tel Kabri was the center of a Canaanite polity during the first half of the second millennium BCE. This volume presents the results of the archaeological work done at the site during the years from 2013 to 2019.

READERSHIP: All interested in the interaction of nation and empire in the ancient Near East, and anyone concerned with the relevance of related terminologies and concepts in an ancient context.

READERSHIP: This book is intended for an academic readership that spans various domains of ancient studies, including historians of the ancient Mediterranean, biblical scholars, Assyriologists, Egyptologists, and Classicists.

READERSHIP: All interested in the archaeology and ancient history of the Canaanites and the Levant during the second millennium BCE, as well as final excavation site reports.
Legitimising Magic
Strategies and Practices in Ancient Mesopotamia
Nils. P. Heeßel and Elyze Zomer

This volume illuminates the strategies adopted to legitimise the practice of magic and analyses how these justifications are phrased and formulated in cuneiform texts, thereby revealing the underlying principles and unexplained axioms of using magic in the Ancient Near East.

READERSHIP: The book is intended for readers interested in the history of religion of the ancient Near East, including graduate, postgraduate students, academic institutions and libraries.

Akkadian Royal Letters in Later Mesopotamian Tradition
Mary Frazer, LMU Munich

Akkadian Royal Letters in Later Mesopotamian Tradition reconsiders the question of the authenticity of the letters attributed to earlier royal correspondents that were studied in Assyrian and Babylonian scribal centres ca. 700–100 BCE. By scrutinizing the letters’ contents, language, possible transmission histories ca. 1400–100 BCE and the epistemic limitations of authenticity criticism, the book grounds scepticism about the letters’ authenticity in previously undiscussed features of the texts. It also provides a new foundation for research into the related questions of when and why these beguiling texts were composed in the first place.

READERSHIP: This book is primarily aimed at philologists and historians of the Ancient Near East (Assyriologists), above all specialists of the period ca. 1400–100 BCE. It may also be relevant to a wider audience of historians of Hellenistic cultural history.
Numinous Fields, Perceiving the Sacred in Nature, Landscape, and Art

Samer Akkach, University of Adelaide, and John Powell, University of Adelaide

Numinous Fields has its roots in a phenomenological understanding of perception. It seeks to understand what, beyond the mere sensory data they provide, landscape, nature, and art, both separately and jointly, may mean when we experience them. It focuses on actual or potential experiences of the numinous, or sacred, that such encounters may give rise to.

READERSHIP: Scholars, researchers, and students of religious studies, art history, architecture, and landscape, anthropology, cultural geography, museum studies, philosophical aesthetics, Islamic studies, garden history and visual culture.

Beyond the Silk and Book Roads

Rethinking Networks of Exchange and Material Culture

Edited by Michelle C. Wang and Ryan Richard Overbey

Silk Road studies has often treated material artifacts and manuscripts separately. This interdisciplinary volume expands the scope of transcultural transmission, questions what constituted a “book,” and explores networks of circulation shared by material artifacts and manuscripts.

READERSHIP: Scholars and students of Silk Road studies, manuscript studies, Buddhist studies, Buddhist art.

The Awakening of the Hinterland: The Formation of Regional Vinaya Traditions in Tang China

Anna Sokolova

This volume explores the establishment of the Dharmaguptaka Vinaya tradition in Tang China (618–907). By conceptualizing vinaya patriarchates as interrelated mobile monastic–secular social networks, this study outlines the patterns of the tradition’s regional dissemination.

READERSHIP: Scholars in the fields of Chinese Buddhism and Chinese history, as well as non-specialists with an interest in Buddhism.

Learning from the West, Learning from the East: The Emergence of the Study of Buddhism in Japan and Europe before 1900

Edited by Stephan Licha and Hans Martin Krämer

This volume offers a new perspective on the formation of academic Buddhist studies by giving equal weight to the agency of Asian and European actors, thus filling an important lacuna in critical scholarship on the history of Orientalist knowledge.

READERSHIP: Scholars in Japanese Studies, East and South Asian Studies, Buddhist Studies, Religious studies, Transcultural studies, European history, and the history of knowledge or science.

Utopian Fiction in China
Genre, Print Culture and Knowledge Formation, 1902–1912
Shuk Man Leung,
The University of Hong Kong

The book studies utopian fiction as a knowledge apparatus by connecting three aspects of late Qing culture: the rise of modern press, the emergence of new genre, and the epistemology of modernity, while reflecting on the ability of utopian imagination to develop the three-way relationship between new people, new China, and new genre via the Chinese public sphere.

Edited by Henry Johnson

Reimagining the Globe and Cultural Exchange:
The East Asian Legacies of Matteo Ricci’s World Map
Edited by Laura Hostetler

This book argues that educational reform filled a critical role in strengthening China’s embryonic democracy. It offers a multi-level analysis of the parallel, but at the same time interconnected, developments of the educational system and civic knowledge in China between 1901–1937.

Exploring an array of topics, from hybridized Buddhist music to AI singers, this book introduces Japanese music in the modern era. The chapters highlight unique influences, including the transformation of traditional genres and the adoption of Western musical practices ranging from classical music to hip hop.

A multi-disciplinary inquiry into the origins and influences of Matteo Ricci’s World Map in Chinese from the foundation of the Jesuit Order in 1540 up to the present.

READERSHIP: This book would be of immediate interest and relevance for scholars, undergraduate and postgraduate students, teachers, academic and cultural institutes, and academic and research libraries.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars in the fields of music or Japanese studies, as well as in related fields such as history, anthropology, Asian studies, and cultural studies.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars of world history, early modernity, sino-western cultural contact, history of cartography, and the geopolitics of East Asia.

The Precursors of Aquila

The First Complete Publication of the Text of the Greek Minor Prophets Scroll (8ḤevXIIgr)

Dominique Barthélemy Ron Bell, McMaster Divinity College

This ground-breaking study in Septuagint translation technique is, after sixty years, finally available to an English-speaking audience. Barthélemy provides us with a first look at the fragments of the Greek Minor Prophets Scroll from the Cave of Horror and embarks on a careful examination of this scroll’s place in the history of Septuagint translation and revision. He poses questions and answers that have yet to be fully explored. Devanciers d'Aquila is described as “epoch-making” (Robert Kraft—Gnomon), “a stimulating contribution” (Sidney Jellicoe—Journal of the American Oriental Society), and “a monograph of singular importance” (Geza Vermes—Journal of Semitic Studies).

READERSHIP: This book should be available in all university libraries. It is of particular interest to biblical scholars and students, and important to those considering the Septuagint as a focus area.
Almsgiving as the Essential Virtue
A Study of the Homilies of John Chrysostom
Becky Walker, Loyola University Maryland

This book demonstrates the unique and far-reaching claims John Chrysostom made concerning almsgiving’s many benefits, including its ability to forgive any and all sin. The author also identifies several factors that led John to favor almsgiving over other ascetic practices.

READERSHIP: All interested in the scholarship on almsgiving in late antiquity, concerning the remission of post-baptismal sin.

Imagining the Death of Jesus in Fourth Century Mesopotamia
A Study of Ephrem of Nisibis
Blake Hartung

In this volume Blake Hartung explores the place of the passion and death of Jesus in the writings of Ephrem of Nisibis, arguing that this central Christian drama informed not only Ephrem’s ideas of the atonement, but his entire wide-ranging theological imagination.

READERSHIP: This monograph will prove appealing to specialists in Syriac and Middle Eastern studies. Because Ephrem is widely revered across Christian traditions, a monograph on Ephrem will also be of ecumenical interest.

Authenticating Criteria in Jesus Research and Beyond
An Interdisciplinary Methodology
Kevin B. Burr, Harding School of Theology

Criteria of authenticity have long featured in New Testament studies. Some argue these tools are unique—even idiosyncratic—to Jesus research, but this study demonstrates that general historians employ similar criteria to the same effect as historians of Jesus.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars of the New Testament.

Luke Was Not A Christian: Reading the Third Gospel and Acts within Judaism
Joshua Paul Smith, Central Seminary in Shawnee, Kansas

In this volume Joshua Paul Smith challenges the long-held belief that the Gospel of Luke and the Acts of the Apostles were written by a gentile Christian. Instead, Smith argues that the author of these texts was educated and socialized within a Hellenistic Jewish context.

Narrative, Calling, and Missional Identity in 1 Peter

Between Promise and Inheritance

David M. Shaw, North-West University, South Africa

This volume examines how 1 Peter’s use of Old Testament narratives and motifs, together with καλέω language, shapes the identity and mission of the nascent Anatolian churches by drawing upon the dual methodologies of Narrative Transportation and Social Identity theories.

READERSHIP: Institutes, academic libraries, specialists in the Old Testament, specialists in 1 Peter.

The Prophetic Voice of Amos on Contemporary Social Justice

Paul’s Tale of Two Siblings

Kofi Amissah

This volume identifies social justice concerns in Amos, by carefully analysing the text and context. It then identifies contemporary social justice issues by analysing interviews and current news to ascertain how Amos’ social justice concerns speak to contemporary social justice.

READERSHIP: The book will serve Biblical scholars and students interested in the Bible and social justice; church leaders, preachers, pastors and teachers interested in bringing the Bible into their contemporary situations.

Christ-faith and Abraham in Galatians 3–4

Between Promise and Inheritance

Johnathan F. Harris, Samford University

Paul argues that Gentile Christians are true Abrahamic children apart from Torah because, like Isaac, they have been given life from the event of Christ-faith by the Spirit. Mere circumcision relates one to Abraham, like Ishmael, only by flesh.

Moses among the Greek Lawgivers

Reading Josephus’ Antiquities through Plutarch’s Lives

Ursula Westwood, Stellenbosch University

Josephus’ Antiquities invites his audience to compare the Jewish lawgiver, Moses, with the famous legislators of Greece and Rome. This book responds to the invitation, using Plutarch’s Lives to uncover a series of appeals and challenges embedded in Josephus’ narrative.

READERSHIP: The primary readership will be academics and postgraduate students working on Jewish literature in Greek under the Roman empire, including those in departments of Jewish studies, and Classics.

Death of the Covenant Code

Capital Punishment in Old Greek Exodus in Light of Greco-Egyptian Law

Joel Korytko, Northwest Seminary & College

This work illuminates how the earliest and predominant Greek translation of Exodus significantly and surprisingly transforms the meaning of laws with capital punishment in the Covenant Code, and it suggests that these transformations might find their origin in Greco-Egyptian law.

READERSHIP: Universities/institutes with Classics or Hebrew Bible; Students trained in Greek/Hebrew and Bible; academic libraries.

Reading the Letter to Titus in Light of Crete

Dynamics of Early Christian Identity Construction

Michael Scott Robertson, Universität Regensburg

This volume argues that Titus’s invocation of Crete affected the ways early readers developed their identities. Because readers had differing conceptions of Crete based on their location and access to Cretan traditions, readers would have developed their identities in multiple ways.

READERSHIP: This book would be of interest to Scholars of Arabic literature, Judeo-Arabic literature, Medieval Jewish history, Bible Translation, Cultural and Linguistic Exchange, Lexicography, Jewish Law, Jewish Prayer.
The notion of faith experienced a remarkable surge in popularity among early Christians, with Paul as its pioneer. Yet what was the wider cultural significance of the pistis word group? This comprehensive work contextualizes Paul’s faith language within Graeco-Roman cultural discourses, highlighting its semantic multifariousness and philosophical potential. Based on an innovative combination of cognitive linguistics and discourse analysis, it explores ‘faith’ within social, political, religious, ethical, and cognitive contexts. While challenging modern individualist and irrational conceptualizations, this book shows how Paul uses pistis to creatively configure philosophical narratives of his age and propose Christ as its ultimate embodiment.

READERSHIP: All interested in Paul’s faith language within Graeco-Roman cultural discourses, semantics, philosophy, Pauline Studies.

READERSHIP: This book is mainly intended for historians, archaeologists, anthropologists, philologists, and classical scholars, and anyone interested in understanding the processes on integration in the Roman World.

Drawing on recent debates on cultural contact, this book offers a series of examples that invite to interpret integration in the Roman Mediterranean as the creation of an imperial scale, a common frame of reference for the inhabitants of the Roman world.

The book provides a comprehensive account of the Roman impact on the economy of the Lower Germanic Limes region and thereby makes a valuable contribution to the larger debate on Roman economic growth.

READERSHIP: Scholars studying aspects of the Roman economy in this or other parts of the Roman Empire or other academics with an interest in the economy of this region.

This book studies how law and legal thought affected and transformed territories and the lives of the peoples who populated the Roman west. It is firmly set within recent studies on the societal, political, and economic importance of legal regulations and institutions.

READERSHIP: The book is primarily intended for a scholarly audience, ranging from PhD students to senior experts in their field, interested in and working on ancient history, ancient law, and Latin epigraphy.

Brill's Companion to Diet and Logistics in Greek and Roman Warfare
Edited by John F. Donahue, College of William and Mary, and Lee L. Brice, Western Illinois University

This volume treats diet and supply in the Greco-Roman military from Homer through the Roman Empire. These essays reassess “provisioning” and “supply” from multiple perspectives to add fresh focus to a critical, yet often overlooked, feature of ancient military activity.

READERSHIP: This book will be of interest to specialists and students of military and ancient history and food studies, as well as classical studies, anthropology, strategic studies, and foreign relations.

Brill's Companion to Ancient Greek and Roman Warfare on Film
Edited by Konstantinos P. Nikoloutsos, Saint Joseph's University

Through a vast array of case studies, from the silent era to recent years, Brill's Companion to Ancient Greek and Roman Warfare on Film traces cinema's enduring fascination with battles and violence in classical antiquity and explores the reasons, synchronic as well as diachronic, for war's centrality in celluloid Greece and Rome.

READERSHIP: Researchers of classical reception; faculty and students in ancient history, film studies, military studies, Italian studies, peace studies; academic libraries.

Brill's Companion to Warfare in the Bronze Age Aegean
Edited by Lynne A. Kvapil, Butler University, and Kim Shelton, UC Berkeley

This volume interrogates the nature of warfare in the Aegean world during the Bronze Age, reviews the essential forms of evidence, considers the social and cultural place of war, and revisits some longstanding questions.

READERSHIP: Scholars and teachers with knowledge of the ancient Mediterranean, who wish to access the state of the field when it comes to the ways that specialists approach warfare in the prehistoric Aegean.
Mouldmade Bowls of the Black Sea Region and Beyond

From Prestige Object to an Article of Mass Consumption

Pia Guldager Bilde
Edited by Susan I. Rotroff, Washington University in St. Louis

This book opens up a new window into the Hellenistic world through a close study of mouldmade bowls, their places of production (both in the Black Sea and the Mediterranean), iconographies and distribution. The author’s unique access to material in the Black Sea Region provides the backbone to a rare comparative approach to an important type of vessel that traditionally has been studied in local isolation.

READERSHIP: Academic libraries and specialists in classical and Mediterranean archaeology.

Augustine and Rhetoric

Argumentative Strategies in Early Christianity

Edited by Adam Ployd, Davenport College, Yale University, and Rafał Toczko, Nicolaus Copernicus University in Toruń

This volume examines the place of classical rhetoric in Augustine’s theology. Rather than seeing rhetoric as a matter only of style, the authors examine the argumentative techniques that Augustine would have learned and taught as a professional rhetorician.

READERSHIP: This volume would be of most interest to specialist researchers and post-graduate students in Augustinian studies, historical theology, patristics, classics and late antiquity.

Narrative, Imagination and Concepts of Fiction in Late Antique Hagiography

Edited by Julie Van Pelt, Ghent University, and Koen De Temmerman, Ghent University with the collaboration of Klazina Staat, VU University Amsterdam

This volume explores concepts of fiction, invention, and imagination in late antique hagiographical narrative in diverse cultural and literary traditions. The chapters present innovative explorations of this material by approaching narrative itself as an inherent element of the genre of hagiography that deserves attention in its own right.

READERSHIP: This book will appeal to a wide range of readers, including undergraduates and scholars in a variety of fields such as Classics, Medieval Studies, Religious Studies, Oriental Studies, Cultural History, and Literary Studies.

Manipulating the Sun
Picturing Astronomical Miracles from the Bible in the Early Modern Era
Edited by Julia Ellinghaus, Bergische Universität Wuppertal, and Volker Remmert, Bergische Universität Wuppertal

Defining the Identity of the Younger Europe launches an eye-opening journey into emerging cultures and civilizations of the “Younger Europe” — Byzantine-Slavic and Scandinavian territories — from the fall of Constantinople (1453) to the dawn of the Industrial Age.

As the first critical study, edition and translation of the Arabic lead tablets and a parchment discovered in Granada (1588-1606), condemned by the Pope in 1682, this book offers a discussion of their religious message and the Islamic background of the Morisco authors.

The first interdisciplinary approach to the multi-faceted role of the prominent biblical miracles of the Sun reversing its course in II Kings 20:8-11/Isaiah 38:8 (Horologium Ahas) and the Sun standing still in Joshua 10:12 in Early Modern exegesis, arts and sciences.

READERSHIP: All those interested in early modern history and cultures of Northern and East-Central Europe, historians of literature, historians of Catholicism, historians of Reformation, historians of political and religious ideas.

READERSHIP: Students of Islamic Studies, the history of Islam in the Iberian Peninsula and the Maghrib, Muslim-Christian relations, Mudejars, Moriscos, Jewish history, and the Urban History of Granada.

READERSHIP: Historians of art, historians of science, garden historians, gnomonists, theologians, historians of mathematics, experts on scientific instruments, iconographers. Academic libraries, specialists, museums.

Martianus Capella in the Late Middle Ages and Renaissance

Katie Reid

In this book, Katie Reid argues that the fifth-century author Martianus Capella was a significant influence in the late Middle Ages and Renaissance. His poetic encyclopaedia, The Marriage of Philology and Mercury, was a source for writing on the liberal arts, allegory and classical mythology from 1300 to 1650. In fact, writers of this period had much more in common with Martianus Capella than they did with older ancients like Homer and Virgil. As such, we must reshape our understanding of late medieval and Renaissance encounters with the classical world by exploring their roots in Late Antiquity.

READERSHIP: Specialists and post-graduates studying English, French, Italian or Latin literature, intellectual history, art history, mythology, or classical reception studies will find this volume especially relevant.

Religious Rites of War Beyond the Medieval West
Edited by Radosław Kotecki, Kazimierz Wielki University, Jacek Maciejewski, Kazimierz Wielki University, and Gregory Leighton, Nicolaus Copernicus University

This is a two-volume collection that brings together contributions from cultural and military history to offer an examination of religious rites employed in connection with warfare as well as their transformative and power- and identity-building potential across political communities of medieval Northern, Central, and Eastern Europe. Covering the period ca. 900 and 1500, the work takes theoretical, textual and practical approaches to the research on religious warfare, and investigates the connections between, and significance and function of crucial war rituals such as pre-, intra- and postbellum rites, as well as various activities surrounding the military life of individuals, polities, and corporates.

READERSHIP: This book is intended for scholars of medieval culture, religious and military history, as well as graduate students, advanced undergraduates, and other interested readers.

Citizens and Sodomites: Persecution and Perception of Sodomy in the Southern Low Countries (1400—1700)

Jonas Roelens, Ghent University

The Southern Low Countries were among Europe’s core regions for the repression of sodomy during the fifteenth century: nowhere across the Alps were more sodomites convicted at the time. This is the first comprehensive study of sodomy in this region.

Teresa of Ávila

Pamela Jones, Brown University

Splendid, multimedia celebrations for Teresa of Avila’s beatification (1614) and canonization (1622) disseminated her cult to far-flung cities. Previously unknown festivities in Genoa, Rome, and Naples as well as those in Portuguese controlled Hormuz and Goa are vividly reconstructed and interpreted.

Ecological Crisis and Water Supply
The Case of Andalusia in the Spanish Hydrological Context
Edited by Juan Manuel Matés-Barco and María Vázquez-Fariñas

This book analyses the origin and evolution of the water supply service in Andalusia (southern Spain) between 1800 and 2020 from several perspectives. It does so from a historical perspective, to understand the evolution of the service over the years; from an economic perspective, as it is very useful to obtain an overview of the level of efficiency of the service; from a legislative perspective, as the regulatory framework of each era determines the models of management and provision of the service; and, finally, from an ecological and environmental perspective, of great importance in the New Water Culture and the protection of this resource. The volume’s main objective is to contribute to the extension of knowledge and analysis of the processes of municipalisation and/or privatisation of this service in Andalusia, with the aim of providing those responsible for local governments and administrations, both political and technical, with useful reflection and illustrative information on the use of municipalisation and/or privatisation as instruments for the reform of the local public sector.

READERSHIP: Researchers in the field of the Sustainable Development Goals and, specifically, water studies. University lecturers, PhD and students in Economics, Business Administration and Management, Finance and Accounting, and Law, among others.
Old Names, New Peoples: Listing Ethnonyms in Late Antiquity
Salvatore Liccardo, Austrian Academy of Sciences

This volume examines the meanings and functions of designations of peoples (“ethnonyms”) in Late Antiquity. By focusing on both textual and iconographic sources, it highlights the interplay between ethnic discourses, political messages, education, and spatial thinking.

Readership: This book will be of particular interest to post-graduate students and researchers that study ethnicity, geography and culture in Late Antiquity.

Law Reports of the Australian War Crimes Trials 1945-1951

Volume 1: The Reports of the Trials: Darwin, Morotai, Wewak and Labuan

Edited by Tim McCormack, University of Tasmania, and Narrelle E. Morris, Curtin University Law School

This is volume 1 of a new, 5-volume reference work which rectifies a lamentable gap in access to rich war crimes trial jurisprudence from the post-World War II era. It offers a comprehensive collection of the Law Reports of the 300 Australian Military Courts trials held between 1945-1951, together with location essays on their background and relevance.

Compliance with Judgments of the European Court of Human Rights

States on a Spectrum of Democratisation

Ramute Remezaite, Middlesex University

What does compliance with judgments of the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) look like in states on the spectrum of democratisation? This work provides an in-depth investigation of three such states—Armenia, Azerbaijan and Georgia—in the wider context of the growing ‘implementation crisis’ in Europe.

Readership: Academics and practitioners, as well as students at both undergraduate and postgraduate level.

The Universality of Human Rights

A Handbook

Edited by Bertrand G. Ramcharan, Theodoor C. van Boven, Abdul G. Koroma and Inès French

The Yearbook of International Organizations provides the most extensive coverage of non-profit international organizations currently available. Detailed profiles of international non-governmental and intergovernmental organizations (IGO), collected and documented by the Union of International Associations, can be found here.

READERSHIP: Researchers, Universities, Libraries, International Relations Professionals, Embassies, Ministries, Institutes, Lawyers, Not-For-Profit Organizations, Intergovernmental Organizations, Corporate Entities, Private Sector.

The elections of nonpermanent members to the Security Council have become an increasingly competitive political and diplomatic game. Why do states assign to the lengthy, expensive, and difficult commitment that a Security Council candidature entails? What do they want to achieve and why are some states more successful in their endeavour? This book establishes that the electoral results over time contribute to a stratified order between states and associate a term in the Council with multiple power enhancing benefits.

READERSHIP: Scholars interested in the United Nations, international organizations, and foreign policy making and international campaigning will find this book valuable. Decision-makers, diplomats and public officials may also find it very useful, since it offers advice on how to formulate a winning international campaign.
The Afterlives of Extraction: Alternatives and Sustainable Futures
Volume 2
Filipe Calvão, Geneva Graduate Institute, Matthew Archer, University of York, and Asanda Benya, University of Cape Town

This volume offers new perspectives from five continents on the complex and enduring legacies of resource extraction, and demonstrates the alarming obduracy of the logic of extractivism, even - and perhaps especially - in the growing support for the so-called green transition.

Death of the Covenant Code: Capital Punishment in Old Greek Exodus in Light of Greco-Egyptian Law
Joel Korytko, Northwest Seminary & College

This work illuminates how the earliest and predominant Greek translation of Exodus significantly and surprisingly transforms the meaning of laws with capital punishment in the Covenant Code, and it suggests that these transformations might find their origin in Greco-Egyptian law.

READERSHIP: Universities/institutes with Classics or Hebrew Bible; Students trained in Greek/Hebrew.

Before Maimonides
A New Philosophical Dialogue in Hebrew
Y. Tzvi Langermann, Bar Ilan University

A recently discovered Hebrew dialogue, most likely written in Iberia, affords a concise and lively glimpse of the state of philosophy and science before the great achievement of Moses Maimonides. The text is edited, translated, and analysed from the perspectives of historical and philosophical contexts as well as linguistic innovation.

READERSHIP: Universities, libraries, undergraduate and graduate students, with a specialty or interest in medieval Jewish thought or medieval science and philosophy in general.

Linguistic Bibliography for the Year 2022 / Bibliographie Linguistique de l’année 2022
And Supplement for Previous Years / et complément des années précédentes

Edited by Anne Aarssen, René Genis and Eline van der Veken

The Linguistic Bibliography / Bibliographie Linguistique is the annual bibliography of linguistics published by the Permanent International Committee of Linguists under the auspices of the International Council of Philosophy and Humanistic Studies of UNESCO. With a tradition of sixty-five years, the Linguistic Bibliography is by far the most comprehensive bibliography in the field. It covers all branches of linguistics, both theoretical and descriptive, from all geographical areas, including lesser known and extinct languages, with particular attention to the many endangered languages of the world. Up-to-date information is guaranteed by the collaboration of some forty-five contributing specialists from all over the world. With over 20,000 titles arranged according to a detailed state-of-the-art classification, the Linguistic Bibliography remains the standard reference book for every scholar of language and linguistics.

The Linguistic Bibliography / Bibliographie Linguistique is also available online where its updated monthly with hundreds of new records.
Clause Linkage in the Languages of the Ob-Yenisei Area

Asyndetic Constructions

Edited by Anja Behnke, Institute of Finno-Ugric/Uralic Studies, University of Hamburg, and Beáta Wagner-Nagy, Institute of Finno-Ugric/Uralic Studies, University of Hamburg

The volume explores clause-linkage strategies from a cross-linguistic perspective with an emphasis on asyndetic constructions. The data-driven approaches focus on areal differences and similarities in using non-finite verb forms in complex sentences in languages situated in Central and Western Siberia.

READERSHIP: Academic libraries (linguistics, typology), typologists, linguists (Uralic, Finno-Ugric, Samoyedic and Turkic languages), students.

Chinese Food Law
A legal-systematic analysis

Edited by Jasmin Buijs, Bernd M.J. van der Meulen and Juanjuan Sun

The People’s Republic of China is one of the largest importers and exporters of food products in the world. After the melamine crisis fundamentally challenged its food legal infrastructure, the PRC now boasts one of the most modern systems of food law in the world. This makes Chinese food law very interesting for its own sake but also as a source for comparison and inspiration. This book aims to make Chinese food law accessible to a non-Chinese audience. The book follows the same legal-systematic approach that has proven its usefulness in explaining EU food law in the EU Food Law Handbook.

Topics discussed include the history of Chinese food law, general principles, the institutional framework, the difference between food and edible agricultural products, the homology of food and medicine, authorization requirements for food additives, novel food materials, health foods, food for special medical purposes and infant formula, genetically modified organisms, maximum limits for residues and other contaminants, process requirements to prevent and deal with food safety incidents, labelling requirements including nutrition and health claims and food law enforcement. Where appropriate we have taken into account the perspective of businesses wishing to export to China.
Applied human rights
Edited by Bart Wernaart

What do human rights look like when we present them as action-based, bottom-up concepts, and not exclusively as legal items? In this comprehensive textbook the idea of human rights is not exclusively explored as a legal concept, but instead discussed from various applied perspectives.

Mosquitoes transmit many of the pathogens that cause zoonotic diseases from wildlife and livestock to people, with devastating consequences for public health. The factors affecting the ecology and evolution of the transmission dynamics of these mosquito-borne pathogens can be revealed using multidisciplinary research approaches. This 7th volume of the ECVD series focuses on the ecological factors that determine the transmission dynamics of mosquito-borne pathogens naturally circulating between animals of different taxa and their importance for human health.

Documentary Aesthetics in the Long 1960s in Eastern Europe and Beyond
Edited by Clemens Günther and Matthias Schwartz

This book, for the first time, investigates documentary aesthetics as a formative trend in post-war Eastern Europe. Its contributions reconstruct major artistic practices and their theoretical reflections within the broader cultural-political horizon of the turbulent 1960s.

READERSHIP: Anyone concerned with post-war Eastern European and Cold War culture and aesthetics, ranging from academic specialists, culturally interested on-specialists to college departments and libraries.

A Guide to the Heavens: The Literary Reception of Herman Hugo’s “Pia Desideria” in the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth
Radosław Grześkowiak, University of Gdansk

A discussion of the reception of Herman Hugo’s emblematic book “Pia desideria” (1624) in the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth. It presents ten different translations and adaptations, showing how the engravings, elegies and exegetical extracts of the original volume were used by Polish-speaking authors.

READERSHIP: The book is addressed to scholars of emblematic literature and those interested in the European contexts of old Polish literature.

Spectral Memories of Post-Crash Iceland: Memory, Identity and the Haunted Imagination in Contemporary Literature and Art
Vera Knútsdóttir, University of Iceland

The book combines memory studies with spectralities, and uses the spectre as analytical tool to explore cultural memories of post-crash Icelandic society; literature and works of art created in the aftermath of the economic crash of 2008.

READERSHIP: The book should be of interest to both local and broader audience; to scholars and students of memory studies, cultural studies, comparative literature and Icelandic contemporary affairs and museology.

Worlding the Brain
Neurocentrism, Cognition and the Challenge of the Arts and Humanities
Edited by Stephan Besser, University of Amsterdam, and Flora Lysen, Maastricht University

Sexuality and Eroticism in a Post-pandemic World
Beyond the Biopolitics of the New Normal
Edited by Phil Shining and Jon Braddy, Florida Gulf Coast University

Modernism beyond the Human
Transnational Perspectives
Edited by Alberto Godioli, University of Groningen, and Carmen van den Bergh, Leiden University

Moving beyond the neurohype of recent decades, Worlding the Brain introduces the concept of "worlding" as a new perspective to understand the inherent entanglement of brains/minds with their worldly environments, cultural practices, and social contexts.

Sexuality and Eroticism in a Post-Pandemic World offers a provocative lens to frame today's "new normal". This collection presents a multidimensional panorama of the sexuality and eroticism landscapes in the 2020s, and of its upcoming—both unsettling and promising—horizons.

How did modernism rethink the relation between the human and the non-human? The present volume tackles this question from an innovative transnational perspective, focusing on canonical authors as well as lesser-studied modernists from a broad range of geographical contexts.

READERSHIP: All those interested in science studies, cognitive science, neuroscience, neuro-aesthetics, neuerculture, literary studies, cultural analysis, media studies, performance studies, film studies, interdisciplinarity, art-science exchange.

READERSHIP: Readers interested in ars erotica, Critical Theory, cultural studies, ICT, Gender Theory, Queer Theory, sex education, sexology, Tantra, and visual arts.

READERSHIP: This book mostly caters for scholars focusing on modernism, animal studies and/or posthumanism, as well as undergraduate and postgraduate students specializing in these topics.

Modernist Minds
Materialities of the Mental in the Works of James Joyce
Emma-Louise Silva, University of Antwerp, Belgium

Exploring James Joyce’s modernist fiction through the prism of 4E – or embodied, embedded, extended, and enactive – cognition, and merging this framework with cognitive-genetic narratology, Emma-Louise Silva reassesses the discourse of the ‘inward turn’ by delving into the material stylistic choices through which Joyce’s evocations of his characters’ thoughts evolved.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars in the fields of Joyce studies, literary modernism, literary criticism, cognitive narratology, and genetic criticism, narrative theorists and philosophers of mind.

Cannibalizing the Canon

_Heinrich von Kleist: Artistic and Aesthetic Legacies_ and _Dada Techniques in East-Central Europe_

Edited by Oliver A. I. Botar, Irina M. Denischenko, Gábor Dobó, and Merse Pál Szeredi

This deeply researched and carefully conceived volume dismantles the prevailing notion of Dada as a mainly “Western” phenomenon. Building on previous studies of East-Central European Dada, it demonstrates how Dada artists from Bucharest to Prague actively defined, shaped, appropriated, and cannibalized the Modernist canon.

READERSHIP: The target audience of the volume is academics, researchers, teachers, and students of the avant-garde in East-Central Europe, as well as those interested in the history of Dada and the avant-garde.

The present work is about the life, works and travels of a seventeenth-century wandering scholar through Europe and the Near East, his connections to the foremost scholars of his time, and his promotion of the study of Arabic through the oriental manuscripts that he collected.

In this collected volume, Aharon Layish demonstrates that legal documents are an essential source for legal and social history. Since the late nineteenth century Islamic law has undergone tremendous transformations, some of which have strongly affected the basic features of its nature.

The book presents a snapshot of a locality in a multi-ethnic, multi-religious region in the Ottoman East in the nineteenth century.

READERSHIP: University and academic libraries; teachers and graduate students in early modern history; the history of oriental studies; the history of universities; early modern travels.

READERSHIP: The book is intended for students and researchers of Islamic law with special reference to modern trends in Islamic law; interaction between shari'a and tribal customary law; waqf, testamentary.

READERSHIP: Undergraduate and postgraduate students who are interested in the nineteenth century Ottoman Empire, particularly those who are interested in the history of state-notable relations.

Salah Natij’s book, Al-Jahiz’s Theory of Bayân: From a Hermeneutics of Nature to a Semiotics of Culture is a study entirely devoted to the Bayān theory (communication, hermeneutics, semiology) of the Arab encyclopedist and polygrapher al-Jāḥiẓ (d.869).

This book analyzes changes in religious groups in late antique Arabia, ca. 300-700 CE. It engages with contemporary and material evidence and suggests that the changes in Arabian social groups were more piecemeal than previously thought.

This book offers a narrative analysis, coupled with a historical anthropology, of the stories that feature Muhammad’s grandfather in Ibn Ishaq’s Sīra. These stories form a narrative sequence composed of several episodes that cascade to a prophetic birth.

READERSHIP: All researchers who are interested, directly or indirectly, in Arab-Muslim philosophy and the thought of the adab in general and in the thought and work of al-Jāḥiẓ in particular.

Ibn Taymiyya and the Attributes of God

Farid Suleiman
Translated from the German by Carl Sharif El-Tobgui

The book investigates how Avicenna's doctrine of efficient causality relates to his general ontology, as well as how the two are interpreted, defended, and challenged in the early phase of Avicenna's Islamic reception (the eleventh and twelfth centuries).

Readership: All interested in the intellectual history of Islamic thought, especially pertaining to the issue of the divine attributes, and anyone concerned with the life and works of Ibn Taymiyya.

Introduction, Translation and Commentary by
Gohar G. Hakobian

This book draws attention on the emergence of new socio-political dynamics among the Syriac orthodox community of Turkey – that is labelled traditionally as an antique Christian community – in its relationship to contemporary Turkish society and diasporic countries.

This book is intended for post-graduate students having an interest in contemporary Turkey’s minorities, Turkish and Ottoman history.

This book presents an English translation of a 19th-century travelogue by an Armenian intellectual. It provides valuable insights into the ethno-demography of Dersim, a historically significant region for Armenians and the Zaza people, with unique and vital data.

READERSHIP: University libraries and departments, institutes, scholars and students, general readers and travellers, with an interest in: Pakistan, Hindukush/Karakoram region, Gilgit-Baltistan, and mountain economies.

READERSHIP: Academic staff of the Institutes, specialising in Iranian, Turkic, and Armenian Studies and generally Near Eastern Studies; individuals with a general interest in the history and ethnography of the Anatolia-Caucasus-Iran region.

READERSHIP: This book is intended for post-graduate students having an interest in contemporary Turkey’s minorities, Turkish and Ottoman history.

The main thesis of this monograph, and its novelty, is the attempt to read Newman's work not only as a defence of the author's life, but as a defence of individual life in general. This reading is done against the background of his profound personalism based on two foundations: truth and responsibility.

READERSHIP: This book may interest philosophers, theologians, historians, people interested in literature and culture, as well as students of spirituality.

Controversy and Construction in Contemporary Aesthetics
Edited by Jie Wang, Zhejiang University, Zheng Shen, Zhejiang Sci-Tech University, and Armida de la Garza, University College Cork

The European Avant-Garde – A Hundred Years Later
Edited by Polona Tratnik, University of Ljubljana

The inclusion of this volume in Brill’s Transcultural Aesthetics, a book series devoted primarily to multidisciplinary Western and non-Western aesthetics, is indispensable to enrich the nature and scope of contemporary aesthetics. Time and again, many aesthetic controversies have not been adequately addressed, and this has become a common concern among scholars in contemporary aesthetics. This volume therefore seeks to contribute new perspectives to these controversies by shedding light on some of the fresh views among the leading theorists working in the field today.

READERSHIP: Students and researchers of international contemporary aesthetics.

The title of this book, The European Avant-Garde – A Hundred Years Later, implies the European avant-garde took place a century ago, that it is a thing of the past. However, it does not aim to consolidate this position, but to question it. It addresses temporality as the central dimension related to the notion of the avant-garde. The book brings forth original revisions of the theories of the avant-garde, the works of the avant-garde, the idea of the avant-garde as being the vanguard, the leading force of change.

READERSHIP: Universities, academies of art, scholars and students of all degrees in aesthetics and art, art theory, philosophy of art, practitioners in art institutions, such as gallerists, curators, art directors, art and media festivals, ministries of culture, general libraries and libraries specialized in art and aesthetics.
This book presents a new annotated and translated edition of neoplatonist 3rd-century Greek philosopher Porphyry's Lettre à Marcella. This letter, addressed to his wife, gives a unique account on the ways and principles along which a philosophical life should be led so as to perpetuate itself.

READERSHIP: Students and researchers interested in Porphyry, Plotinus and the Ennead.

Through a careful analysis of the ethics of Philodemus, this monograph offers the first book-length study of the Epicurean sage. It explores the different aspects of the sage’s way of life and offers a reconstruction of this Epicurean role model.

READERSHIP: Students and researchers interested in Epicurean philosophy and Philodemus.

This is the first dedicated commentary to Sextus Empiricus’ treatise Against the Arithmeticians, dealing with crucial issues in the history of the sceptical, Platonic and Pythagorean traditions and in the ancient philosophy of mathematics.

READERSHIP: Specialists in ancient philosophy (scholars and researchers).
Towards a New Anthropology of the Embodied Mind

Maine de Biran’s Physio-Spiritualism from 1800 to the 21st Century
Edited by Manfred Milz, University of Regensburg

Maine de Biran’s concept of the embodied mind is most suitable to alert our consciousness today, while people are being exceedingly exposed to and submerged by comforting invasive virtual realities of metaverses that essentially minimize their resistance-potential to generate will and effort.

Kyoto in Davos. Intercultural Readings of the Cassirer-Heidegger Debate
Edited by Tobias Endres, TU Braunschweig, Ralf Müller, University College Cork, and Domenico Schneider, TU Braunschweig

The famous debate between Ernst Cassirer and Martin Heidegger of 1929 in Davos was set on a global stage and, yet, inherently Eurocentric. This volume explores how the hypothetical presence of the Kyoto school founder Nishida Kitarō would have overcome this limitation.

Analysing Darkness and Light
Dystopias and Beyond
Edited by Martta Heikkilä, University of Helsinki, Irina Poleshchuk, University of Helsinki, and Erika Ruonakoski, University of Helsinki

The book explores the possibilities and limitations of dystopian imagination, asking if visions of horrific futures help us decide upon the best course of action, or if they paralyse us and prevent us from engaging in social transformation.

READERSHIP: All scholars, students and critics from the disciplines of philosophy, the medical humanities, psychology, physiology, the neurosciences, philosophy, comparative literature and cultural history.

READERSHIP: Postgraduate students and specialists working in the fields of Intercultural-, Japanese-, Continental-, (Post-) Kantian Philosophy and Anthropology will profit from the anthology.

READERSHIP: The book is of interest to a wide audience: scholars especially in philosophy, aesthetics, art research, political science, and the humanities and social sciences in general.
Periagoge - Theory of Singularity and Philosophy as an Exercise of Transformation

Guido Cusinato,
University of Verona

This book explores how we can find meaning in life through “care of desire” and “emotional sharing” that provide the basis for relationships of care. It argues that this meaning is not automatically given to us at birth, as we come into the world without having finished being born.

READERSHIP: Students, specialists or (post-graduate) students, practitioners, and teachers interested in philosophy, psychology of emotion, spirituality, personal growth, self-help, and well-being.

Spiritual Exercises and Early Modern Philosophy
Bacon, Descartes, Spinoza
Simone D’Agostino,
the Pontifical Gregorian University, Rome

This book supports the idea that the ancient conception of philosophy as a way of life does not disappear in early modernity, but is transformed into a search for how to cure, guide, and free the human mind.

READERSHIP: Philosophy graduate students and specialists interested in early modern theory of method and logic, and in philosophy as a way of life.

Thought Experiments, Science, and Theology
Yiftach Fehige,
University of Toronto

This book offers the first study of theological thought experiments. It advances the discussion about the religious significance of the imagination and presents a tightly argued response to debates over pluralism in the history and philosophy of science.

READERSHIP: Students and researchers interested in the interdisciplinary relationship between science and religion.
Perspektiven der Philosophie
Neues Jahrbuch. Band 49 – 2023
Georges Goedert and Martina Scherbel

Dieses Buch eröffnet Forschern, denen die philosophische Begründung des Denkens wichtig ist, eine Publikationsmöglichkeit. Wir verstehen uns nicht als Schulorgan einer philosophischen Lehrmeinung, sondern sehen unsere Aufgabe darin, an der Intensivierung des wissenschaftlichen Philosophierens mitzuwirken.

READERSHIP: All interested in philosophical questions: in metaphysics, the history of philosophy, phenomenology and other perspectives of philosophy.

Averroes and Averroism in Medieval Jewish Thought
Edited by Racheli Haliva, Shandong University, Yoav Meyrav, University of Hamburg, and Daniel Davies

The present volume explores how and why Averroes, a Muslim philosopher and jurist, became one of the most important figures in the history of Jewish philosophy.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in Jewish and Islamic philosophy, medieval Latin philosophy, and the history of Aristotelianism.

The Literary and Philosophical Canon of Obadiah Sforno
Edited by Giuseppe Veltri, Giada Coppola and Florian Dunklau, Hamburg University

The philosophical and exegetical oeuvre, biography and legacy of the Jewish-Italian Renaissance Rabbi Obadiah Sforno (c. 1475–1550) are revisited for the first time by international scholars presenting in-depth studies on the thoughts of a man “between two worlds”.

Being Algae
Transformations in Water, Plants
Edited by Yogi Hale Hendlin, Erasmus University Rotterdam, Johanna Weggelaar, Natalia Derossi and Sergio Mugnai, Erasmus University Rotterdam

A far-reaching reformulation of the philosophy of time guided by vegetal processes, rhythms, tempos, and shapes.

This book explores how aquatic environments are as networked together by algae as the terrestrial world is by plants.

READERSHIP: Graduate students and scholars working in the eco-humanities, nature art, critical social sciences, environmental conservation, and history and philosophy of biology will welcome this new volume.

Critical Reflexive Research Methodologies
Interdisciplinary Approaches
Dawn Onishenko, “Nob” Doran, Rose, Ann Torres and Dionisio Nyaga

The aim of this edited collection is to address the complex realities and values expressed through the research process. This critically reflexive piece aims to bring forth ethical dilemmas that continue to pervade research process, by unearthing how left out marginalized realities and value in research also leads communities to disappear physically and psychically.

Readership: This volume will be of interest to international institutes, (academic) libraries, specialists, (post-graduate) students, practitioners, and educated laymen.

Undesired Revolution
The Arab Uprising in Egypt: A Three Level Analysis
Ahmed Abozaid, University of St Andrews

This book reveals the limitations of dominant Western International Relations for studying the Arab Uprisings. It shows instead that focusing on varied social forces and non-state actors, as well as domestic semi-political and socio-economic transformations, can establish new ways of reading foreign policy and politics of post-revolutionary Middle East countries.

Readership: Academics and university students (i.e., International Relations, Middle Eastern Studies, Media Studies, and Political Science in general).

Placemaking in Practice
Volume 1
Experiences and Approaches from a Pan-European Perspective
Carlos Smaniotto Costa, Universidade Lusófona, Mastoureh Fathi University College Cork, and Juan A. García-Esparza, Universitat Jaume I

Placemaking in Practice - Experiences and Approaches from a Pan-European Perspective brings together a vibrant set of experiences linked to placemaking in urban environments. Approaches reflect on the potential of placemaking from different perspectives, disciplines and actors on what placemaking from different angles means in practice.

Readership: All interested in the values and results of placemaking and the engagement of people in a comparative way.

The Great Restoration
Post-Communist Transformations from the Viewpoint of Comparative Historical Sociology of Restorations
Zenonas Norkus

‘The revolutions of 1989’ remains the standard term used to describe the onset of post-communist transformations more than thirty years ago. Zenonas Norkus proposes a completely new perspective, theorising them as the next wave of modern social restorations, starting with the post-Napoleonic restorations in 1815.

READERSHIP: Researchers and postgraduate students in the comparative sociology of revolutions, history of the French 1789 and Russian Revolutions, post-communist transformation, and international relations.

In the 1970s, several members of the DDR opposition began to investigate the limits to unrestrained economic growth. The result of their work was three distinctive eco-utopias with an astonishing relevance to contemporary debates. This volume presents the first detailed account of them for an English-language readership.

READERSHIP: Eco-socialists, readers interested in Marxist approaches to ecology, historians of the DDR and German socialism in the post-war period, scholars of political utopia and utopianism.

Worship, Ritual, and Pentecostal Spirituality—As-Theology
A Rhythm that Connects our Hearts with God
Martina Björkander, Åbo Akademi University

Vibrant worship music is part of the Charismatic liturgy all around the world and a key aspect of Pentecostal spirituality. Combining rich theoretical and theological insight with an in-depth case study from Kenya, this book is a must-read for anyone interested in Pentecostal worship.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars of Pentecostal-Charismatic Christianity, in particular those interested in the role played by worship, music, and ritual in Pentecostal spirituality and theology.

Hearing God’s Voice
Towards a Theology of Contemporary Pentecostal Revelatory Experience
Tania M. Harris, Independent Researcher

The ‘hearing God’ experience is a prized feature of Pentecostal-Charismatic spirituality, yet one that is often shrouded in controversy and confusion. Drawing on the findings of a unique and ground-breaking practical theological study, this book provides a theological framework and ministry strategies so that the experience can be fully harnessed for kingdom purpose.

READERSHIP: Theology and ministry students (under-graduate, graduate and post), practical theologians, theologians. Subject areas are Pentecostalism, Charismatic Church, Theology, Pneumatology, Religious experience, Sociology of Religion.

Egyptian Pentecostalism: When Cyclones of Divine Power Invaded the Ancient Land
Tharwat Maher Nagib Adly Nagib, Faith Wesleyan Theological Seminary Cairo, Egypt

This book reveals stories of revivals in Egypt that were never told before! As being the first integrated monograph on Egyptian Pentecostalism, this book invites researchers, renewalists, and students of revivals to discover how Pentecostalism reshaped the map of Christianity in Egypt when cyclones of Divine power invaded the ancient land.

READERSHIP: It is expected that this book will attract scholars and students of Religions, Renewal Studies, and Pentecostalism around the world.
Dreams and Visions in African Pentecostal Spirituality

The Sub-Saharan Horizon of the Pneumatological Imagination

Anna M. Droll, South Florida Theological Seminary

This book argues for the significance of the visionary life for Pentecostal spirituality by providing the first focused examination of Pentecostal-Charismatic dreams and visions. It engages extensively with African scholarship while also highlighting the contemporary voices of African visioners.

“Grace Abounds More”: Balthasar’s Eschatological Universalism in Dialogue

Joshua R. Brotherton, St Thomas University, Miami

Is Hell empty of human beings? Balthasar suggests that just might be the case. This book explicates the suppositions that underlie argumentation for such a view and proposes an alternative eschatological resolution to a theological conundrum that plagues so many.

Teaching and Tradition

On their Dynamic Interaction

Edited by Jos Moons, KU Leuven, Rudi A. te Velde, Tilburg University, and Archibald L.H.M. van Wieringen, Tilburg University

This volume explores the richness of the idea of tradition in religion approached from the perspective of its interaction with teaching. The many case studies in this book all underline the conviction that teaching is crucial for the creative process of tradition.

Readership: This book will appeal to academics of religious studies, dream researchers exploring the interface between dreaming and religion, and theologians and Christian practitioners seeking a deeper understanding of Pentecostalism.

Readership: Theological and Philosophical Institutes, University libraries, research centers; graduate students of Theology or Philosophy of Religion.

Readership: The book is intended for post-graduate students in theology, theologians in general, philosophers in general, scholars of religious studies, biblical scholars, and church historians.
