Towards a New Research Era
A Global Comparison of Research Distortions
Edited by Marek Hrubec, Czech Academy of Sciences, and Emil Višňovský, Comenius University

The book is focused on distorted research and university education in recent decades, and on alternatives for a new research era. It deals with the critique, explanation and normativity of bureaucratically, commercially and ideologically shaped humanities and social sciences. The authors analyse it in a ground-breaking way, putting the West in a global comparison with the non-Western world. Particularly, they pay special attention to Central Europe and the major countries and macro-regions: Latin America, China, Russia, Africa and India. This is an illuminating book for readers interested in philosophy, sociology, global studies, education studies and related disciplines.

READERSHIP: This is an illuminating book for all the readers (specialists and graduate and postgraduate students) in the humanities and social sciences, mainly interested in philosophy, sociology, global studies, education studies, political science and related disciplines.
Politics, Polarity, and Peace
Edited By Will Barnes, New Mexico Highlands University

Peace and Hope in Dark Times
Edited by Andrew Fiala, California State University, Fresno, and Sahar Heydari Fard, The Ohio State University

Dionysus and Apollo after Nihilism
Rethinking the Earth–World Divide
Carlos A. Segovia, Saint Louis University, Madrid Campus, and Sofya Shaikut Segovia

Polarization simplifies and deforms language, ideas, and people and reduces social life into an oppositional binary based on harmful “us versus them” narratives. What can we do to bring about a transformation away from polarity to peace? The authors in this volume answer these and other questions relating to polarity and politics.

READERSHIP: This volume will be of interest to those within and outside academia interested in polarity, politics, and peace from sociological, philosophical, and historical perspectives.

The essays collected here offer original insight into the problem of hope and the philosophy of peace. The essays offer hopeful reflection on the Covid-19 pandemic, recent challenges to democratic norms, climate change, and other emerging threats.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars in the philosophy of peace, peace studies, ethics, and social and political philosophy, as well as activists working on peace building, democracy, and social justice.

This book recovers Dionysus and Apollo as the twin conceptual personae of life’s dual rhythm in an attempt to redesign contemporary theory through the reciprocal but differential affirmation of event and form, body and thought, dance and philosophy.

READERSHIP: The primary market for the book includes professional philosophers, university professors, postdoctoral researchers, doctoral and graduate students, as well as institutions of higher education.
The Intellectual and Cultural Origins of Chaïm Perelman and Lucie Olbrechts-Tyteca’s New Rhetoric Project

Commentaries On and Translations of Seven Foundational Articles, 1933-1958

M. Bolduc and D.A. Frank

This book discusses the often explosive relation between war and ideas between 1650 and 1900, how the ideas of philosophers and generals have influenced war, and how war in its turn has influenced ideas.

READERSHIP: Readers with an academic background with an interest in the history of war and war in the history of ideas, including game theory, system theory, wargames, and darwinism.

History of Metaphysics: Ancient, Medieval, Modern
The Aesthetics of Taste: Eating within the Realm of Art
Evoking the Realm of Art
Dorota Koczanowicz,
University of Wroclaw

When does eating become art? Can a cook be an artist? This book answers these questions by exploring the position of taste in contemporary culture and the manners in which taste meanders its way into the realm of art.

Recalling Masaryk’s The Czech Question
Humanity and Politics on the Threshold of the Twenty-First Century
Edited by Jan Svoboda, Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic, and Aleš Prázný, University of Pardubice

In the late 19th century, T. G. Masaryk presented his national programme. This vision of modern Czech society rested on the ideals of humanity, thus infusing the national ethos with a universal dimension. The significance of T. G. Masaryk’s thought is investigated by current Czech thinkers in this volume.

Evil and Intelligibility
A Grammatical Metacritique of the Problem of Evil
Lauri Snellman,
University of Helsinki

This book offers a new approach to the problem of evil by examining the problem’s presuppositions and developing a metacritique of them.
From Death to Life: Key Themes in Plato’s Phaedo

Franco Trabattoni,
University of Milan

This book addresses a range of highly debated problems among scholars of Plato’s Phaedo and provides an overall interpretation of the dialogue.

The Realm of Mimesis in Plato

Orality, Writing, and the Ontology of the Image

Mariangela Esposito,
Royal College of Physicians of Ireland

Orality versus writing is a vexed issue in Plato, but is it necessarily an opposition? This book places Plato’s work in the realm of mimesis and argues that we do not necessarily have to see this issue as demonstrating a straightforward opposition.

---

Apparrences et dialectique

Un commentaire du Sophiste de Platon

Nicolas Zaks, Université Libre de Bruxelles/F.R.S. – FNRS

This book argues that the distinction between the science of dialectic and appearances conceived as perceptual judgments allows us to solve the great puzzles of Plato’s Sophist and reveals the unity and the originality of the dialogue’s argument.

Fichte in the Americas

Edited by María Jimena Solé, Argentinean National Scientific and Technical Research Council and University of Buenos Aires, and Elizabeth Millán Brusslan, DePaul University

This collection is the first comprehensive history of Fichte’s reception in America, highlighting the existence of a long and strong tradition of Fichtean studies throughout the continent and demonstrating the centrality of Fichtean ideas in contemporary discussions of issues such as feminism, social criticism, and decolonial thought. Read and reinterpreted in the highly diverse circumstances across the American continent, Fichte’s ideas are presented in a radically new light, uncovering the Fichtean spirit of self-activity and autonomous thought in an American context.

READERSHIP: This collection will be of interest to upper-level undergraduate students, graduate students, and scholars of Fichte and his influence and those interested in Latin American philosophy.
Somaesthetics and Design Culture
Edited by Richard Shusterman, Florida Atlantic University, and Bálint Veres, Moholy-Nagy University of Art and Design, Budapest

Written by an impressive group of international scholars, this collection’s thirteen essays explore key issues and forms of design, from ancient life ideals to the new media, displaying how creative design always revolves around the soma, the living, sentient body.

READERSHIP: All scholars, students, critics and art and design practitioners and theorists interested in somatic approaches to design.

A celebration of the importance and significance of The Myth of Sisyphus, this collection of essays, from some of the world’s leading Camus scholars, examines the impact on philosophy that Camus’s The Myth has had in the past 80 years.

This book introduces and explores Rational Poetic Experimentalism (RPE). According to RPE, it makes sense to regard reason as poetic. Regarding reason this way is the result of experimenting with philosophical ideas. Such experimentation might lead to philosophical truths which might seem very difficult to discover.

The kernel of this volume is an English translation of Jan Łukasiewicz’s classic work on the concept of cause (1906). It is the starting point for analytical considerations on causality of two generations of philosophers belonging to the tradition of the Lvov-Warsaw School.
Animals Matter
Resistance and Transformation in Animal Commodification
Edited by Julien Dugnoille, University of Exeter, and Elizabeth Vander Meer, University of Exeter

This book reclaims the concept of animal resistance and exposes the asymmetry of human-animal relationships at sites of commodification. The chapters within explore instances in which resistance challenges human dominion and identity and in some cases ignites social movements on behalf of animals themselves.

Living Skepticism
Essays in Epistemology and Beyond
Edited by Stephen Hetherington,
UNSW, Sydney,
and David Macarthur,
University of Sydney

Living Skepticism challenges the philosophical orthodoxy that dismisses skepticism as an intellectual embarrassment or overreaction. In this original collection of adventurous and engaging papers, skepticism is demonstrated to be true or insightful enough to form the core of an enlightened philosophy.

READERSHIP: Specialists in epistemology both traditional and non-traditional in analytic and continental philosophy, ethicists and political philosophers, philosophers of mind & language, postgraduate and undergraduate students in philosophy.

Philosophical Aspects of Globalization: A Multidisciplinary Inquiry

Edited by Alexander N. Chumakov, Alyssa DeBlasio, and Ilya V. Ilyin

Philosophical Aspects of Globalization is a collection of essays by leading contemporary Russian philosophers and scholars concerned with addressing pressing questions of globalization and its impact from a philosophical point of view. READERSHIP: English-language readers interested in Global Studies and/or contemporary trends in Russian philosophy and Global Studies.
Readership: This book appeals directly to everyone interested in Jean-Luc Nancy's work, and to those interested in the issues of community and literature in continental philosophy and literary theory.

Readership: Professors, scholars, students (graduate and postgraduate) working on theory of action and agency, contemporary phenomenology, history of phenomenology, mind and action.

Readership: The primary readership would be specialists in and students of Jewish philosophy and law.

This is the first book to provide a systematic investigation of the relation between community and literature in the work of Jean-Luc Nancy. The author develops the original claim that this relation has to be understood as a rethinking of myth.

This groundbreaking book in contemporary phenomenology offers the cutting-edge of research on both history and philosophy of action from the first-person point of view. An essential study for anyone working in this area.

This work focuses on the conception of God of the medieval Jewish philosopher and legal scholar, Hasdai Crescas (1340-1410/11). It demonstrates that Crescas' God is infinitely creative and good and explores the parallel that Crescas implicitly draws between God as creator and legislator.
Meister Eckhart’s Rezeption im Nationalsozialismus

Philosophical and Political Questions

Edited by Pegah Mossleh, Institute for Humanities and Cultural Studies (IHCS) in Tehran (Iran)

This book is the outcome of one of the most extensive international academic projects on the COVID-19 pandemic in the field of humanities and social sciences. It includes the reflections of scholars from 25 universities, in Europe, Asia, Canada, Australia, the US, and the UK, on 60 important philosophical and political questions.

This paradigmatic volume is unique in the history of the humanities and social sciences in dealing with pandemics and should be considered as a starting point for more coherent and synergistic academic cooperation in preparation for similar future phenomena.

READERSHIP: The main audiences of this book are academics, including professors and students in all fields, especially in philosophy and political science. However, the book may also be insightful for readers outside of academia.
Non-Marxian Historical Materialism: Reconstructions and Comparisons
Edited by Krzysztof Brzechczyn, Adam Mickiewicz University

The authors of this book reconstruct the philosophical, methodological and theoretical assumptions of non-Marxian historical materialism, a theory of historical process authored by Leszek Nowak (1943-2009), a co-founder of the Poznań School of Methodology. This book compares this theory with the concepts of Robert Michels, Vilfredo Pareto and Karl August Wittfogel.

READERSHIP: The volume will be of interest to graduate and undergraduate students, as well as specialists who deal with the philosophy of history and the philosophy and methodology of social sciences and political theory.

Shusterman's Somaesthetics
From Hip Hop Philosophy to Politics and Performance Art
Edited by Jerold J. Abrams, Creighton University

Bodies in the Streets: The Somaesthetics of City Life
Edited by Richard Shusterman, Florida Atlantic University

The contributors to Somaesthetics and Sport explore our embodied experiences of watching and playing sport, including sport's beauty; the place of exercise in our sense of living a good life; and how we cope with pain and suffering.

Shusterman's Somaesthetics is a wide-ranging collection of penetrating essays by twelve scholars examining in rich detail the many dimensions of philosopher Richard Shusterman's pragmatism and somaesthetics, complemented by his own chapter of responses to these scholars.

Thirteen original essays explore the qualities and challenges of urban life (in Europe, Asia, and the Americas) from a variety of disciplinary perspectives that illustrate the aesthetic, cultural, and political roles of bodies in the city streets.

READERSHIP: Undergraduate and graduate students, and academics with interests in the philosophy of sport, sport science, and philosophical aesthetics, and Richard Shusterman's project of somaesthetics.

READERSHIP: This volume will be of interest to undergraduates, graduate students, professors, working in American philosophy, aesthetics (including popular art), and embodiment.

READERSHIP: All scholars, students, critics, and artists interested in the study of city life and somatic approaches to philosophy, aesthetics, politics, gender studies, and the arts.

Texte latin et traduction française avec un commentaire par Emmanuel Bermon
Emmanuel Bermon, l’Université Bordeaux Montaigne

Written between 386 and 390 during the excitement of his discovery of Neoplatonism, Augustine’s correspondence with Nebridius bears witness, well before the Confessions, to the philosophical and spiritual questions that fascinated Augustine at the time of his conversion to philosophy and Christianity.

READERSHIP: The book is intended for a readership including those interested in ancient philosophy, theology, and literature.

Evil Women
Representations within Literature, Culture and Film
Robyn Muir, University of Nottingham, Beatrice Frasl, University of Vienna, Christie Lauder, Louisiana State University, Elizabeth Schreiber-Byers, University of North Carolina

Often side-lined or simplified, evil women challenge societal norms of womanhood. This volume explores how evil women have been constructed, punished, and erased within literature, culture, and film and how this contributes to our understanding of womanhood.

READERSHIP: For anyone interested in the politics of gender representation in culture, history of literature and gender and cultural phenomena.

Das Maß des Menschen
Platons Antwort an Protagoras im ‘Theaitetos’ und im ‘Protagoras’
Edwin J. de Sterke, fhnw

Protagoras claims to be able to educate the young. Why not? If «Man is Measure of Everything», anybody can make everybody ‘better’… To Plato, this doesn’t add up. What’s lacking? What is the measure of Man, if Man be measure?

READERSHIP: Students and specialists in Ancient Philosophy and the history of pedagogical and political thought. Due to the fundamental questions it poses, the book is also relevant for modern discussions in these fields.

L’institution philosophique française et la Renaissance : l’époque de Victor Cousin

Edited by Dominique Couzinet, Université Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne, and Mario Meliadò, Universität Siegen

During the nineteenth century, the history of philosophy established itself in France as a central discipline within the academic institutions. This process, which rested on the intellectual and political influence of Victor Cousin (1792-1867), coincided with the development of an interpretative scheme that gave the Renaissance as philosophical epoch a controversial status characterized by conceptual inferiority. This volume sheds light on the ideological implications of the debates on the Renaissance in nineteenth-century France. It offers a comprehensive approach to the scholarly reconstructions and polemical uses of the Renaissance by developing a political and transnational rereading of the nineteenth-century French practices of the history of philosophy.

READERSHIP: The book is addressed, on the one hand, to specialists in Renaissance thought and its modern reception and, on the other hand, to historians of nineteenth-century French philosophy and historiography.
The Relational Horse

How Frameworks of Communication, Care, Politics and Power Reveal and Conceal Equine Selves

Edited by Gala Argent and Jeannette Vaught

The Relational Horse explores the possibilities of including the horse’s perspective into the study of human-horse relationships. Case studies from across a range of time periods, activities, and disciplines provide fresh ways to understand horses, themselves, in relationships with humans.

READERSHIP: The Relational Horse’s introductory yet theoretically grounded approach will appeal to researchers and students of human-animal and critical animal studies, equine behavior and ethology.

Life after God

An Encounter with Postmodernism

Mark Bevir, University of California, Berkeley

In this volume, Mark Bevir argues that postfoundationalism is compatible with humanism and historicism. He engages leading postmodernists such as Derrida and Foucault, exploring the role of human agency and historical context in philosophy, social science, and ethics.

READERSHIP: Specialists and postgraduate students in philosophy, political theory, social theory, literary theory, and intellectual history.
Plotinus on Beauty
Beauty as Illuminated Unity in Multiplicity

Ota Gál, Charles University (Prague)

The open access publication of this book has been published with the support of the Swiss National Science Foundation. In this book, Ota Gál presents a new analysis of Plotinus’ conception of beauty, beginning from a close reading of treatises I.6 and V.8, which link beauty with the unified multiplicity of Intellect. This account is subsequently placed in a hierarchical and structural context in VI.2 and VI.6 and connected to illumination in VI.7, enabling us to determine the meaning of the predicate “beauty” at different ontological levels. For Plotinus, beauty is ultimately the illuminated unity in multiplicity of Intellect, which, as the manifestation of the Good, simultaneously enables the soul’s ascent and threatens to bind the soul to itself.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in Greek philosophy and aesthetics, in the history of the concept of beauty and, above all, in Plotinus.

Language, Culture and Cognition from Descartes to Lewes

Timo Kaitaro,
University of Helsinki

The monograph tells a different story on the history of modern philosophy: the narrative is no longer centred on the question whether knowledge results from experience or reason, but whether experience and reason are in fact possible without language.

READERSHIP: Specialists and students of the history of philosophy and psychology. Cognitive scientists, psychologists and students of these subjects.

Mill’s Principle of Utility
Origins, Proof, and Implications
Revised and Enlarged Edition
Necip Fikri Alicant

The aim of this book is to analyze the problem of the intensity of forms in the late Middle Ages and to show how this debate eventually gave rise to a new metaphysical project in the 14th century: the project of quantifying the different types of perfections existing in the universe—that is the project of “measuring being”.

READERSHIP: The audience comprises philosophers and other scholars in the humanities, primarily professors and graduate students. The book can serve both as course material and as a supplementary reference.

This volume brings together an unprecedented compilation of papers from esteemed Russian psychophysicists, cognitive scientists, and neuroscientists. The contributors explain the disciplinary trajectories and theoretical foundations inspiring their experimental research, providing important intellectual contexts. Commentaries by editors Chris Forsythe and Gabriel Radvansky discuss the relationships between Russian, European, and American developments in cognitive science and neuroscience. This volume provides a detailed exposition of the distinctively Russian advances in neuropsychology and cognitive science from the late nineteenth century to the present.

READERSHIP: Scholars interested in diverse theoretical approaches to brain science and cognitive science, and anyone studying scientific developments in Russia.
Plato’s Cratylus

READERSHIP: This book should be of interest for specialists as well as advanced students in ancient philosophy and modern theory of language.

Received Opinions
Doxography in Antiquity and the Islamic World
Edited by Andreas Lammer, Trier University, and Mareike Jas, independent scholar

This volume brings together, for the first time, experts on Greek, Syriac, and Arabic traditions of doxography, in order to investigate and present shared contexts and questions, and to initiate future collaboration among the fields of classics, Arabic studies, and the history of philosophy.

READERSHIP: Anyone from the fields of philology (Greek, Syriac, Arabic) and philosophy as well as all interested in the transmission of knowledge and the history of philosophy and science.

Depeche Mode. Jacob Taubes between Politics, Philosophy, and Religion
Edited by Herbert Kopp-Oberstebrink, Zentrum für Literaturforschung Berlin, and Hartmut von Sass, Humboldt University Berlin

Jacob Taubes is one of the most influential figures in the more recent German intellectual scene—and beyond; with crucial contributions to hermeneutics, political theory, and phenomenology of time and the philosophy of (Jewish) religion, to name but of few areas in which the highly controversial Taubes was active.

READERSHIP: Philosophers, theologians, scholars of religion, sociologists, political theorists.
Time and Cosmology in Plato and the Platonic Tradition
Edited by Daniel Vázquez, Mary Immaculate College, and Alberto Ross, Universidad Panamericana

This book assembles an international team of scholars to move forward the study of Plato's conception of time, to find fresh insights for interpreting his cosmology, and to reimagine the Platonic tradition.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in Plato, the Platonic tradition (including Aristotle and the Stoics), ancient philosophy more generally, the history of cosmology, the development of the concept of time, and the relation between God and the world.

Understanding the Evolving Meaning of Reason in David Novak’s Natural Law Theory
Jonathan L. Milevsky, Tanenbaum Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto

How can one Jewish thinker's natural law theory explain morality, divine commandments, and human ordinances; and how do we assess the consistency of that theory when it is mentioned in connection with such diverse areas? The answer lies in the changing meaning of reason in Novak's writings.

READERSHIP: My book will be relevant to academics, including graduate students and post-graduates interested in modern Jewish thought. In addition, this book would be of interest to members of Jewish-Christian dialogue groups and motivated readers intrigued by the philosophy of Judaism.
