Celebrating (over) 100 Volumes in the Studies in Critical Social Sciences Book Series
Modern capitalism began the 21st century seemingly victorious as the dominant social and economic organizing principle in the world. Rampant re- and de-regulation accompanied a wholesale attack on social, economic and political gains of the prior century under the guise of increasing competitiveness and the need to respond to the forces of globalization. The end of the cold war, the decline of the former Soviet Union, and the increasing foothold of capitalism in China all point to an unchallenged reorientation of the global political economy to reflect this ascendance of capitalist social relations.

The peer-reviewed Studies in Critical Social Sciences book series, through the publication of original manuscripts and edited volumes, offers insights into the current reality by exploring the content and consequence of power relationships under capitalism, by considering the spaces of opposition and resistance to these changes, and by articulating capitalism with other systems of power and domination - for example race, gender, culture - that have been defining our new age.

Studies in Critical Social Science includes the subseries Studies in Critical Research on Religion (brill.com/scr) and Critical Global Studies (brill.com/cgs). The series have independent editorial teams that work closely together.

Authors are cordially invited to submit proposals and/or full manuscripts to either the series editor David Fasenfest (critical.sociology@gmail.com), the publisher Jason Prevost (prevost@brill.com), or by mail to Brill, Attn: Rosanna Woensdregt, P.O. Box 9000, 2300 PA Leiden, The Netherlands.

Covert Racism
Theories, Institutions, and Experiences
Edited by Rodney D. Coates, Miami University

This book presents a series of problems in conventional social thought and the alternatives Marx’s approach poses. It demonstrates how sound social science abstraction cannot but have political, often radical, implications.

_readership:_ All those interested in race and ethnic relations, the history of race in America, the rearticulation of race, and the means of understanding how to transform the racial matrix.

Marx and the Politics of Abstraction
Paul Paolucci, Eastern Kentucky University

Through a careful analysis of the former Soviet Union and China, and South Asian societies of India and the Philippines, this volume examines the creation of a state capitalism, its role in economic development, and its impact on social change.

_readership:_ All interested in the role of capitalism in the development of national economies, in so-called socialist states and non-traditional states.

Globalization, Violence and World Governance
Laura Westra, University of Windsor

In this work Laura Westra draws our attention to the failure of international law to promote and protect the rights of society in the face of the ravages of neoliberal agendas in an era of globalization.

_readership:_ General interest in law, sociology, on the part of both students and scholars.

State Capitalism, Contentious Politics and Large-Scale Social Change
Edited by Vincent Kelly Pollard

After challenging the multicultural effort to “provincialize” the history of Western civilization, this book argues that the roots of the West’s exceptional creativity should be traced back to the uniquely aristocratic warlike culture of Indo-European speakers.

_readership:_ Educated laymen, academics, and students interested in the rise of the West, comparative historical sociology, and world history, as well as historians of Europe and Indo-Europeanists.

The Uniqueness of Western Civilization
Ricardo Duchesne, The University of New Brunswick, Saint John, Canada

This collection focuses on the multiple consequences of neoliberal policies in Chile and places its “showcase” status and its re-democratization process into serious question. The volume argues that breaking the status quo is possible, urgent and necessary.

_readership:_ All students and specialists in Latin American Studies, International Studies, Comparative Sociology of Development; Comparative Politics.

Neoliberalism’s Fractured Showcase
Another Chile is Possible
Edited by Ximena de la Barra
