

Lots of exciting things are happening here at Brill, and that's precisely why we're pleased to launch the first edition of Brill Inside – our new newsletter – to keep our author & editorial community up-to-date about relevant news at Brill.

Brill Titles Now Included in the Thomson Reuters Book Citation Index

In fall 2011, Thomson Reuters launched a new Book Citation Index (BCI) within the Web of Knowledge. The BCI incorporates book citation data on a chapter level for monographs and edited volumes selected by Thomson Reuters because of their relevance to the research community. Brill was among the first 80 publishers selected for coverage in the BCI.

According to Thomson Reuters, over 1,400 Brill book titles have been accepted in the BCI, with additional titles pending. Now researchers can cross search and follow citation links across Brill monographs and edited volumes in addition to peer-reviewed journals already indexed and abstracted in the Web of Knowledge (webofknowledge.com). We are also in the process of submitting monographs and edited volumes published since 2003 to Scopus (scopus.com), Elsevier's abstracting and indexing database. We will keep you updated as progress continues.

Brill Open: Open Access Publishing at Brill

The digital landscape enables scholarly publishers to experiment with new business models, and Brill is also taking part through its Brill Open program, which started in 2008. As of 2013, Brill will have 6 open access journals across several research fields, as well as a fruitful cooperation with Open Access Publishing in European Networks (OAPEN) (oapen.org).

When publishing in any other Brill journal, since 2008 you also have the option to publish your paper via Brill Open. For more information, visit: brill.com/open-access-policy
In addition, our cooperation with

OAPEN has enabled us to make 79 Brill e-books freely available online: 12 from Brill, 21 from Brill-KITLV Press, and 36 from Brill-Huygens Instituut. All titles are available for download on the OAPEN website. (oapen.org). The 12 Brill titles are also accessible on our new platform: booksandjournals.brillonline.com
