PART 2

International Water Law in the Aral Sea Basin
The following five chapters deal with international water law as applied to the Aral Sea basin. Chapter 3 provides an overview of the basin, its main transboundary water challenges and legal instruments at sub-regional, regional and global levels. Treaty provisions related to scope, substantive and procedural norms, compliance and dispute settlement are examined through the lenses of norm determinacy and stringency in Chapters 4 and 5. Then, Chapter 6 analyses state practice of the Aral Sea basin countries against the process properties of inclusiveness, transparency, discursiveness, and coherence. The main findings and recommendations of the study are summarised in Chapter 7.
