PLATES 1–122
Ajanta: The dhabdhaba (waterfall) in the monsoon season. The deep ravine at Ajanta was cut, over millions of years, by the action of the monsoonal torrents, the water being gathered from hundreds of square kilometers of fields above the site. The eroding action of the waters takes place from late June through September or October, after which the area is essentially dry.