Contributors

Anthony J. Blasi is Visiting Professor of Sociology at the University of Texas at San Antonio. He earned the B.A. at St. Edward’s University (Austin, Texas), the M.A. and Ph.D. in sociology at the University of Notre Dame, the M.A. in biblical studies at the University of St. Michael's College (Toronto), and the S.T.L. and Th.D. conjointly at Regis College and the University of Toronto. He retired from Tennessee State University in 2012. He served as president of the Association for the Sociology of Religion and editor of the Review of Religious Research. Author of many scholarly books and articles, he recently authored Sociology of Religion in America: A History of a Secular Fascination with Religion (Brill 2014).

Gary D. Bouma
is the UNESCO Chair in Intercultural and Interreligious Relations—Asia Pacific, Emeritus Professor of Sociology at Monash University, Australian node of the Religion and Diversity project, University of Ottawa, director of the Global Terrorism Research Centre and President of the Australian Association for the Study of Religion.

Rebecca Catto
is a Research Fellow at Coventry University, UK. She is Convener of the British Sociological Association Sociology of Religion Study Group and co-editor of the Ashgate AHRB/ESRC Religion and Society series. Her publications include Religion and Change in Modern Britain (co-edited with Linda Woodhead).

Karel Dobbelaere is emeritus professor of the University of Leuven (Belgium) and of the University of Antwerp (Belgium) where he taught sociology, sociology of religion, and sociological research. He is an elected member of the Royal Flemish Academy of Belgium for Sciences and Fine Arts (Section of Human Sciences), and of the Academia Europaea (Section of Human Sciences). He is the Honorary President of the International Society for Sociology of Religion. His main fields of interest re: secularization, religious and church involvement, and new religious and sectarian movements.

Douglas Ezzy is an Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Tasmania. His research is driven by a fascination with how people make meaningful and dignified lives. His books include Sex, Death and Witchcraft (2014), Qualitative Analysis (2002), and Teenage Witches (2007, with Helen Berger).

Giuseppe Giordan

is Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Padua. He earned his Ph.D. in Social Sciences at the Pontifical University of St. Thomas in Rome. He served as General Secretary of the International Society for the Sociology of Religion (ISSR/SISR). With Luigi Berzano and Enzo Pace, he edits the Annual Review of the Sociology of Religion. His latest books include the edited volumes Testing Pluralism: Globalizing Belief, Localizing Gods (2013, with William H. Swatos, Jr.), Prayer in Religion and Spirituality (2013, with Linda Woodhead), and Framing Religious Diversity in the Contemporary World (2014, with Enzo Pace).

Mar Griera

is an Assistant Professor in the Sociology department of the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona and director of the Centre on Sociology of Religion Research (ISOR) at that same university.

Kees de Groot

studied sociology at the University of Amsterdam and theology at the Tilburg School of Catholic Theology. His dissertation, competed at Leiden University in 1995 under the supervision of Meeren B. ter Bog, was on religion and mental health care. Since 2002, he is an Assistant Professor in Practical Theology at Tilburg University. He has published on Catholic parishes, religion and popular culture, and spiritual care.

Anna Halafoff

is a Lecturer in Sociology at Deakin University and an Associate of the UNESCO Chair in Interreligious and Intercultural Relations Asia Pacific, at Monash University. Her current research interests include religious diversity, gender and religion, religion and media, interreligious relations, education about religions and beliefs, and Buddhism in Australia. Anna was named a United Nations Alliance of Civilizations’ Global Expert in the fields of multifaith relations, and religion and peacebuilding in 2011.

Pierre Lassave

Emeritus Research Director, is Redactor-in-chief of the Archives de sciences sociales des religions. A sociologist of the social sciences, he has worked and published on urban research, then on cultural and religious studies. His latest