

BRILL

Historical Materialism 20.3 (2012) 219–222

historical materialism
research in critical marxist theory

brill.com/hima

Notes on Contributors

Max Ajl is a PhD student in development sociology at Cornell University and is a contributing editor at Jacobin.

Max.Ajl@gmail.com

Sam Ashman is currently a Post-Doctoral Research Fellow at the University of Johannesburg, South Africa, and a Visiting Senior Researcher at the Corporate Strategy and Industrial Development Research Programme at the University of the Witwatersrand, also in Johannesburg. She is researching a number of dimensions of neoliberalism and financialisation, both in general theoretical terms and with specific reference to the evolution of South African political economy. She is interested in value theory, uneven and combined development and systems of accumulation, as well as the connection between the three. She has taught Political Economy and the Political Economy of Development at the Universities of Witwatersand, East London, and Birmingham (UK) where she also completed her PhD.

pdf5@uj.ac.za

Roger Backhouse is Professor of the History and Philosophy of Economics at the University of Birmingham. He is the author of The Penguin History of Economics (Penguin, 2002) and The Puzzle of Modern Economics (Cambridge University Press, 2010); co-author, with Bradley W. Bateman, of Keynes: Capitalist Revolutionary (Harvard University Press, 2011); and co-author, with Mauro Boianovsky, of Transforming Modern Economics: Exploring Disequilibrium Microfoundations, 1956–2003 (Cambridge University Press, 2012). He is currently working on an intellectual biography of Paul Samuelson.

R.E.Backhouse@bham.ac.uk

Dick Bryan studied economics and politics at Monash University in Melbourne and Sussex University. He is currently Professor of Political Economy at the University of Sydney. He is the author (with Michael Rafferty) of Capitalism with Derivatives (Macmillan, 2006). His current research is on financial liquidity and how it pertains to households and to the conception of money.

dick.bryan@sydney.edu.au

Joseph Choonara is a member of the editorial board of International Socialism. He is the author of Unravelling Capitalism: A Guide to Marxist Political Economy (Bookmarks, 2009).

joseph_choonara@yahoo.co.uk

David Craven (1951–2012) was Distinguished Professor of Art History at the University of New Mexico and the recipient of many academic awards. His books include: The New Concept of Art and Popular Culture in Nicaragua since the Revolution in 1979 (The Edwin Mellen Press, 1989), Diego Rivera as Epic Modernist (G.K. Hall Press, 1997);

Abstract Expressionism as Cultural Critique: Dissent during the McCarthy Period (Cambridge University Press, 1999) and Art and Revolution in Latin America, 1910–1990 (Yale University Press, 2002; Second Edition, 2006).

Angela Dimitrakaki teaches contemporary art history and theory at the University of Edinburgh and is a Corresponding Editor of Historical Materialism. Her research focuses mainly on globalisation, labour and gender. She is currently completing the book Gender, Art/Work and the Global Imperative: A Materialist Feminist Critique for Manchester University Press.

angela.dimitrakaki@gmail.com

Eren Duzgun previously studied at the Middle East Technical University and the University of Nottingham, and since September 2009 has been a PhD student in the Department of Political Science at York University, Toronto. He has major research interests in historical sociology, international relations theory and international political economy. His forthcoming publications include: 'Class, State and Property: Modernity and Capitalism in Turkey' in the European Journal of Sociology and 'Capitalist Modernity a la Turca: Turkey's Great Transformation Reconsidered' in Critical Sociology. He is currently working on his doctoral thesis tentatively titled 'Islam, Capitalism and the "International": Making Sense of Turkish Modernity'.

eduzgun@yorku.ca

Steve Edwards is Senior Lecturer in Art History at the Open University. He is the author of The Making of English Photography: Allegories (Pennsylvania State University Press, 2006) and Photography: A Very Short Introduction (Oxford University Press, 2006), editor of Art and Its Histories: A Reader (Yale University Press, 1996), and co-editor, with Paul Wood, of Art of the Avant-Gardes (Yale University Press, 2004). He is also a member of the Historical Materialism editorial board.

s.j.edwards@open.ac.uk

Stephen F. Eisenman is Professor of Art History at Northwestern University. He is the author of seven books including Gauguin's Skirt (Thames and Hudson, 1997) and The Abu Ghraib Effect (Reaktion Books, 2007). Since 2008 he has worked with Tamms Year Ten, a group of Chicago artists and activists, to end long-term solitary confinement in Tamms supermax prison. His op-eds and articles on prison reform have appeared in the Chicago Sun Times and Monthly Review. (The Illinois governor recently announced that the prison will be closed in August 2012.) He is currently completing a book entitled Meat Modernism.

s-eisenman@northwestern.edu

Ben Fine is Professor of Economics at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. He is the author of Women's Employment and the Capitalist Family (Routledge, 2010), Theories of Social Capital: Researchers Behaving Badly (Pluto, 2010), Marx's 'Capital' (with Alfredo Saad-Filho; Pluto, 2010), and, in collaboration with Dimitris Milonakis, From Political Economy to Economics: Method, the Social and the Historical in the Evolution of Economic Theory (Routledge, 2009) and From Economics Imperialism to Freakonomics: The Shifting Boundaries Between Economics and Other Social Sciences (Routledge, 2009). He is the co-editor, with Alfredo Saad-Filho and Marco Boffo, of The Elgar Companion to Marxist Economics (Edward Elgar, 2012).

bf@soas.ac.uk