AIMS AND SCOPE

The International Journal on Minority and Group Rights is devoted to legal and social problems stemming from the existence of minorities and groups within society. For the purpose of the Journal, Groups are seen as clearly recognizable segments of society, defined by relatively constant factors, such as religion, race, culture or language. Developments in Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union in the early 1990s suggested the need for a periodical publication dealing with minority and group related issues at the highest scientific level, and this need has been confirmed by subsequent events in all parts of the globe, in particular Africa. The Journal has already made significant contributions to the advancement of knowledge, and aims to become the primary forum for the discussion of the vitally important field of study which it covers.
